Collins Elected Mass. County Treasurers President

Norfolk County Treasurer James M. Collins was elected president of the Massachusetts County Treasurers' Association at a recent meeting in Falmouth.

Collins, county treasurer for the past six years, is a lawyer and accountant. He was formerly first assistant district attorney for Norfolk County.

The county treasurer has been cited by area bankers for the imaginative investment procedures he has instituted for the depositing of county funds which have increased county investment income by $200,000 annually and county retirement board investment income by over $400,000 yearly.

It was noted that Norfolk is one of the two counties in the state with an AAA credit rating from Moody Investment Service, which permits the county to borrow money at significantly lower rates than most municipalities.

Challenger Files Legal Action

Sonny McDonough Not Legal Resident, Golden Claims

William B. Golden of Squantum has filed a legal challenge to Patrick J. [Sonny] McDonough's bid for a 17th term on the Governor's Council on grounds McDonough is not a resident of Massachusetts.

Golden, who is running against McDonough, claimed in his objection filed with the State Ballot Law Commission that "the center of McDonough's social, civic and domestic life" is in Marathon, Fla.

In his nomination papers, McDonough lists his residence as 135 Granite Ave., Boston. He also has a summer home in Scituate.

Golden said:

"For many years Sonny's absence from the state has been widely reported; this year it is a matter of public record that McDonough, as of May 1, had not attended a single Governor's Council meeting in 1978."

In his objection, Golden cited the 16th amendment to the State Constitution, which reads:

"No person shall be eligible to the office of councillor who has not been an inhabitant of the Commonwealth for the term of five years immediately preceeding his election."

Golden said that McDonough "has for at least the past year been domiciled within the state of Florida and more specifically in Marathon, Fla., where he has a home and dwelling place."

"By his continued absence from Massachusetts for the past year," said Golden, "and by his continued presence in Florida, McDonough has exhibited an intention to be a legal resident and inhabitant of Florida."

Golden's objection asks the Ballot Law Commission to determine "whether Mr. McDonough in fact maintains a residence at 135 Granite Ave." and, if not, whether his nomination papers are legal.

McDonough was first elected in 1946 as governor's councillor from the fourth district, which stretches from Beacon Hill to Brockton and Duxbury and includes Quincy.

Donnelly Introduces Resolution To Aid Business

Rep. Brian J. Donnelly [D-Boston-Milton] has introduced a resolution in the State House urging Congress to enact comprehensive economic dislocation legislation to "combat the adverse impacts of business closings, relocation and large scale layoffs" in Massachusetts.

Donnelly, who is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Congress in the 11th District, which includes Quincy, said his resolution was drafted by representatives of a coalition of labor unions and citizen action committees.

"From 1975 to 1977," he said, "6,739 union jobs were lost and those were stable, good paying jobs within the manufacturing sector. This figure can hardly reflect the suffering and hardship suffered by families when jobs are lost to New Hampshire or one of the Sun Belt states.

"For a city like Quincy to have an unemployment rate of over 6 per cent is something that cannot be accepted by the Congress."

COPE To Endorse Candidates Sunday

The Committee on Political Education [COPE] of the Norfolk County Labor Council will meet to endorse candidates Sunday, July 16, at 1 p.m. in Shipbuilders Hall, 480 Quincy Ave., Quincy Point.

All candidates seeking office in Norfolk County are invited to present their credentials at the meeting, which will be chaired by Council President George McCall.

ETHICS MR. CERASOLI???

This past week candidate for state representative Robert Cerasoli mailed a flyer to district voters that was unethical and misleading.

Mr. Cerasoli removed an important paragraph of an article that had been published in the June 2nd Patriot Ledger about him and mailed out the doctored-up version into the district.

Voters were left with the erroneous impression that the article was a complete reprint. NOT SO!!!!!!

This is the paragraph Cerasoli TOOK out:

"In his short two terms as a legislator Cerasoli has found himself in the news on two other occasions. Because of his vote against restricting state expenditures on abortions, he was asked not to assume the Knights of Columbus office he had been elected to in Quincy."

Mr. Cerasoli,
As a co-sponsor of the Ethics bill do you call this ethical?

Does Cerasoli Really Care?

Historic Tidbits For Nibbling

Candidates who hope to sit in Congressman James Burke's 11th Congressional seat--and the voters who will decide which one actually does--might like to nibble on these historic tidbits:

Since 1810 [when home towns were first listed in the Congressional directory] only two men from Quincy have represented Quincy in Congress.

One, as every student of Quincy history knows, was John Quincy Adams who was seated in Congress from 1831 to 1848 after serving one-term as sixth President. He was stricken on the House floor and died in the Speaker's room Feb. 23, 1848.

The other was also an Adams, his son Charles Francis Adams, who served from 1859 to 1861 and then resigned to become Minister to England.

INTERESTINGLY, a third Quincy man was also elected to Congress but did not represent Quincy in Washington.

Dr. William Everett, headmaster of Adams Academy, lived in Quincy when he was elected to represent a North Shore district that included Lynn, Chelsea, Everett, Nahant, Malden, Melrose, Revere, Saugus, Stoneham and Wakefield.

He succeeded Henry Cabot Lodge of Nahant, edging William E. Barrett of Melrose 9,733 to 9,699, in a special election April 25, 1893. No explanation on how he could live in Quincy and represent the Lynn-North Shore area. He didn't run for re-election.

Everett lived on what was then Goffe St. near Saville St. He was master of Adams Academy until it closed in 1907. When he died in 1910, the Patriot Ledger's obit on him referred to him as a "carpetbagger" Congressman.

JAMES MICHAEL CURLEY represented Quincy in 1911-12 when Quincy was in the 10th Congressional district with Milton and seven wards in Boston.

THE CLOSEST CONGRESSIONAL race in Quincy's history was in 1908 when the city was in the 10th district. And it was really close. Joseph F. O'Connell [D-Boston] defeated J. Mitchell Galvin [R-Boston] by--get this--four votes! O'Connell polled 16,553 votes to Galvin's 16,549.

Quincy, then a Republican stronghold, went heavy for Galvin but it wasn't enough. Galvin contested the election--even went to court--to no avail.

THE 11th DISTRICT which has been fiddled with down through the years, is pretty compact now. But when Quincy was in the 2nd District in the 1860's, 70's and 80's, it included Seekonk, Wrentham, Plymouth and Berkeley.

The old 2nd District also included such towns as South Abington, South Scituate and North Bridgewater. Today they're more easily recognized as Whitman, Norwell and Brockton.

WHO'S WITH WHO DEPT: Agnes Costello of Wollaston, long-time active in Republican circles, presented a personal check for Avi Nelson's Senate campaign Monday. According to James Murphy, state chairman of the Friends of Avi Nelson, it was the 15,000th contribution received thus far.

AND, Patrick H. McCarthy of Randolph has claimed the endorsement of the State Postal Workers Union in his bid for the 11th District Congressional seat. The McCarthy camp also announces the support of the Operating Engineers and Service Employees unions, both of which supported retiring Congressman James Burke in the past.

TOURISTS visiting historic places--like Quincy--like to send postcards to the folks at home. But apparently there are few--if any--picture postcards available of such historic sites as the Adams Birthplaces, the Church of the Presidents, the Adams Mansion, the Dorothy Quincy Homestead etc., in downtown shops and drugstores. A check of likely shops along Hancock St., failed to turn up a single card. Woolworth's does have postcards but the closest Quincy connection is one of Abigail Adams birthplace--and that's in Weymouth.

MUSIC DEPT: Peter Cardarelli, son of Leo Cardarelli of Quincy, and the Caddy Marine Corps League is appearing with "The Force", a five piece band - at The Great Escape, Weymouth. Peter, now 27, played with Quincy High School Band while in school. About two years ago he brought "The Force" together and the group has played at Ramada Inns throughout New England, ski lodges in Vermont, resorts on Cape Cod, Martha's Vineyard and in the Poconos and at a Manhattan discoteque. Peter plays the saxaphone. Two guitars, a trumpet and a drummer make up the group. After the summer season their schedule calls for a tour of Florida and the Bahamas.

SMILE DEPT: City Solicitor Richard Barry who succeeded in having the name of Mayor Arthur Tobin removed from the pending open meeting law violation case promised City Council members at the council meeting the other night he will defend them with the same vigor with which he defended the mayor.

Prompting new City Councillor Steve McGrath to lean over to Sun reporter Tom Henshaw and quip: "I hope so. I'm too young to do 5 to 10."

Police Dept. 'Civilian Desk Clerks'

19 Handicapped Will Lose CETA Jo

By PETER BARNICLE

The CETA program has been a great boon to many unemployed who have found it difficult to obtain work for a variety of reasons, among them the handicapped.

The Quincy Police Department has 19 handicapped working in civilian jobs, one of them blind, and several paraplegics. They are happy in their work and Police Chief Francis X. Finn is more than satisfied with their performance.

However, under present guidelines the "civilian desk project" will grind to a halt Aug. 27 unless some way can be found to refund the program and Chief Finn is making every effort to have the program continued, either under CETA auspices or some other federally funded program.

"I don't want to have to send them back to where they were before, sitting at home in a wheelchair, looking for a job and not succeeding too well," Finn said.

Recently Finn had the opportunity of telling his problem to Harold Russell, volunteer chairman of the President's Committee on Aiding the Handicapped. During a chance meeting in the office of Mayor Arthur Tobin, the police chief explained his problem to Russell, a World War II veteran who lost both hands, and has devoted his life to aiding handicapped people adjust to life.

Russell, who was made an honorary citizen of Quincy during his visit, assured Finn that he would look into the matter and advise him on the programs available. He promised to confer with sources in Washington who have the responsibility of aiding the handicapped find jobs - and keep them.

The police chief has also written to Sen. Edward M. Kennedy explaining that the $200,000 project will terminate in August if more money is not provided.

Finn called attention to a proposed amendment to the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act which has been introduced by Kennedy, Sen. Jacob Javitts [R-N.Y.] and Sen. William D. Hathaway [D-Me.]. This amendment would provide incentive grants to deserving projects.

"Should the amendment be passed by Congress we will be ready to apply for an incentive grant and to have our project evaluated by the Department of Labor," Finn wrote.

HONORARY CITIZEN -- Mayor Arthur H. Tobin [left] presents Harold Russell, chairman of President's Commission on the Handicapped, with citation naming him honorary citizen of Quincy. Russell Deming is one of the CETA employees who is waiting anxiously to learn of Chief Finn's success in getting the program extended.

Russell is assigned to the detective bureau. He transcribes tape reports of investigations, answers the telephone and takes messages for men who are out of the office. He also acts as a liaison between the detective bureau on the second floor and the desk on the first, carrying messages between them.

Russell is blind.

Deming has been blind since birth. He was at the Perkins School for the Blind in Watertown, from 1957 to 1970. He then entered Boston College and earned a bachelor's degree in economics.

"I had a few jobs, but then my family moved to Washington and it was difficult. However, we came back last year and I got this job," Deming said.

He learned about the opening from the Massachusetts Commission for the Blind and the Massachusetts Rehabilitation Commission.

"I'm the first blind person here, but I hope I'm not the last," he commented.

When the telephone rings he can tell which button to push by using a small pocket sized light sensor provided by the Commission for the Blind. He takes down the messages on a Braille-writer, on loan from the Commission, and transcribes them onto a typewriter.

In addition to his work at police headquarters Deming has a busy life. He is an ardent amateur radio operator and has his own station -WAIYEO.

He also plays drums and has his own band "Flying".

"I've played at the Beachcomber and a couple of other places on the South Shore, but we're just getting started," he said.

"This is a very interesting job and I certainly hope some way will be found to keep it going," Deming remarked.

Robert Stanton, 26, of 30 Clay Spring Rd. Cohasset, is a paraplegic, confined to a wheelchair. He suffered a broken neck in a diving accident in the Scituate sand-pits in June, 1969.

After two agonizing months in Carney Hospital, he spent two years at the Massachusetts Hospital School in Canton.

"I toyed around with the idea of going back to school. I even took a course at Boston University but for the longest time I didn't do anything," Stanton recalled. "I just sat around the house waiting for something to happen, and it never did."

Finally he took a job doing the books for a wood carving shop in Cohasset.

"I got back a little confidence, but I still couldn't get out of Cohasset," he said. Then the Massachusetts Rehabilitation people took an interest and had him apply for the opening at Quincy Police.

Stanton "works the desk." He answers telephone calls, makes out "incident" cards and passes them along

Camp Fire Girls Council Thanks Its Friends

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

The South Shore Council Camp Fire Girls would like to thank its Volunteers, and the communities who support us, for having made this a successful year for Camp Fire.

Over the past nine months, Camp Fire volunteers have given 4,000 youth members experiences in camping, community service, creative arts, skills in human relations, and have helped youth learn to help themselves.

The 1,200 South Shore adults have given their time and talents to Camp Fire in many different ways: sometimes by working with children, at times by working in administrative positions; to give young people opportunities to reach their fullest potential.

Nearly every day we hear about the problems of youth. Our volunteers are people who are doing something about these problems. We especially appreciate the support of The Quincy Sun in our efforts to promote a positive image of youth.

bs, Hope Unless New Funds Found

ON THE JOB at Quincy Police headquarters Bob Stanton [left] checks incident card as Russell Deming arrives from detective bureau with message for desk. At right is Marion Caldwell. to the dispatcher with whatever information he has received from the caller. He also makes out stolen car reports and other forms.

Now that his confidence is restored Stanton is eager to remain on the job. If this program is terminated he already has his name in at several companies which hire handicapped.

Stanton still is unable to use his body from the chest down and his hands were affected by his accident.

"My writing has improved since I came here and my telephone work is a lot better," he said.

He has a wheelchair equipped van and a friend drives him from his Cohasset home to police headquarters.

Stephen Tufts, 21, of 480 Union St., South Weymouth, is also a paraplegic. He suffered a broken neck diving into a swimming pool in 1971 and is still confined to a wheelchair.

"I finished Brayton High School in Canton in 1976 and just hung around the house for more than a year," he said.

Then he learned about CETA and landed a civilian clerk's post at police headquarters.

Tufts covers the front desk, directing people who walk-in and handling complaints. He also checks lists of stolen cars comparing the local lists with the computer print-outs.

"They told us that it was a one year program, but I hope some way is found to prolong it," he said. "I don't want to sit back and do nothing. I don't want to be a statistic on the unemployment lists."

Twenty-five year old Maeve Maguine of 125 Copeland St., West Quincy, has been crippled with juvenile rheumatoid arthritis for the past ten years. She is able to get around, but her disability makes it difficult for her to find work she can handle.

At the police department she works midnight to 8 a.m. working the switchboard and sometimes the teletype.

"It's nice to be independent. I have my own apartment and live my own life," she said.

She expressed hope the program will be continued and that some type of funding can be found to keep the project going to help other handicapped people.

Michael Roman, 26, of 270 Quarry St., West Quincy, has been confined to a wheelchair since birth. He has spinal bifida.

He maintained an apartment at 80 Clay St., Wollaston, for several years but moved to his new apartment recently in anticipation of his marriage to Patricia Nihill, a medical records technician at Carney Hospital.

Michael works the four p.m. to midnight shift answering the telephone, working with the dispatcher and doing some typing.

"The program? It's helped me a great deal. It has made me more aware of myself. It's made me more independent than I have ever been," he said.

He recognizes the difficulties of finding another job, but hopes that he can get located in some place to learn TV or computer repair work.

All of the severely handicapped, and the other 14 less disabled, in the program are of the opinion that the project has helped them restore confidence to themselves.

Gregory V. Sullivan, coordinator of the program, is more than anxious to see the program extended, and perhaps even expanded. He has found that despite their handicaps the civilian clerks have "carried their weight".

"If they are forced out the department will quickly realize the amount of paper work and detail they handled during the past year," he said.

Sullivan, a Boston College graduate, passed the bar in late last year.

Chief Finn is pleased with the progress made by the group.

"I personnally feel they have come a long way," he said. "Perhaps some of them haven't responded as well as others, but that's mainly because they have not been exposed to the mainstream of the work day.

"We are satisfied that they are becoming proficient. They eventually will do not only a good job - they'll do an excellent job," he said.

He noted the group has taken a minimum of sick time and that one showed up at the height of the Great Blizzard, when some members of the regular force were unable to reach headquarters.

Finn said he had talked with members of the police union about the civilian clerks.

"At first they were not so sure they wanted people like that around. But recently they have been supporting my efforts to get the program extended," he said.

Family Outreach Program Needs Funds To Continue

The Family Outreach Program, a CETA funded effort concentrating on assistance to members of alcoholics' families, is facing a July 28 cut-off date, according to Jack Hamrock, director of the South Shore Clinic Without Walls.

"Even though we have been aware that the program's funding is of a limited nature," Hamrock said, "it is particularly dismaying to see the program coming to an end, mostly because it has been marked with successes."

Hamrock, who initiated the program, said the outreach program involves the entire family by engaging them in a participatory program. The alcoholic must give written permission for contact with his family before Outreach can act.

"Often," Hamrock said, "the family is reluctant to become involved, convinced they are destined to carry a liquid cross but often, too, they respond to any shred of hope.

"Some are frustrated by homemade efforts that never worked; others identify the problem as a moral one, meanwhile wallowing in a kind of despair that says the alcoholic will never change."

Hamrock said experience has shown that the lying and denying within the family at times reaches a level of paranoia; an unhappy atmosphere created mostly as a "cover-up" for the drinker's carryings-on.

"The fact remains," Hamrock said, "that the family, living day in day out with an active alcoholic, living amid the particular chaos that only an alcoholic can create finally becomes victimized itself. The family becomes as much in need of help and support as the drinker."

The program, set up basically for the recovery of the alcoholic and the family, is designed to lead to a healthier continuity of family life. Referrals to AA, Alanon, and Alateen are often made to encourage further aid.

Under present guidelines the CETA funding stops at the end of one year. When this happens the program must be abandoned, unless some other agency is found to help out.

Hamrock is hoping that somebody with knowledge of funding sources will contact him at the South Shore Alcoholic Clinic Without Walls, 773-2655.

How does a couple in their late 30's, described as "exceptionally intelligent," manage to pile up $15,000 in debts [in addition to a $27,500 home mortage balance] on an annual salary of $27,000?

This was the situation that prompted the couple to seek the counsel of a financial magazine to resolve their plight, described in a recent issue.

It was not lack of brain power that prevented this pair from solving their problems by themselves. He had graduated from Michigan State University in the top 10% of his class and had proceeded to add, ironically enough, the degree of master of business administration.

It was not that they were careless buyers. Everything purchased was carefully researched in product-testing magazines and priced in a half-dozen outlets. She was a careful food shopper, seeking good buys and avoiding expensive convenience foods.

What, then, brought them to a state that sought group therapy to resolve their marital conflicts and approached the magazine for financial help?

This is a situation that financial people and personal counselors encounter all too frequently. An MBA or PhD is of little help when homespun wisdom, which many illiterates possess, is lacking.

It is a condition which is found in childhood -- the "gimmes" -- as youngsters desire all the goodies that meet their eye. With adulthood, most persons come to realize that everything cannot be theirs and that choices and postponements, even denials, are facts of life.

It was a recognition that this couple had not yet acknowledged. She stated their problem succinctly: "Whenever we need anything, we just buy it." In all their careful shopping, the decision not to buy the object of their research was seldom reached.

Quite recently, despite their debt awareness, he bought a new tape deck for his stereo--he still rejects the idea that he could have got along without one--it was a good buy. They acquired an electric broiler they didn't need. "It just sits there on the refrigerator most of the time; I don't know why we bought it, except it was on sale," she says.

The magazine's counselors advised what they must do to put their financial house in order. The information will be of little avail if they don't recognize they have to grow up.

Morrisette At Milton Friday

The Morrisette Legion baseball team, tied for the Zone 6 lead with an 8-4 record, will play at Milton Friday at 6 and will host unbeaten Braintree's Zone 6A leaders Monday at 8 at Adams Field.

Morrisette suffered its second loss in a row Monday night, bowing to Holbrook, 3-1, despite another strong pitching performance by Gary Earle. Morrisette's batters hit in tough luck as several hard line drives with men on base were turned into inning-ending double plays.

Friday night Morrisette's pitching, which has been looking good, collapsed and it was upset by Randolph, 9-7.

Earlier Morrisette had rebounded from a 7-0 defeat at Hingham to nip Weymouth, 2-1, and move temporarily into undisputed possession of first place.

Earle was outstanding as he pitched a three-hitter and struck out 11. Morrisette scored both runs in the first two innings. Fran Donovan doubled to open the game and scored on Steve Cook's triple. In the second Dave King singled, Earle singled with two outs and King scored on Donovan's second hit.

Morrisette, with several reserves shining as a number of starters were unable to play due to a variety of reasons, won the Mitch Carrier Legion Tournament at Danvers last week.

In the title game Morrisette topped Rutland, Vt., 5-2, as Dave Austin and Paul O'Toole combined to pitch a seven-hitter.

Following the game Morrisette's Billy Deitsch was selected the tournament's Most Valuable Player. He had six hits in the three games and played well in the field.

Sal Coscia had five hits in the tournament, two in the championship game.

Morrisette had edged Salem, 5-4, in the first game with John Wilkinson picking up the win, and advanced to the finals with an 11-10 squeaker over Newburyport as Austin and O'Toole again shared the pitching duties.

PAUL MURPHY of Quincy is shown running in "mini marathon", part of the Massachusetts Bar Association convention at the Mount Washington Hotel in Bretton Woods, N.H.

OBJECTION TO HELMETS???

States that have instituted mandatory motorcycle helmets use laws have experienced a decline in their motorcycle death rate. States with such laws had their fatality rate drop from 10 per 10,000 registered cycles before to 7 per 10,000 after helmet laws.

Opponents of the helmet use law feel that it is an invasion of individual rights to require an individual to protect himself from himself. Here is how one Federal Judge answers:

"While we agree that the act's only purpose is the prevention of head injuries, we cannot agree that the consequences of such injuries are limited to the victim. The public has an interest in minimizing the resources directly involved. From the moment of the injury, society picks the person up off the highway; delivers him to a municipal hospital and municipal doctors; provides him with unemployment compensation if, after recovery, he cannot go back to work, and if the injury causes permanent disability, may assume the responsibility for his and his family's subsistance. We do not understand a state of mind that permits one to think that only he himself is concerned."

Flower Tips from Andre Moreau

What once originated as a wild flower in Italy has turned up in our garden as the ubiquitous Lathyrus odoratus or sweet pea. It comes in all sizes and colors and has a delicious fragrance. Most plants climb five to ten feet but there are non-climbing varieties that grow only 8-12 inches tall. Some of the newer types produce a profusion of bloom on plants that grow anywhere from 16-30 inches high. Just pick the height that fits your garden plan or choose a climber for your trellis. You can select flowers in rainbow hues that are striped, ruffled or bicolored. The sweet pea is a versatile member of your outdoor garden.

Our floral designers at NORFOLK FLOWER SHOP, 49 Beale St., Wollaston, 472-7100 are very skilled in arranging random selections of flowers into exquisite works of art. Whether you wish to remember a birthday, anniversary, birth or simply want to say...get well soon nothing says it better than a gift from NORFOLK FLOWER SHOP. Delivery to your satisfaction is always assured. Master Charge and BankAmericard honored. "For the Creative and Unusual in Floral Designing". Hours: Mon. - Sat. 8-6, evenings by appointment.

False Economies

There are many ways to cut corners when you sell your home. But some of these may be very costly in the final outcome. I refer to selling without the services of a REALTOR and attorney. Their experience and knowledge could easily be the best financial insurance you can buy.

An attorney can be well worth his fee if he steers you clear of a single financial or legal pitfall.

Trying to play expert by filling in the blanks of standard deeds, purchase and sales agreements, binders, or financial forms can easily backfire. Some of the biggest monetary losses have come about precisely in this manner.

Select PRESIDENT REAL ESTATE from the start. Listen to Their recommendation for the best selling price. They know the local market. Let Them handle the whole transaction for you - from advertising, showing, financial arrangements down to the final closing. Anything less could be very false economy. Selling a home is serious financial business. It should be handled just that way.

Whether buying or selling, turn to Realty World - President Real Estate for all your real estate needs.

Barry To Defend Councillors With Vigor

William D. Delahunt who lodged the suit.

Councillors McCauley and Paul D. Harold also have been critical of the meeting, suggesting that perhaps it had violated the open meeting law -- "I think it was a misunderstanding or a misinterpretation," said Harold.

Solicitor Barry explained the city's position on the case like this:

"I believe that the meeting that was called was a social meeting to discuss some governmental matters, none of which were on any official agenda.

"Any social meeting, though there be discussions of city business, is not in violation of the open meeting law.

"The law also states that where there is a meeting in which no decisions are made whatsoever, but just discussions are held, is not in violation of the law."

Councillor Raymondi suggested that since "there is one city councillor (Harold), possibly two (McCauley), who is admitting that he violated the open meeting law" perhaps he should be separated from the Council's defense.

"I don't see why you should waste your time defending those people who admit freely and willingly that they actively and knowingly participated in an illegal meeting," he told Barry.

"I've filed general denials for each of the councillors that there was a violation of the open meeting law," replied Barry. "If any of the councillors feel they have violated it I think that they should contact me and ask me to amend the answer."

"Has any councillor contacted you at this point?" asked Raymondi.

"No, they haven't," said Barry.

Harold noted that in the past when governmental bodies have been charged with open meeting violations they have usually conceded the mistake and promised not to do it again.

"The problem in this case," he said, "is that there is no admission that a mistake was made. That is the reason it is going to court. It could have been settled before that."

"I don't know of anyone in politics," retorted Barry, "who would admit to a political sin or any other sin that they didn't commit. My best opinion is that there was no violation.

"Do you want me to say, 'Yes, you people have committed a violation of the laws of the Commonwealth,' when I feel there is no violation? Your philosophy and mine differ then."

Council President John J. Quinn recalled that when the upstairs meeting was over, the councillors came down to the Council Chamber for a regular meeting "and everything that was stated up there was recited again."

And Quinn recalled another thing.

"I can honestly say," he said, "I didn't enjoy any of the foods that were put on the table. All I had that evening was a cup of coffee. That's really not like me."

Destroyer Contracts

made later on as part of the overall downtown development plan but Hannon is seeking to push it up so that people can cross the depression to snop in both areas.

"It will give us a united downtown area for the first time," said City Councillor Leo J. Kelly, who is chairman of the Council's downtown development committee.

O'Neill reiterated an earlier promise that the Dukakis administration is committed to building a secondary sewage treatment plant on Deer Island, and nowhere else.

"We are not going to get distracted," he said. "I see a billion dollars in new construction around Boston because of it."

O'Neill announced that the federal government is sending additional funding to Massachusetts disaster areas to continue Project Concern, a crisis counselling project for victims of the February storm.

"We are continuing this program because it is still needed," he said.

"Demand for Project Concern has not let up in the coastal communities where people's homes and livelihoods have been destroyed.

"Many summer residents only recently returned to the coast to deal with severe damage to their property."

Project Concern was funded with $380,000 originally and was to end in August. New funding of $81,000 will allow it to continue through November.

O'Neill also had a warning for Planning Director Hannon -- HUD Secretary Patricia Harris "is getting very negative about federal funds for parking garages."

"She wants to put the money into the older neighborhoods," he said, "not into profit making ventures.

"You can tie it in with development, but it has to have a humanist tone."

Financial Study Planned But--

Tobin: City Hospital Not For Sale

By TOM HENSHAW

Mayor Tobin and the City Council are agreed that one thing the financially troubled City Hospital needs is a good thorough study.

But it doesn't need to be sold or transferred to a non-profit corporation.

Nor does it need to be burned down.

The latest chapter in the long-running serial, "The Perils of City Hospital", began Monday when Councillor Paul D. Harold introduced a resolve to study the feasibility of transferring the Hospital to a private non-profit organization.

Somehow the very thought of the city divesting itself of the hospital alarmed the City Council, which had just gotten through approving a loan order for $789,509 to pay its deficit.

"By using the work transfer," asked Councillor Leo J. Kelly, "are you specifying an amount of money or no money, just give the hospital away?"

"I'm saying," said Harold, "that we study the problem and come up with recommendations whether we transfer it, sell it or give it away or try to burn it down."

"If that resolve comes before me I want nothing to do with it," said Mayor Tobin, the next day.

"I want to make it abundantly clear if they make a drastic recommendation to me, including transferring, selling or burning down the hospital, I'll veto it. I'll not condone that type of action."

Tobin said he plans to appoint a committee around the end of August to look into the

LoCicero's Conviction Upheld By Appeals Court

The Federal Court of Appeals has affirmed the conviction and sentence of former Quincy Public Works Commissioner Vincent J. LoCicero for conspiracy and extortion.

A court spokesman said a mandate will be issued Aug. 7 for the arrest of LoCicero, a Braintree resident, to begin serving a year in the federal penitentiary.

LoCicero and Herbert Reppucci, then assistant director of RSVP, were convicted Oct. 14 of extorting $7,000 from Rocheford Construction Co. of Natick in connection with a $1 million contract for an addition to the Merrymount School during Mayor LaRaia's administration.

City's Books To Undergo Complete Audit

Mayor Tobin will shortly sign a $35,000 contract with Touche Ross and Co., a Boston auditing firm, for a complete audit of Quincy's books for the period July 1, 1977 to June 30, 1978.

Touche Ross will also assist the Mayor's blue ribbon committee in its study of the financial problems of City Hospital, which has experienced a deficit of nearly $3 million in the past year.

And, as an addendum to the contract, Touche Ross will help the city to establish an accounting system for its home rehabilitation program to satisfy the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Tobin noted that the city has not undergone an audit since 1972 and that "a lot had happened to the city in the past two years," a reference to the

$2.80 Tax Rate Help

Council Passes $789,509 Hospital Deficit Loan Order

For about 20 minutes Monday night, the Quincy tax rate, as yet unannounced, went up by $2.80 per thousand.

The City Council failed by a 5-2 vote (two-thirds being necessary) to pass Mayor Tobin's loan order for $789,509 to cover the City Hospital deficit for 1977-78.

When absentee Councillors Daniel G. Raymondi and James A. Sheets arrived, however, the Council was moved to reconsideration and the hospital bond passed, 7-2.

The dissenters in each vote were Councillors Paul D. Harold and Francis X. McCauley.

Auditor Charles L. Shea told the Council that the city was required by law to include the hospital deficit in the 1978-79 tax levy.

Councillor Leo J. Kelly figured it was worth $2.80 on the tax rate.

Harold said he was not prepared to vote for the bond issue since "we still don't know what money we will be getting back from the state or what our state assessments are going to be.

"Im not prepared to bond any money until we know what the true financial picture of the city is."

Questioned by Sheets, who is also a state representative, Auditor Shea said that the city will be getting back $2.4 million in new state aid, which would amount to about $8 on the tax rate.

"However," he said, "one thing we are unable to ascertain yet is the other side of the cherry sheet, the charges against the city such as the MBTA assessment and the MDC sewer and water charges.

"Until we get those it will be impossible to give a net increase."

Shea said that the net increase should be at least $2 million and that the Tobin administration counted on gaining at least $1.5 million when it calculated a $6.7 million deficit, excluding the hospital.

The $6.7 million deficit bond was passed earlier by the City Council, again with Councillors Harold and McCauley dissenting, an action that Councillor Kelly found "surprising."

"We talked about a fully funded budget only if we bonded the deficits," he said. "Yet the vote on the budget was 9-0 and the vote on the bonding was 7-2.

"If neither of those bonds had passed we would have had more than a $30 increase in the tax rate. I find it surprising that councillors could vote for one and not for the other."

Federal Court Action

Tobin To File Suit Against Massport Over Airplane Noise

Mayor Tobin plans to file suit in Federal Court tomorrow [Friday] to determine "whether Massport has the right, at random, to disrupt the peace and quiet of Quincy."

It was the latest in a series of moves by local officials and legislators to stop noisy jets from Logan Airport from taking off over Quincy.

State Reps. Michael W. Morrissey and James A. Sheets were seeking to set up a public meeting early in August with Massport Director David Davis and Regional FAA Director Robert Whittington.

Tobin said his Federal Court suit would be handled by City Solicitors Richard W. Barry, Dennis E. Harrington and Robert Fleming with an assist from outside specialists.

Filing could be held off until early next week, he said, "because we want to make sure the i's are dotted and the t's are crossed properly. We don't want the case tossed around as frivolous."

Basically, he said, the case will challenge Massport's good faith in altering takeoff patterns without notifying the city and will question whether or not an environmental impact statement is needed.

Last week, Massport told Quincy legislators that it will recommend to the FAA that jets continue to take off over Quincy for the next six months "as an interim action rather than a final solution."

House Approves Birthplaces Transfer

The U.S. House of Representatives has approved the transfer of the Adams Birthplaces on Franklin St., South Quincy, to the National Park Service, it was announced by Cong. James A. Burke [D-Milton].

Burke told his House colleagues that "inflation and local obligations have made it increasingly difficult for the city of Quincy to provide the caretaker role it has assumed until now.

"Under the aegis of the Park Service, the two homes will be afforded the care and maintenance which they require.

"The residences belong to the entire country and offer a proud reminder of the countless contributions and unselfish service of the Adams family."

Takeover by the National Park Service, he said, "would insure that future generations of Americans will not be deprived of this national historic site.".

The proposal to transfer the Birthplaces now goes to the Senate for approval.

Southern Artery Wetlands Development Turned Down

The Quincy Conservation Commission has denied "without prejudice" an application by Neponset Marine Inc. to develop wetlands at 666 Southern Artery.

The Commission noted that Neponset had failed to provide proof of permits from the Army Corps of Engineers and the State Department of Environmental Quality Engineering.

"It is apparent that they may be non-existent," said the Commission report.

The Commission also noted Neponset had not filed approvals from the Corps of Engineers and the State DEQE for "substantial alterations and additions" made since October, 1972.

Neponset was directed to file a notice of intent for the alterations within 90 days or the Commission would take legal action.

Jewels & Gems

by Stan Manin

Summer has brought simple, soft, clothing styles and jewelry is being designed to complement the clothing. Most jewelry designers favor bright colors to contrast with the muted or light tones of summer fabrics. Also popular with designers are natural materials from hemp and jute to shells and colored wooden beads. Some designers favor multiple strand necklaces made of semi-precious materials to match the soft lines of the clothes. Others go for heavy natural materials to contrast. So, as usual in the fashion world, you have a lot offered to you. Have fun.

You'll find a wide selection of all types of jewelry, from costume to custom made, when you visit us at GRONO & CHRISTIE,INC., 536 Adams St., East Milton, 696-1490. Inquire about our remounting. Is This YOUR Representative?

FACT: In the July 5th edition of the Patriot Ledger in his announcement as a candidate Mr. Cerasoli incorrectly stated "He had also served as a Weymouth Town Meeting Member since 1975."

FACT: At a public meeting of the Board of Public Works in Weymouth on April 13th, 1978, Cerasoli was asked as a Town Meeting Member why he never supported Public Works articles at Town Meeting and yet came up to the DPW to complain about a Weymouth Landing drainage problem. His reply was "that he always made a point never to speak on Town Meeting floor or VOTE as he was not a resident of Weymouth and felt it would be a conflict of interest." *

The 240 Weymouth Town Meeting Members who have spent well over a hundred hours at the 37 sessions of Town Meetings since 1975 know full-well that he did not serve or participate in any of this tedious but fulfilling work.

For Cerasoli to pretend that he was a working member of this dedicated legislative body is a misleading falsehood and an affront not just to Weymouth but to the entire district!

Flower Tips from Andre Moreau

All plants need a balanced diet and the most important nutrients are nitrogen, potassium and phosphorus. In fact, all growing things need nitrogen and for good leaf growth, plants must have it. They need phosphorous for healthy roots and flowers and potassium to provide sturdy stems and resistance to disease. A sure sign of poor nutrition is the appearance of yellow leaves around the mid-section and bottom of your plants. These will eventually wither and drop off. Another sign of hunger is a red or purple tinge at the tips and outer edges of leaves. So if your plants have a haggard look and you're not overwatering look into their diet and feed them carefully.

Our staff at NORFOLK FLOWER SHOP, 49 Beale St., Wollaston, 472-7100, will be happy to help you select a perfect gift of fresh flowers or a long lasting houseplant that will be appropriate for most any occasion. We will tell you just how to care for your plant so it will last longer and look healthier. Daily hospital deliveries. Master Charge and BankAmericard honored. "For the Creative and Unusual in Floral Designing". Open: Mon. - Sat., 8-6, evenings by appointment.

Now, Why Not Call The Duke?

Rep. Michael Morrissey and The Quincy Sun share a left-handed compliment in Massport's "study" report on complaints of airplane noise over Quincy.

Says Massport, sounding like an official expert:

"In general, the volume of complaints is not considered to be a reliable index of the actual noise impact experienced by complainants.

"For example, people who have been experiencing very high levels of aircraft noise for years tend not to register complaints by telephone unless an unusual event occurs.

"Furthermore, in the case of Quincy, an organized publicity campaign in the local media undoubtedly resulted in a larger number of complaints than would otherwise have been received."

Massport notes that in the entire year of 1977 it received from everywhere 1,275 telephone calls on its 24-hour noise complaint line.

But in June of this year [thanks to that "well organized publicity campaign in the local media] it received 1,426 calls, of which 1,113 were from Quincy alone.

So just in the month of June it received 151 more calls than it did all last year. And the calls from Quincy alone were only 162 fewer than from everywhere for the entire year of 1977.

Well, Massport might be interested in knowing more about that "well organized publicity campaign".

It actually consisted of one telephone call from Morrissey to The Sun suggesting The Sun publish the Massport number Quincy residents could call to complain about the air noise over their homes.

On June 1, The Sun did. The headline over the lead story in that issue said: "Morrissey Urges: If You Don't Like Airport Noise COMPLAIN!" And boxed in the story on Page 1 was this: "Dial 567-3333 To Protest Noise".

And, bingo! Before the month was over there were 1,113 calls from Quincy. [Advertisers, please take note].

Says Morrissey: "It shows how strongly people feel about the noise if you can get a 'campaign' going simply by publishing a phone number."

It also shows, we think, that Massport would have received a lot more than 1,275 calls last year if people bothered by airplane noise knew Massport's number or the fact that Massport is the agency to beef to.

Morrissey, meanwhile, has collected about 5,000 signatures in his petition campaign to make the planes fly elsewhere. His goal is between 15,000-20,000. Two women, he says, got 500 names between them in just two hours.

"We slowed down the petition drive hoping Massport would come up with an answer that satisfied us," says Morrissey. "We didn't like the answer. So, we're hitting supermarkets for signatures this weekend."

But Morrissey loves Alexander Graham Bell's little invention. So now he's suggesting that if you're still ticked off about airplane noise overhead, pick up your phone and call Gov. Dukakis.

"If Massport won't listen, the only thing to do is call the governor," Morrissey says. "He's the only one who can stop the planes. It means something to the governor to get phone calls in an election year."

Oh, yes, the governor's number is 727-3600.

IN LAST WEEK'S column, we noted that a Quincy man [Dr. William Everett, headmaster of Adams Academy] was elected to Congress in 1893 but did not represent Quincy in Washington. And, we wondered how that could happen.

Well, City Councillor Paul Harold says the answer is simple. There is no district residency requirement for Congress. This is due to the fact, says he, that originally Congressmen were all elected at-large within each state. Later, they were elected to represent districts. But when they established districts they never made residency a requirement for election.

Cost Of Dying Going Up

Granite Ledge To Raise Price Of Gravesites In Pine Hill Cemetery

By TOM HENSHAW

The cost of dying may be going up soon in Quincy.

Developers of the Pine Hill Cemetery in West Quincy have come up against an unexpectedly large ledge of granite that will raise the price of gravesites in the new cemetery in the Blue Hills.

"We won't be able to determine the price per gravesite until we're through with the newest section," said Cemetery Supt. J. Vincent Smyth. "But it will be more than we anticipated."

The current price for a single grave for two adults is $302 – $225 for the lot, $75 for perpetual care and $2 for the deed.

Six sections of the cemetery, about 10 of the 50-odd acres, that was purchased from the MDC and opened in 1966, have already been developed. A total of 2,515 lots have been sold.

Last fall, the Cemetery Board of Managers put out bids to develop Sections 7 and 8, which will add some 1,030 gravesites. It was decided to begin with Section 8.

"The Board felt that the least amount of work would have to be done there," said Smyth.

"The underlying factor is the unknown amount of ledge. You don't know until you get in. There is more ledge there than was anticipated. There was a lot of blasting.

"Before we develop Section 7 we are going to conduct test borings to determine the amount of ledge."

Actually, it was known when the city purchased the land that it was underlain with granite. Tests made in 1963 almost induced Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa to abandon the idea.

"But Quincy is not blessed with a large amount of available land," said Smyth. "The only choice was to go into the Blue Hills area. As we go deeper, we find more ledge."

Finding suitable land for cemeteries is not a problem confined to Quincy. It's a problem for most of the eastern United States.

"There is not the amount of land needed," said Smyth. "And not all the land available is suitable for burial. The cost of reclaiming some of the land, like swamps, is prohibitive.

"We're going to see a lot of crypts, mausoleums and cremations in the future, may be not in our lifetime but in the lifetimes of our children."

Bill Moves Forward

New Fore River Bridge Possible By Legislation

Fore River Bridge would be eligible for replacement under legislation now being considered by Congress to extend transportation programs presently funded under the highway trust fund, according to Congressman James A. Burke.

Burke said Congressman James Howard [D-N.J.], chairman of the House Public Works and Transportation Committee, gave his assurance of the possibility during testimony before the House Ways and Means Committee. Burke is ranking Democratic member on the Ways and Means Committee.

The bill which recently cleared the Public Works and Transportation Committee must now receive Ways and Means Committee approval because its programs are funded by federal tax money.

The Fore River bridge while structurally sound, is no longer able to handle the very large ships now being constructed by shipyards throughout the world.

It has become increasingly clear, according to Burke, that if the Fore River yard is to be competitive in years to come, the bridge must be enlarged to allow for construction of any size ship.

Federal funds for bridge construction are administered through the Federal Aid Highway Act, and while the state receives funds under this program, they have never been of sufficient magnitude to fund this replacement which is expected to be about $60 million.

At the hearing Burke asked Congressman Howard for a clarification on the replacement of bridges. He asked specifically if a bridge which is structurally sound, but on a secondary road and considered "no longer functionally modern" could be considered for replacement.

"It is my opinion that it might be eligible and we are trying to clear up that kind of situation under this term 'functionally obsolete' in the report language in the bill so that it would be," Howard said.

He also told Cong. Burke that if approved the bridge would be built with 90 percent federal funds and 10 percent state funds.

Burke said he has received assurance from Howard and the committee's chief counsel that language would be inserted in the Public Works and Transportation Committee report on this bill naming the Fore River Bridge as a candidate for replacement under the circumstances described.

Burke said that Howard's testimony and a mention of the Fore River Bridge in the committee report would be extremely important in establishing a legislative history for bridge replacement.

The Congressman cautioned the current action does not guarantee replacement of the bridge, but is a first and important step in that direction.

Skydiver Really Dove

It's A Good Jump Anytime You Can Walk Away

It was a good jump as far as Richard Murphy of North Quincy was concerned. He was able to walk away.

However, for some of those who watched there were a few heart-stopping moments as they saw the 25-year-old parachutist plummet towards earth with his unopened chute trailing behind high over O'Rourke Field, West Quincy.

About 500 feet from the ground he was able to release his emergency chute. He missed the mark, landing on a front lawn on the opposite side of the Southeast Expressway.

Murphy gathered up his chute, apologized to the startled householder, and skedaddled for the car that had followed his descent.

His three companions in the exhibition fared much better, Richard Trainor, 25, Murphy's roommate at Billings St., North Quincy, Paul Pacheco, 26, of Raynham, and Jerry Sprague 30, of Braintree, all landed safely within the ball field after the 2,500 foot drop.

The four are part of a group known as Free Fall Associates who put on sky-diving exhibitions at country fairs, store openings and other events calling for a thrill

Robert Trainor had invited them to participate in some pre-game activities to draw attention to a softball game between Trainor's Truckers and the Dee-Dees.

Sad to say the ladies from Trainor's lost the game 5-2.

COMING DOWN -- Richard Trainor, 25, of Billings St., North Quincy, floats down towards the pitcher's mound at O'Rourke Field, West Quincy, after sky-diving demonstration, while a frantic father shoos his son to safety. Trainor and three other parachutists made the jump as part of pre-game activities during meeting between Trainor's Tuckers and the Dee-Dees in softball game.

On Unclaimed Money List

She's $801.22 Richer For Reading The Sun

It pays to read The Quincy Sun.

Mrs. Gertrude M. Delorey of 30 Whiton Ave., Quincy Point, can attest to that. And today she's $801.22 richer.

The name of her husband, Francis H. Delorey, and that of his aunt, the late Laura M. Delorey, appeared on the list of 880 Quincy residents who had money due them from unclaimed funds being held by the State Treasurer's office. The list was published in last week's Quincy Sun.

Mrs. Delorey, a Quincy Sun subscriber, contacted state authorities and was able to establish the Delorey claim to the $801.22.

The Quincy Point woman acted on behalf of her 71-year-old husband who suffered a stroke last October and is still partially paralized.

According to State Treasurer Robert Q. Crane, Delorey is a passbook survivor on a joint South Shore Bank account with his aunt who died last February at a Quincy nursing home.

"It certainly came as a pleasant surprise," Mrs. Delorey said. "We have been living on Social Security and every little helps these days."

Crane's office said that the response received after the list was published in The Quincy Sun was staggering. Several more claims, from people who read The Sun, are being processed. One of them for a hitherto unclaimed $2,400.

"The phones started ringing an hour after the announcement was made, and they've been ringing off the hook ever since," Crane said.

Crane said some 2,440 more Quincy names will be announced at intervals of two to three weeks, making a total of 3,320 in the city who are owed $67,954.61 in unclaimed money.

The state treasurer said that because of the public response plans have been made to double the phone capacity at each of the unclaimed money centers throughout the state. Across the state more than $7.9 million is due to 293,000 people.

Those who find their name on a list should call 727-5192 or write to the Treasurer Robert Q. Crane, McCormack Building, Boston 02108.

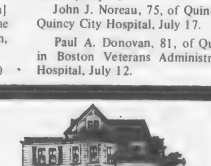
Metro Health Council To Hear Quincy, Hull Speakers

Guest speakers from Community Health Centers in Hull and Quincy will highlight the monthly meeting of the South Metro Health Council July 25 at 7:30 p.m., at Weymouth United Methodist Church, 747 Broad St., East Weymouth.

Diane Luby, director of the Manet Community Health Center in the Houghs Neck, and Lawrence Kellem, a resident of Hull and president of the Hull Medical Center, Inc., will address the special health needs of the entire South Shore community network, and suggest varied mechanisms to fulfill the goals of the South Metro Health Council.



Both Houghs Neck and Hull have recently been designated Health Manpower Shortage Areas [HMSA's] as part of the mandated work of the Health Systems Agency [HSA] for the area.

A severe shortage of primary physicians care in the two communities was the key component in the determination.

There are no Primary care physicians currently in private practice in Hull. Several physicians are employed by the Hull Health Center, but their time totals less than one full-time equivalent. Houghs Neck, a peninsula community of 10,000 isolated by the waters of Quincy Bay, has no primary care provided.

The Manet Community Health Center, a complex being built with HUD support, will need additional funding for staff and auxiliary services, while Hull Medical Center will expand and reinforce existing services.

Sheriff's Office Turns $3,861 Over To Treasurer

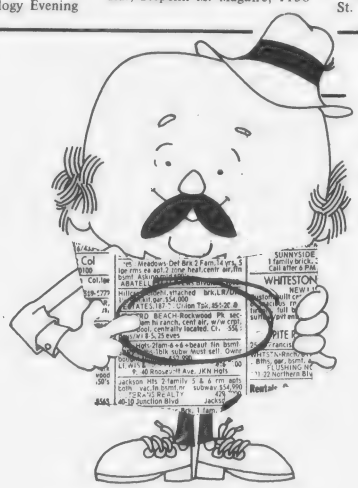
This figure represents monies received from the room and board of federal prisoners, work release room and board, and county fines.



Marshall also said that during fiscal year 1977-78, the sheriff's department turned in a total of $23,983.07 to the county treasurer. This figure represents the total of the four quarters.

Tobin Says City Hospital Not For Sale

financial problems of the hospital and see if there is some way out short of abandoning it.

"If we can put the hospital back in good financial shape we are in favor of having a municipal hospital," he said. "There are no plans by this administration to transfer, sell or burn down City Hospital."

Tobin said he has already selected a chairman for his committee, "a very prominent Quincy businessman who has expertise in finance and banking" but is otherwise engaged until the end of August.

The committee also will include City Councillor Joanne Condon, chairwoman of the hospital committee, and Asst. City Solicitor Dennis E. Harrington, who chaired the council's hospital committee last year.

There will be five to seven members in all, Tobin said, including a representative of labor, perhaps Hospital Director Anthony DeFalco, and a certified public accountant.

Meanwhile, back at the Council session...

Councillor Kelly suggested that "if the Mayor's committee can straighten out the hospital's financial affairs there would be no need to transfer it, sell it or burn it down."

Councillor Condon expressed her extreme concern over some of the comments made at the meeting.

"The last time I went to a meeting of the Hospital Board of Managers," she said, "I had to explain why we may be selling the hospital.

"There is a board of managers meeting tomorrow night and I am going to have to explain why the City Council may be considering burning the hospital down."

Councillor Stephen J. McGrath noted that the Council had entertained an identical resolve a few weeks ago and it had subsequently gotten lost.

"Just because the resolve was lost," he said, "I question whether it has to be resubmitted."

"Everyone knows it was introduced," said Harold, "but no one knows where it went."

"It never got referred any place," explained Councillor Francis X. McCauley.

"I think there is good reason for that," said Council President John J. Quinn enigmatically.

Councillor James J. Sheets moved that the Council join with the Mayor in the study of "what remediation can be done to improve the hospital so it can function more efficiently in its present status."

"This," said Councillor Daniel G. Raymondi, "is possibly the most studied issue that the city of Quincy has ever gone through."

Quinn agreed.

"They have a $10,000 study, a $25,000 study, a $35,000 study and the last paragraph of all three of them says sell the hospital for $1," he said, "and all the city councillors I ever served with have been against that."

Quinn named Councillors Condon, McGrath and John J. Lydon Jr. to work with the Mayor's committee on the hospital finances and he steered Harold's resolve into the hospital committee for study.

City's Books To Be Audited

administration of his predecessor, Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia.

Thomas F. Megan, a partner in Touche Ross, said the city is obligated by federal revenue sharing requirements to have at least one audit done in the three years following Jan. 1, 1977.

"Quincy is getting the jump on the rest of the cities in the state with this audit," said Megan.

"You are probably one of only four or five Massachusetts cities to be audited this year. Next year is the last year that can satisfy revenue sharing requirements so 36 or 37 cities will be scrambling to have audits done."

Megan said it is his understanding that "the state is working up a recommendation now that any city or town with a budget of over $20 million be audited every year."

In fact, he said, since the New York situation [near bankruptcy] there is a nationwide move to have audits done yearly.

"You might even do better on your interest rates when you float bond issues," he said, "since most banks now require more disclosure."

Megan said the city can expect a "management letter" [a formal first report] sometime in September and a full financial statement by the end of October or early November.

LoCicero Conviction Upheld

Skinner sentenced each of them to a year in jail Nov. 8 as a general deterrent to others in the matter of "hitting up public contractors...which seems to be a very serious problem."

Reppucci has served the required part of his sentence and is currently free.

LoCicero appealed but the judgement of the district court was upheld by Appellate Judges Frank Coffin, Levi Campbell and Hugh Bownes, who signed the affirmation.

Legislative Session Ends

The Massachusetts House of Representatives ended in a flurry of activity. Many pieces of important legislation were enacted by both branches and sent to the Governor's desk.

The budget was finally passed and sent to the Governor who immediately vetoed 4 sections that contained anti-abortion language. In an unprecedented move both branches over-rode the vetoes after lengthy debate.

The State Budget called for $88 million to be used for the take-over of court costs, $60 million was returned in additional local aid under the lottery formula, and $150 million was allocated for new school aid under the new educational formula. All this means that the City of Quincy will receive about $2.1 million in local aid from the State. The Budget also calls for a meals tax reduction to 5% beginning January 1.

The long delayed Court Reform Package was signed into law, the main feature is that the state will take over the court costs. The bill also provides for centralized budgeting and administration. It also calls for state control over personnel standards and transfer of judges to better utilize their services and cut case backlog.

In an attempt to give you a summary, I will list some of the more important pieces of legislation that were signed into law or sent to the Governor: 1. a bill to raise the drinking age from 18 to 19 years old. 2. a bill establishing a Massachusetts Student Assistance Authority to administer financial aid and scholarships. 3. a bill to revise the MBTA's employees arbitration rights. 4. a bill to re-organize the Dept. of Corporations and Taxation into a new Dept. of Revenue. 5. a bill to set up an Ethics Code and Commission to oversee 25,000 elected and non-elected officials.

I also had a number of pieces of legislation signed into law, the most important was a bill to allow motorists to make a Right Turn on a Red Signal Light.

If I can be of any assistance I can be reached by calling 328-0900 or in State House at 727-7035. I hold office hours Tuesday and Thursday 9 - 10 a.m. and Tuesday and Wednesday evenings 6:30 - 8:30 p.m.

Quincy At Scituate

Morrisette Hosts Wollaston Friday Under Lights

The Morrisette Legion baseball team, with a 10-4 record and tied for first place in Zone 6, will host Wollaston Friday at 8 p.m. under the lights at Adams Field and Tuesday will meet Quincy at the same time and place.

Quincy will play at Scituate Saturday and Wollaston will host Hingham at 8 Monday at Adams.

Morrisette, following two easy wins, saw its first scheduled game of the year with Braintree's Zone 6-A leaders rained out Monday night at Adams.

Quincy, which has been hot and cold all season, was blanked by Holbrook, 4-0, Sunday as it was held to four hits by Mark Taylor.

The only Quincy hits were collected by Dave McLaughlin, Rich Gilbody, Kurt O'Sullivan and losing pitcher Art Davis.

Quincy had the bases loaded with no outs in the first inning but a third to home to first double play and a ground out ended the only serious threat.

Morrisette rolled over Milton, 8-1, last Friday, as Gary Earle pitched a three-hitter and Mark Giordani went four-for-four with three RBI. He had a homer in the first inning.

Earle, who has had an outstanding year, struck out eight and walked only one as his mates gave him a 4-0 lead in the first inning.

Fran Donovan, Steve Cook, Mike McCormack, Bob Biagini and Earle had the other Morrisette hits.

Earlier in the week Morrisette battered Canton, 12-1, as John Wilkinson and Paul O'Toole combined for a three-hitter and Morrisette collected 13 hits. The winners rolled to a 9-0 lead in the first two innings.

Donovan, Billy Deitsch, Giordani and Biagini had two hits apiece and Harry Donaghue, Sal Coscia, Don Perdios, McCormack and Wilkinson had one each. Perdios had a triple and McCormack, Biagini and Deitsch all had doubles.

Quincy dropped a 5-3 decision to Braintree Friday despite another fine pitching effort by Kurt O'Sullivan, who allowed just one hit through four innings.

Quincy had a 3-0 lead after three innings but Braintree hopped on the tiring O'Sullivan for four runs in the fifth and added its final run in the sixth.

Quincy scored twice in the first on sacrifice flies by Brian Jolley and O'Sullivan and it added one in the third as Dave McLaughlin and Ron Prezioso singled, Rich Gilbody walked and Jolley hit his second sacrifice fly.

Gilbody made a spectacular diving catch to save two runs.

Earlier in the week Prezioso pitched five-hit ball as Quincy defeated Milton, 6-1.

After Milton scored its lone run in the top of the second, Quincy came back with four and added two insurance runs in the fifth.

Jolley, Dean Prescott, who caught an excellent game and made two fine catches of pop fouls; Smart, and Mark Messina collected two hits apiece and McLaughlin, Bob Roberts, Gilbody and Prezioso had one each.

MIKE KELLY of Quincy was recently awarded his second varsity baseball letter at Northeastern University. The sophomore was used in relief and showed enough potential to be a prime candidate as a starter next season. A 1976 graduate of North Quincy High, he was a three-year letter winner in football and baseball. He captained both teams his senior year.

Mariners Host Braintree White Sox Sunday

The Quincy Bay Mariners, boasting a 10-6 record and making a serious bid to make the South Coastal Baseball League playoffs, will host the Braintree White Sox Sunday at 2 at Adams Field.

Tuesday they will be home to Randolph Town Team at 6 at Adams.

The Mariners, in third place, edged Abington, 7-6, Sunday, after finding former Boston Red Sox pitcher Darrell Brandon too much for them in their previous game.

Brandon, raising his record to 6-1, pitched the Whitman Colonials to a 3-1 win over Quincy and lowered his ERA to an amazing 0.86.

Brandon, who pitched for the Sox from 1966-1969, retired from the Mexican League in 1975 and is proving this summer he still has something left in his arm. Preston Carroll was the only Mariner to have more than one hit off the former major leaguer, who struck out eight and pitched shutout ball for six innings. An unearned run spoiled his shutout bid.

In their previous games the Mariners, who have been having pitching problems, edged Randolph, 8-7, and lost to Plymouth, 7-2.

Quincy Co-op Edges Quincy Savings, 10-9

Quincy Co-op edged Quincy Savings, 10-9, in the International Babe Ruth League with Mike Donovan the winning pitcher. After Savings had scored a run in the first, Co-op exploded for seven runs in the second on hits by Pat Connolly, Richie Joyce and Gary Connolly and five bases on balls. Savings tied it up with six in the third. With the score tied in the seventh, Steve Turner walked, Gerry Connolly singled and Frank Maloney bunted safely to fill the bases. Dan Murphy walked to force in the winning run.

Tuff-Kote blanked South Boston Savings, 6-0, behind the four-hit pitching of winner Tim Ryan and Sam LaValle. Dave Clifford pitched well in defeat. Tuff-Kote scored three runs in the fifth and three in the seventh.

Glenn Morrissey and Bob Heffernan had two hits apiece for the winners, while Jim Coulter, Billy Doyle, Ryan and LaValle had one each. Gary Durante hit a key triple and he and Heffernan made several fine fielding plays. Bill Clifford, Bill Shumaker, Joe Cerelli and Ed Doherty had the hits for So. Boston.

St. Joseph's C Girls Clinch Division Title

St. Joseph's CYO Cadet C girls softball team clinched the Division One championship Sunday with a 12-6 win over St. Francis A.

Janine LaFleur pitched five-hit ball and struck out eight. Mary Travers continued to swing a hot bat as she went three for four and had four RBI. Joyce McLaughlin was three for three and Mary McBride went two for three.

Janine Glavin made a spectacular shoestring catch and Jackie Glavin and Tricia Travers also made big plays in the field.

STALLING ON THE HIGHWAY

One of the most dangerous emergencies on today's super highways is the stalled car. To prevent stalls, or if you are driving a car that stalls, here's what the experts recommend.

While your car still has momentum, coast immediately to the shoulder. Don't waste precious time trying to get the engine started again - get off the road!

If you can't reach the shoulder, turn your hazard flashers on. Light your other rear lights and have someone wave down traffic.

Stalls are often caused by a dirty carburator. One way to prevent this is to add a liquid carburator cleaner to your gas tank. This will clean the carburator while you drive.

Any unusual sound in your engine should be investigated and corrected before you get into traffic.

Remember, planning for emergencies can often prevent them from happening.

Key Acquisitions

Give Sullivan Credit For Red Sox Surge

By TOM SULLIVAN
Quincy Sun Writer

The Red Sox are sitting pretty in the American League's Eastern Division and it doesn't appear anyone can catch them this year.

The Sox are running away with the Eastern Division race and the man responsible is Executive Vice President and General Manager Haywood Sullivan.

Sullivan made some outstanding acquisitions during the off season via the free agent draft and some excellent trades.

Boston this season has probably the best bench in the league and this is a major factor in the team rolling up an eight-game lead at this writing.

Sullivan strengthened the pitching corps with the addition of Mike Torrez, Dennis Eckersley and Tom Burgmeier, but probably the best additions have been those of Jerry Remy and Jack Brohamer.

Remy is the best second baseman Boston has had in some time and gives the team some much needed speed.

Brohamer has done a tremendous job of filling in for Butch Hobson as well as taking over for Remy on occasions at second.

Brohamer, Frank Duffy, Bob Bailey and Fred Kendall, all new to the team this season, give the Sox an outstanding bench. Whenever a starter has been injured, Manager Don Zimmer has been able to substitute without weakening the team, something he couldn't do in the past.

We still don't rate Zimmer with the top managers in the league but, with his outstanding bench strength, he has been able to keep the Sox well in front.

Everything has been going right for the Sox, the pitching has been strong, the team leads the league in batting and the defense has been sound.

Jim Rice is one of the most exciting hitters in baseball. Fred Lynn is giving Rod Carew a battle for the batting championship. Yaz is having one of his better seasons and Rick Burleson is having another banner year at shortstop. Also, Dwight Evans is having a great year, with the best arm in the league and he has reached a career high in home runs.

All in all, it looks like an Eastern Division title for the Sox, although the second half of the season could be much tougher than the first, and Haywood Sullivan can take a bow for this year's achievements.

Thanks to his moves, the Sox are sure to set an attendance record this summer, which will be something after they set a new mark last year.

Harvey's Hosts Veterans On Fishing Trip

Nearly 100 hospitalized veterans are off for Boston Harbor today [Thursday] to fish on the annual veterans' day sponsored by Harvey's Salt Water Fishing Club of Houghs Neck.

The vets, accompanied by doctors and nurses, are scheduled to leave Hurley's Wharf at 10 a.m. aboard 15 to 20 boats, escorted by Coast Guard and Quincy and Weymouth police boats.

They will return at 2 p.m. for a roast beef dinner.

Expected to make the trip were 60 veterans from the Soldiers Home in Chelsea and 30 amputee veterans from the Veterans Administration Hospital in Brockton.

Frank Locke is the chairman of the committee.

St. Joseph's Girls B Team Wins Division 2 Title

St. Joseph's CYO Girls' B Softball Team finished undefeated and won the Division Two championship with a 20-1 breeze over Blessed Sacrament.

Karen Corliss pitched four-hit ball and all the girls contributed offensively as they collected 24 hits and also played excellent defense.

Pattie McBride collected six hits, Sheila Mahoney had five and Corliss had four.

The St. Joseph's B team earlier had paraded over St. Francis B, 28-4, with Corliss again the winning pitcher. McBride and Corliss had five hits apiece and Mahoney had three.

St. Joseph's also gained a forfeit win over St. Francis B.

St. Joseph's B edged St. John's B, 11-9, with Corliss the winner. McBride and Corliss had three hits apiece, Beth Fitzgerald and Carla DiTullio two each and Tracy White, Joanna McBride and Tracey Magoun one each.

Her hobbies include racquet ball, skiing, tennis, and knitting.

Naborhood Romps, 25-13

The Naborhood Pharmacy softball team improved its Over the Hill League record to 6-5 with a 25-13 romp over Maffeo Club last Friday. It is tied for second place.

Dr. Allan Yacubian, Pete Frederickson and Jim Green hit home runs. Doug MacLean had four hits, John Muldowney had three, Jim Green, Dave Cullen, Jim Cocce, Bob Conley, Jack Silverstein, Yacubian, Paul Erler, John Valente and Frederickson two apiece.

Naborhood earlier had edged St. Clare's, 11-10, as Jack Callahan, Cocce and Conley had three hits each. Silverstein and Erler pitched for Naborhood and each had a big night at bat, Erler having a bases loaded triple and Silverstein collecting two hits and driving in three runs. Nick Oscoco and Frederickson had two hits apiece and Valente sparkled behind the plate.

Cocce, Yacubian, Conley and Erler were selected to play in the league's all-star game Sunday and Erler pitched two innings of shutout ball for the National League, which won, 13-8. Cocce alternated at shortstop and had two hits and a walk, Conley had a single and a walk and three RBI and Erler had a single and walk and one RBI.

Milton Woman Stabbed To Death Outside Quincy Nursing Home

A 22-year-old social worker was stabbed to death by a former male acquaintance as she reported for work at the Quincy Nursing Home, 11 McGrath Hwy., Quincy, about 8:45 a.m., Monday.

Shelley A. Rotman, 130 Alfred Rd., Milton, was viciously attacked and stabbed a number of times as she approached the rear door of the nursing home. Fellow employees who had witnessed the attack, tried to go to her aid but were unable to open the door against which her body had fallen. She was pronounced dead on arrival at Quincy City Hospital.

Dennis L. Gould, 26, of Hawden Rd., Worcester, was taken into custody and ordered held without bail on a murder charge when arraigned in Quincy District Court. Judge Albert Kramer entered an innocent plea in Gould's behalf.

He was ordered to Bridgewater State Hospital for 20 days observation and tests to determine if he is mentally fit to stand trial. Police said he has a history of mental illness and has previously been confined to a mental hospital.

Police said Gould has known Miss Rotman for several years and in February he appeared before the court and was ordered to stay away from the victim.

According to Quincy Police Capt. Fred Tighe the accused assailant waited in his car outside the nursing home until Miss Rotman approached.

Gould, who has only one arm, followed his victim and stabbed her repeatedly with a six-inch hunting knife, Tighe said.

Gould walked away from the victim and then returned to stab her several more times as she lay on the pavement, according to Tighe. The assailant left the knife imbedded in her chest, Tighe said.

Gould made no attempt to flee and was sitting on a nearby wall when police arrived to arrest him.

Tighe said that the police do not know how Gould lost his right arm.

McDonough Residency Challenge Goes Before Ballot Law Commission

Following a two-hour public hearing the State Ballot Law Commission on Monday took under advisement the objections of Quincy Atty. William B. Golden alleging Patrick J. Sonny McDonough does not meet constitutional residency requirements to be a candidate for the Governor's Council.

Golden, a Democratic candidate for the Governor's Council Fourth District, is seeking to unseat McDonough who has been on the Council for 31 years and has rarely been opposed for re-election.

The 29-year-old Golden claims that McDonough has been domiciled in Florida for at least one year and, therefor, is not an "inhabitant" of Massachusetts as required by the Constitution.

He also alleges that the 67-year-old McDonough maintains no legal residence or domicile in Boston, Massachusetts, and legally should not be permitted to call himself a Boston resident on the ballot.

Rep. William F. Galvin [D-Brighton], counsel for McDonough, showed the commission documents which lists 135 Granite Ave., Boston as McDonough's home for tax purposes, for registering his car and for voting purposes. The Governor's Councillor admitted he spent only a dozen or so nights at this address during the year.

Golden contends that if McDonough has any residence in this state it is in Scituate where he maintains a summer home.

Prior to the hearing McDonough described the suit as "a cheap political trick, this is more of a lying contest than a political contest."

The Commission said it would make a ruling by next Monday.

Golden has said "regardless of the Commission's decision, the voters should know that McDonough is not for practical purposes a resident of Boston."

He said he plans to make a campaign issue out of the residence question. He added he will also speak out on McDonough's attendance at Council meetings, contending the Councillor was absent last year from nine out of 15 council votes to confirm the governor's nominations for judgeships.

Norfolk Labor Council Endorses McCarthy, Tobin

The Norfolk County Labor Council, representing 13,000 men and women on the South Shore, has endorsed Pat McCarthy, Democratic candidate for Congress from the 11th District.

In addition to endorsing McCarthy the Norfolk County group gave its blessings to Quincy Mayor Arthur H. Tobin for state senate; Robert Cerasoli and Robert Ambler for state representatives, and Patrick J. Sonny McDonough for Governor's Councillor.

On the state ticket endorsement was given Sen. Edward Brooke for re-election; Edward J. King for governor, and Mayor David K. Crosby of Brockton for secretary of state.

The council also gave its approval to the candidacies of Congressmen Jerry Studds, Joseph Moakley, and Margaret Heckler.

Brian Donnelly Endorsed By Locals 103, 1726

Brian Donnelly, seeking the Democratic nomination for the seat being vacated by Congressman James A. Burke [D-Milton] has been endorsed by Local 103 International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, and Local 1726, International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers.

Joseph McDonough Nomination Papers Challenged

The nomination papers of Joseph P. McDonough for Congress have been challenged by Thomas A. Sullivan who lives at 7 West Glow St., Dorchester.

Sullivan's complaint to the State Ballot Law Commission charges that more than 700 of the 2,352 signatures gathered by McDonough's workers are "unauthorized, forged or fraudulent."

A candidate needs 2,000 signatures to get his or her name on the ballot.

McDonough, a longtime Quincy lawyer, recently moved his voting address from West Quincy to Hyde Park.

COSMETIC SURGERY

How much should an owner spend to get his property ready for sale? If it's a relatively small amount for improving appearance, fine - but think twice before investing large sums into making extensive improvements prior to putting your house up for sale.

The chances of getting the money back in a correspondingly higher sales price are remote. Depending on the nature of the improvements, the recovery historically runs from 10 cents to 50 cents on every dollar spent.

The exception to the rule is what we call "cosmetic treatment". If the property looks run down, then a paint and paper job once over lightly may be prudent. But it's a whole new ball game when you start with extensive repairs and remodeling.

The best solution is to discuss your situation with PRESIDENT REAL ESTATE. You may find that you can sell the house faster, with more profit and less inconvenience by dropping the price about the same amount you expected to spend on repairs.

Whether buying or selling, turn to Realty World - President Real Estate for all your real estate needs.

Tobin Proclaims 'Sidewalk Bazaar Days'

Quincy retailers need and deserve wholehearted support Mayor Tobin urged in proclaiming today [Thursday], Friday and Saturday "Sidewalk Bazaar Days" in Quincy and calling on all to participate and support the gala three-day festival.

The text of the proclamation:

WHEREAS, the American standard of living is recognized as the highest in the world and is due, in great part, to the abundance and high quality of the products of our competitive enterprise system and their forthright identification by trademarks submitted for the free choice of the consuming public, and

WHEREAS, the American tradition of independent enterprise is as old as our society itself and from humble beginnings small business has grown into one of the principal economic forces in this, the world's greatest industrial nation, and

WHEREAS, if downtown Quincy retailers are to realize their full potential in the years ahead, they need and deserve wholehearted support from the citizens in the business community as a whole as well as the strong encouragement it already receives from national organizations and the local government, and

WHEREAS, Quincy Square retailers are joining this week with various civic and business groups in providing the citizens of Quincy and the South Shore unsurpassed retailing opportunities,

NOW, THEREFORE, I, Arthur H. Tobin, Mayor of the City of Quincy, do hereby proclaim July 20, 21, and 22, 1978 as and encourage all citizens and public organizations to join with me during this week in paying tribute to the accomplishments of small business in helping it toward continued strength and success.

In the photos of the Fourtn of July celebrations appearing in the July 13 issue of The Sun Christopher Barry, one of the winners in the "Horribles Contest" at Pageant Field, Wollaston, was mistakenly identified as Christine Barry.

Sorry, Chris, the gun-totin' pirate on the right unnerved the caption writer.

We're paying our highest interest rates ever.

For the long run. If you've got some money to put away and earn our highest rates ever, try our Old Colony Eight-Year Certificates. With as little as $1,000 you can earn 7¾% for an effective annual yield of 8.17%.*

For the short run. If you've got $10,000 or more and you don't want to tie up your money for a long time, our Six Month Savings Certificates pay U.S. Treasury Bill rates. (Maximum deposit is $150,000.) The interest rate you earn depends on the rate of Treasury Bills issued immediately prior to purchase date. (On July 3, the rate was 7.447% for an effective annual yield of 7.842%.)

Then at the end of 6 months, you can renew your certificate at the new prevailing rate or transfer your funds to an Old Colony NOW Account—an interest bearing checking account. Or simply withdraw your funds.

For the long run. Or the short run. Either way, fill out the coupon or drop in to any office of Old Colony. And start earning our highest interest rates ever.

Quincy Savings Bank

The six million dollar man.

It's Josiah Quincy, Jr., founder of cooperative banking in Massachusetts. He's the man for whom our bank was named. The six million dollars is what Quincy Cooperative Banks' depositors received in interest for the year ending April 29, 1978. This tremendous dividend payout is just one of the reasons why more and more people open accounts with us every year. Come talk with us. We'll give you a whole lot more.

Six million dollars paid to our depositors...

Josiah would have liked that.

Seeks $10 Million Damage

City Wins First Round In Battle Against Jet Noise

By TOM HENSHAW

Quincy won a preliminary round Tuesday in its fight with Massport over airplane noise.

Judge Joseph Ford in Suffolk Superior Court ordered Massport to appear today [Thursday] at 10 a.m. to show cause why it should not be enjoined from recommending takeoffs from Runway 22 at Logan Airport.

"It's a victory," said Mayor and Sen. Arthur Tobin, who appeared in court personally in support of the suit.

"The biggest thing is that we are getting Massport to appear before the bar.

"It means that Judge Ford found that our complaints had a basis in fact."

The city's suit also asks $10 million in compensation for the damage airplane noise has caused to the real property values in Quincy and its effect on future development.

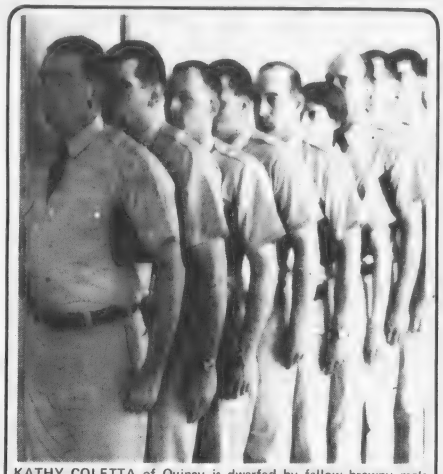
The suit charges that Massport violated state law in failing to file environmental forms or reports prior to recommending traffic patterns over Quincy to the Federal Aviation Administration.

Meanwhile, Reps. Michael W. Morrissey and James A. Sheets [D-Quincy] were going ahead with plans for a public hearing on airplane noise Aug. 9 at 8 p.m. at the Vo-Tech School gym.

Scheduled to appear at the hearing are David Davis, director of Massport, and Robert Whittington, newly named regional director of the FAA.

A public meeting has been called for tonight [Thursday] at 8 p.m. in City Hall to map strategy for the Aug. 9 hearing.

By way of background:



Aircraft taking off from Logan Airport's Runway 22 used to fly out at 210 degrees before turning west over South Boston and Dorchester to join the regional patterns.

Last May 1, in response to complaints from residents of Southie, Massport recommended that the FAA change the heading to 195 degrees, bringing the planes over Squantum and North Quincy.

On June 15, under a barrage of angry phone calls from North Quincy, Massport asked the FAA to make another change in pattern, this time to 180 degrees, over Wollaston and Merrymount.

Two weeks ago, Massport told a group of protesting

The State Trooper Is A Lady!

By PETER BARNICLE

If you happen to be hauled to the side of the road by the State Police while driving along Route 128 try not to look surprised if the trooper who shows up beside your car is an attractive young lady with sparkling brown eyes.

Trooper Kathleen Coletta is a far cry from the image of the burly, broad-shouldered state trooper most people have, but she is a full-fledged member of the force.

Kathy, a West Quincy resident, has the distinction of being the only member of her sex to graduate with 83 men early this month after completing a rigorous 20-week course at the State Police Academy in Framingham.

Eight women reported on the first day, seven dropped out during the first week. One came back the second week and lasted only a few days.

"The physical training was the most difficult," Kathy recalls. "I didn't have much notice before I went into the Academy. I was smoking too much and I had never run, so it took me a while to get into shape. But they see that you do that in short order.

"It was all brand new to me," Kathy said. She admits that beyond gymnastics in school and some casual tennis she is not particularly athletically inclined.

Kathy, just turned 24, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerard A. Coletta, 96 Gardiner Rd, West Quincy. Her father is chief executive assistant to Norfolk County Dist. Atty. William Delahunt.

She is a 1972 graduate of Quincy High School and received her bachelor's degree from the University of Massachusetts at Amherst in 1976. She majored in English and her minor was sociology.

Following her graduation she was employed for two months as secretary to Judge Robert M. Ford of the Norfolk County Probate Court at Dedham.

Then she went to work in the payroll office at State

Pilot Program Now Permanent

Pregnant Students And Young Mothers Can Complete High School

The Quincy School Committee has voted to continue as a permanent part of the school department's programs a pilot project developed to assist pregnant students and young mothers complete their high school education.

The committee approved the program unanimously after hearing a report on progress made during the three months the program operated last spring.

Dr. Carol Lee Griffin, director of pupil personnel services, told the board that prior to the start of the pilot program teen-age pregnant girls and young mothers either dropped out of school or were tutored at home.

Dr. Linda M. Shapiro, school psychologist, and Elizabeth S. Hawes, a teacher, worked with Dr. Griffin in acquainting girls who might be interested.

Bethany Church, directly across from Quincy High School provided space for the program. The South Shore Chapter of the Junior League of Boston, a voluntary service organization, has agreed to pay half of the $3,000 rental to the church. The chapter has also committed itself to developing curricula and providing materials for courses specifically geared to the needs of young parents.

Seven girls signed up for the pilot program, one later moved from Quincy. In the upcoming school year the program will have 15 students starting off.

Dr. Griffin reported that in a preliminary survey Dr. Shapiro found 22 teenagers, 18 or younger, who were pregnant or had children under two and had not finished high school.

"This list is by no means exhaustive," she reported. "Statistics compiled by SIDEWALK BAZAAR on Hancock St., Quincy, attracted large crowds despite the sizzling temperatures in the mid-90's. Shoppers thronged the outdoor booths and racks along the street to look over and buy the many bargains displayed by Quincy's downtown merchants.

[Quincy Sun Photos by Steve Grochowski]

Despite The Heat

Downtown Sidewalk Bazaar A Big Success

"Fantastic!" exclaimed Burt Cook, proprietor of Tags Discount Furniture and Sleep Shop. "We were jammed for three days, literally jammed. I've never seen anything like it!"

Cook's reaction was the most enthusiastic but other Quincy Center merchants expressed similar feelings about the Downtown Quincy Sidewalk Bazaar, sponsored last Thursday, Friday and Saturday by the Center Business and Professional Association.

In fact, most businessmen regarded the turnout of shoppers who mobbed the canopied booths on the Hancock St. mall as phenominal in view of the near-100 degree heat of the three days.

"I thought we were going to be goners because of the hot weather," said Cook, "but we were just bombed the whole three days.

"Friday night we didn't get out of the store until 10:30 p.m. We just couldn't get out the door. Saturday, it was right up to the gun, 5:30 p.m."

Cook attributed a large role in the success of the Bazaar to a 20-page advertising supplement that appeared in The Quincy Sun and The Patriot Ledger.

The tabloid was produced by The Quincy Sun for the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association.

"I thought it was very good," said Charles Ryder, owner of Ryder's Curtains and Drapes. "It was better than last year. The heat was an adverse factor but we were very pleased.

"Thursday was our best day trafficwise but Saturday wound up very good, too. I don't know what we'd do without the Sidewalk Bazaar in July."

"Friday night could not have been a better night," said John Kerrigan, proprietor of Baskin-Robbins Ice Cream Store. "I could not have taken care of any more business.

"I know what you're thinking but the heat wasn't any benefit to me. When it is that hot, consumption of food is down considerably, any kind of food.

"A hundred degrees is too hot for ice cream. Eighty five to ninety degrees is perfect weather. Your cone doesn't melt on you too fast."

"As far as I'm concerned it was a success," said Richard Barker, President of the QCBPA and owner of Barker's, "although I'm sure it would have been better if it hadn't been so hot. A lot of people got the urge to go to the beach."

"Business was good," agreed Jason Feldman of Jason's. "It would have been better but for the heat. But without the Bazaar we would have died for the whole weekend."

"It wasn't too bad," said Ken Tessatore, assistant manager of Woolworth's, who was experiencing his first Sidewalk Bazaar. "The weather held it down but it was good for business. It got everybody together.

"It would have been better if we had some more entertainment up at this end of the street. Thursday night they had a five-piece band in front of Lerner's and that seemed to be it."

Irving Kerman of Kustom TV didn't detect any increase in business "due to the weather and the fact that we're not on Hancock St.," but he thought the three-day Bazaar worth continuing.

"It gets people to know that there are merchants in the Square and it creates interest in the Square," he said. "From that standpoint alone it's worth continuing.

"We had a bad break in that the weather was so oppressive. I don't think I'd go up to the Square in that heat and I wouldn't blame anybody if they didn't want to go out."

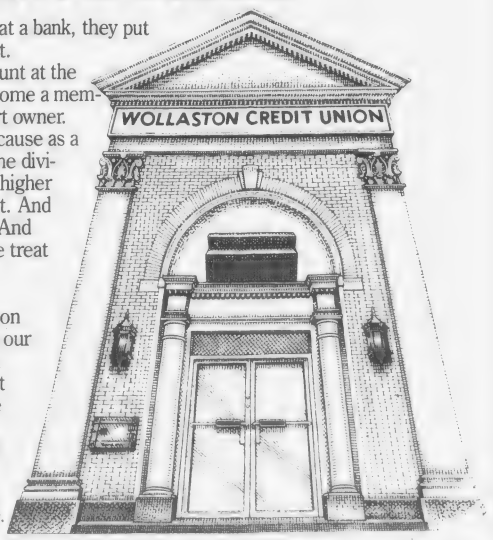
When you open an account at a bank, they put your money away and that's that.



But when you open an account at the Wollaston Credit Union you become a member of the credit union and a part owner.

One more thing.

Seeks 4th Senate Term

Real Issue Is Who Can Do Most For District, Says Tobin

By TOM HENSHAW

Mayor-Sen. Arthur H. Tobin [D-Quincy], to the surprise of no one, announced his candidacy for a fourth full term in the State Senate Tuesday.

And, to the surprise of everyone, he had a good word to say about his opponent, City Councillor Paul D. Harold.

"He's a nice young fellow," said Tobin, harking back to the bitterness and name-calling that featured his campaign for Mayor against Joseph J. LaRaia last year.

"It was a nightmare, that campaign," said Tobin. "That's not the case this time. It's a tribute to the individual who is running. It's not in his makeup.

"The mayoralty campaign was not fought on the issues. It was on personalities. This campaign is being conducted on the issues. My opponent thinks he has an issue..."

And, with that, Tobin proceeded to try to demolish that issue, which is the fact that he holds two jobs, mayor and state senator.

"The question is not the number of jobs," he said. "The question is whether the senator occupying the seat is doing the job and solving problems for the people.

"If that is all that my opponent can say against me after 13 years in public office, that I hold two jobs, then I'm going to rest my case right there."

But he didn't.

"The real issue of the campaign," said Tobin, "is which candidate can do more for the district.

"The Norfolk Senatorial District [which includes Braintree, Avon and Holbrook, as well as Quincy] is most fortunate to have a senator who serves in several prestigious positions.

"I am the ranking member of the Senate Ways and Means Committee and I am the chairman of the Committee on Bills in Third Reading. I okay all bills that flow onto the floor for debate.

"No freshman legislator could ever serve on these prestigious committees, so there is a lot at stake here."

Tobin assailed Harold's promise that, if elected, he would resign as a member of the City Council and devote his full time to the job of state senator.

"Let me tell you the fallacy of this fulltime stuff," he said. "The legislature has already prorogued in the month of July. So what he's telling you is that he's going to be fulltime for six months.

"It's a play on words and I don't think the people of this district are gullible enough to accept it."

Tobin acknowledged that he has held two jobs almost from the start of his political career, one with the city and the other with the state.

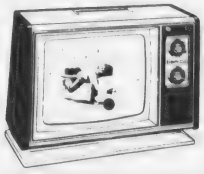
After an initial defeat for the City Council from Ward 1 in 1963, he was elected State Rep in 1966 and won an at-large seat on the Council a year later.

He moved up to State Senator in 1971, winning a special election after the resignation of James R. McIntyre. He was elected Mayor last fall.

A graduate of Boston College and Suffolk Law School, he lives at 58 Huntly Rd, Quincy Center, with his wife, Shirley, and their seven children.

Donnelly Endorsed By State, Brockton Labor Councils

Rep. Brian J. Donnelly [D-Dorchester-Milton] has received two more labor endorsements for his bid to succeed Cong. James A. Burke [D-Milton] in the 11th Congressional District.



Donnelly was the only non-incumbent to receive the backing of the 600,000-member State Labor Council, AFL-CIO, which has some 75,000 members in the district.

The Brockton Central Labor Council, representing 28 unions and more than 20,000 workers in the Brockton area, also voted to endorse Donnelly over seven other Democratic primary candidates.

Stay Alive!

By Jack Silverstein

AVOID BEING A FIRE STATISTIC

Every year some 300,000 people are injured by fire. Fortunately, you can help keep your family out of these statistics. Just practice a few basic fire emergency procedures.

Be sure everyone knows at least 2 ways out of every room in the house. Don't open the door if it is hot. If you must run through smoke, stay close to the ground and cover your mouth and nose.

Install a smoke alarm. One alarm monitors the air 24 hours a day and sounds a piercing horn when smoke reaches it. A prime location is within 20 feet of each bedroom. Battery operated alarms are easy to install, and they operate even if there's a power failure.

Make sure family members get out of the house as soon as the alarm sounds and meet in a central place a safe distance from the house. After counting heads, notify the fire department from a neighbor's house. Once outside, stay out. Don't go back into the burning building.

Money aside, a savings account still makes sense.

Read why.

Most of the people who write about money agree that a savings plan is as important today as ever. Along with some life insurance (low-cost Savings Bank Life Insurance, say), they'll tell you that a regular savings program still is an essential part of financial success. Why?

There are many reasons, of course. Some you've heard before and will again, because they're logical. For instance, who can disagree that it's very reassuring to have cash available whenever it's needed? In this age of go-now-pay-later, it's easy to overlook the fact that savings really make a difference when you go to spend them.

But think about the not-so-obvious reasons. Consider, for one, certainty of return on your money. Both for short and long-range goals, it's nice to know what to expect. Nice to know that the amount you're putting aside is earning more money, not fluctuating or even decreasing.

Particularly for such easy-to-predict expenses as education or a home (including condominiums and second homes), you're certain to have what you'll need, with a regular savings program. The money will be there when you want it. For sure.

Also think about this. Whenever you're able to buy something with cash, out of savings, you have greater purchasing power. When you go on a cash diet, here's what happens.

First, your savings may earn interest for you, at least 5.25% annually. Then, for every purchase you don't put on a charge card, you may save between 12 and 18% interest annually.

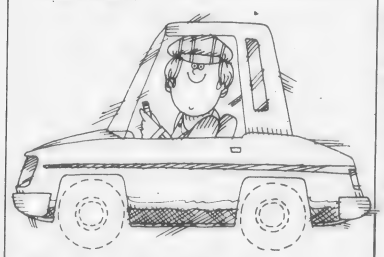
Keep that arithmetic in mind as you go on to these other reasons a savings account makes so much sense.

Pursue your own interests.



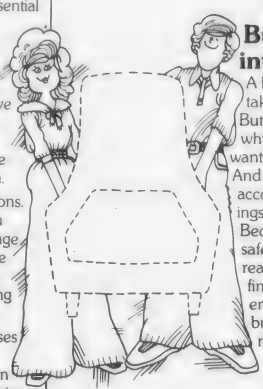
If your interest is an expensive new camera, it doesn't take too many paydays to save for one. By putting aside about $40 a month for a year, you can pay cash (which means you actually pay less for more camera). And with our added interest, you may have enough extra to buy yourself an accessory bag. Which makes pursuing your own interests very worthwhile.

Now you're getting somewhere.

If your travel plans don't quite seem to work out, maybe what you need first is a savings plan. A modest one will do, say a goal of $1000. Once you know where you're trying to go financially, you can get there by putting aside less than $100 a month.

You're sure to have the money that way. And equally sure to enjoy your next vacation much more, knowing it's paid for in advance. And your money may earn enough extra for a new suitcase.

Moving right along now.



You have a lot of options with a savings account. One is some safety features, because your deposits are insured in full. Another is the ability to buy more car the next time. Because with cash you eliminate interest payments which cost you money you can use instead toward the purchase price. With a savings plan of less than $100 a month, in other words, you're sure to move toward your goal. Sure to have the money you want, as long as you keep going. With the added interest we'll show, you can also buy some extras like radials, too.

Six for a dollar.

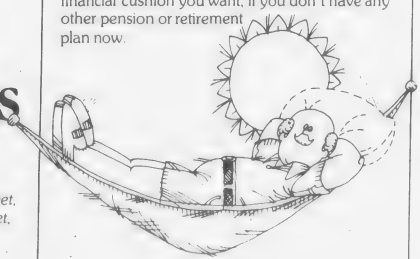
For your savings dollar, and many other bank services (including Pay-by-Phone), Quincy Savings Bank has six REDi-BANK™ offices thisclose to you.

Five of our six offices also have Plus/24 automatic teller machines, for 'round the clock banking convenience, with a REDi-CASH/VEC card.

People have always said that we're pretty close with a dollar. They're right. We are.

Building with interest.

A home of your own takes a lot of money. But it's also a worthwhile goal. One you want to be sure you reach. And it's why a savings account at Quincy Savings Bank makes sense. Because it's still the safest, surest way to reach any important financial goal. With enough left over to buy yourself some new furniture.



A cost of thousands.

Education costs thousands of dollars today. Tomorrow it will cost even more. So producing tuition money when you need it requires planning ahead. And if you'll start while your child is still young, Quincy Savings Bank can play an important role. Because, with a Certificate of Deposit, the money you put aside may be worth almost twice as much in less than 10 years. That's a pretty dramatic example of the value of a savings plan.

Save it for later.

An Individual Retirement Account at Quincy Savings Bank makes a lot of sense, too. Not only do you get a federal tax-exemption now; you get more money later. To supplement your Social Security. To make your retirement years more relaxing. If you qualify, you can put up to $1,500 a year in an IRA account and you may have the financial cushion you want, if you don't have any other pension or retirement plan now.

Kathy Mann 'Nervous, Excited'

Winning Miss Quincy Bay Title 'Like Big Dream'

By PETER BARNICLE

Kathleen Mann, 17, of 181 Babcock St., Houghs Neck, was acclaimed Miss Quincy Bay of 1978 in competition with 37 other lovely South Shore young ladies in the beauty pageant held in downtown Quincy on Friday evening.

"I was nervous, very nervous - but excited," Kathy said in recalling the moment she was escorted to the stage by Robert Mortali, commodore of the Wessagussett Yach Club.

The vivacious brunette said the whole thing is like a dream, but she is looking forward to her reign as queen of Quincy Race Week, Aug. 2-6.

This was her first beauty pageant and she entered it only on the urging of a number of friends.

"Some of them have been coaxing me for the past two years, but I couldn't get up the courage to enter," she said. "The first year I felt I was too young and last year it was just that I didn't think I could face it."

This year she had several classmates in the contest to bolster her spirits and "I didn't feel so much alone," she said.

Kathy, going into her senior year at Quincy High School, hesitated when asked if she planned to enter any beauty pageants in the future.

Her classmate, Suan O'Sullivan, 17, of 62 South St., Quincy Point, thinks it would be a great idea and has already started a campaign to persuade her.

Kathy, however, hopes to go on to college and study psychology so that she can work with retarded children. At the same time she admits a strong interest in ballet and the theater.

She is active in Summer Scene and her cheering section from the cast nearly missed the pageant because of a dress rehearsal.

They arrived just in time to hear Kathy answer the question: "What would you do if you were Mayor of Quincy for a day?"

Kathy said she would give top priority to air pollution and seek some way to make Quincy clean for the tourists who come to visit the historic sites and for the people who live here.

After being crowned by Teresa Jean McElaney, Miss Quincy Bay of 1977, Kathy was presented a trophy by Pat Jones, chairman of the pageant. She also received a bouquet of carnations on behalf of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association.

On Saturday evening, still excited by the thrill of winning the contest, Kathy went on stage in two of the three one-act plays presented by Summer Scene at the Broad Meadows Junior High School.

She played the role of Perette, an elf, in the fantasy "The Lost Kiss" and appeared as Julie in a drama entitled "Games".

She is active in Page and Stage, the Quincy High School drama club, and would like to become involved in theater work.

"It would be wonderful if I could continue theater activity and study psychology at the same time," she said.

Kathy is the daughter of Mrs. Marilyn Mann and has two brothers, John, 11, and Michael, 8. During the summer vacation she is working parti-time at Remick's.

First runner-up in the competition was Michelle Rene Lowney, 16, of 80 Whittier Rd, Milton; second runner-up, Cheryl Waters, 17, 367 Mayflower Cir., Hanover; third, Gale Lotterhand, 18, 210 West Water St., Rockland; fourth, Cecilia Norton, 20, 5 Glendale St., Weymouth.

Other entrants included:

Johnna F. Brandt 16, Hanover; Mary Eileen Brown 20, North Weymouth; Deborah A. Crawshaw 20, Weymouth; Patricia Anne Daly 18, Hingham; Robin Dolph 25, 195 Upland Rd, Quincy; Diane M. Galiano 17, Weymouth; Sandra Faye Goodman 23, 112 Greenleaf St., Quincy; Maureen Hatfield 20, 237 South Central Ave., Wollaston; Jody A. Hewett 19, Braintree; Mary L. Hewett 17, Braintree; Nancy J. Hultman 17, North Weymouth; Terrie Lee Jeffrey 17, Weymouth; Susan M. Jennette 18, 2 Thompson St., Quincy Point; Barbara Ann McCollum 17, 43 Crosby St., Houghs Neck.

Maura C. McCormick 18, 93 Bigelow St., Quincy; Susan M. Meek 19, Milton; Carole A. Messina 18, 10 Appleton St., North Quincy, Donna M. Mortali 18, Weymouth; Helen Marie Nee 19, 33 Prospect St., North Quincy; Charlene A. Nicholson 19, 50 Quarterdeck Rd, Germantown; Noreen T. O'Malley 17, 70 Payne St., South Quincy; Christine M. O'Rourke 17, 127 Prospect Ave., Wollaston; Marie E. Pimentel 17, 30 Charlesmount Ave., Quincy Point; Lorell A. Putnam 17, 602 South St., Quincy Point; Laura A. Riley 16, 23 Marine St., Quincy; Amber Elaine Roberts 24, Weymouth; Anita M. Ross 25, Hingham; Patricia M. Saxonis 16, Milton; Joan Marie St. Angelo 17, 14 Sextant Circle, Germantown; Jayne Marie Steidle 16, Randolph; Joan Lee Usher 17, 9 Ellis St., West Quincy; Ellen J. Valcourt 16, 9 Dale Ave., South Quincy; June D. VanDine 16, 12 Jewett St., Adams Shore.

Karen Nunley, 16, of Milton, and Gayle L. Sforza, 16 of 15 Craig Ave., Quincy Point, withdrew as contestants.

ALL SMILES -- Michelle Rene Lowney [left], 16, of Milton, breaks into radiant smile as judges announce she is first runner-up in the Miss Quincy Bay contest. Kathleen Mann, 17, of 181 Babcock St., Houghs Neck, then became Miss Quincy Bay.

The six million dollar man.

It's Josiah Quincy, Jr., founder of cooperative banking in Massachusetts. He's the man for whom our bank was named. The six million dollars is what Quincy Cooperative Banks' depositors received in interest for the year ending April 29, 1978. This tremendous dividend payout is just one of the reasons why more and more people open accounts with us every year. Come talk with us. We'll give you a whole lot more.

Six million dollars paid to our depositors...

Josiah would have liked that.

City Wins First Round In Jet Noise Battle

[Cont'd from Page 1]

Quincy legislators that it will recommend to the FAA that jets continue to take off over Quincy for the next six months at least.

The Quincy suit, filed at noon Tuesday by Asst. City Solicitor Dennis F. Harrington, contained eight judgement demands, the first three of which were granted by Judge Ford, a former Quincy resident.

It was asked that the suit be returnable on Thursday, an unusual request since most such actions entitle the defendant to 10 or 20 days notice.

"We allowed them one business day," said Harrington, "because we claim that damage is being done constantly and we need immediate relief."

The demands were:

- A short order of notice be issued to compel Massport to show cause why it should not identify and disclose recommendation made to the FAA for control of flight patterns.
- A short order of notice be issued directing Massport to show cause why a preliminary injunction should not be issued ordering Massport to withdraw each proposal made to the FAA with respect to flight operation changes at Logan Airport.
- After hearing, a preliminary injunction be issued ordering Massport to withdraw each recommendation it has made to the FAA with respect to flight operations changes at Logan's Runway 22 and report such withdrawal to the plaintiff [Mayor Tobin] in writing.

[Those three demands were granted by Judge Ford.]

- After hearing, a final injunction be issued ordering Massport to comply with the provisions of the General Laws by filing with the state secretary for publication certain regulations of the agency as defined by state law.
- After hearing, a final injunction be issued ordering Massport to file an Environmental Assessment Form and/or an Environmental Impact Report on each proposal to the FAA with respect to changes in flight operations on Runways 4 and 22.
- The court retain jurisdiction of the case until Massport complies with the provisions the General Laws in future proposals made to the FAA regarding flight operations at Logan Airport.
- A judgement against Massport of $10 million as compensation to Quincy.
- Such further relief as may be proper in the circumstances.

Harrington said Massport had been sued successfully once before. That suit, brought by the city of Boston, involved the construction of Runway 22.

"Massport contended that it was not required to file an impact statement," said Harrington. "The Supreme Judicial Court said it was.

"It's the same thing here, only now Massport is giving another reason for not filing.

"We are confident the court will tell them the same thing again."

From Philly To Quincy With Love

The way Robert Mangan, Jr. figures it, it will take him about three weeks to reach Quincy from Philadelphia.

That's about 100 miles a week - on foot!

Mangan who is 25 and lives on Cedar St. in Hopkington, is doing it all for Susan Moscardelli of South St., Quincy Point and the Jimmy Fund.

He will walk, jog and run the approximate 300 miles from the City of Brotherly Love to the City of Presidents with sponsors pledging money to the Jimmy Fund on a per-mile basis.

He was scheduled to depart Philly yesterday [Wednesday] morning and reach The Quincy Sun office, his finish point, around Aug. 16.

Mangan, who teaches music in the Framingham public schools says the inspiration for his 300-mile endeavor came from Miss Moscardelli.

Mangan met Susan nearly two years ago while he was playing with a band, "The Chromatics" at a North Quincy Knights of Columbus social. They have been good friends since.

All the money he collects will be turned over to the Jimmy Fund in her name.

Other than some experience as a member of the Cross Country team at Lowell State College, Mangan has not done much running. He figures he will clock 15 to 20 miles a day.

He will travel alone and pay all his own expenses, including a flight to Philly. He will carry a knapsack with a change of clothes, toothbrush and flashlight.

If you would like to become a sponsor, call Fr. John Foley at St. Ann's Church, Wollaston [479-5400]. He's taking the pledges.

EVERY PROBLEM HAS a solution-dept: Two meter maids found themselves covering the same section of Hancock St. in Quincy Sq. the other day. And the girls got into a bit of a debate over who was poaching on the other's territory.

Meter Maid No. 1 had already tagged a car [$5, restricted area] but Meter Maid No. 2 claimed it was under her jurisdiction. So, she slapped her tag [$5, restricted area] under the windshield wiper next to the other ticket, leaving the motorist a lot to wonder about when he [or she] returned to the car. The motorist didn't get back until that night -- actually deserving the two tickets..

A bystander wondered if the meter maids might be on commission.

THE PERSONAL TOUCH -- Rep. James A. Sheets [D-Quincy] says he has found that people appreciate his personal approach in his campaign for the Democratic nomination for the 11th Congressional District seat.

"For many of them, I am truly the only candidate they will meet during the campaign," he told a cookout for some 400 campaign workers at Leach's Grove in Bridgewater. So far, Sheets has based his campaign on door-to-door visits to voters by himself and his wife, Joann.

GETTING out the vote. William J. Galvin of Charlestown, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for secretary of state, has proposed a $5 state income tax deduction for people who vote in state and local elections.

"More than anyone else," said Galvin, "Americans understand the appeal of the dollar and I know this will bring more people into the mainstream of government."

THE FUROR OVER airplane noise continues as the noise itself continues. At a public meeting of the Massport board of directors the other day, a Squantum resident had a suggestion to stop the noise once and for all. "Why not reactivate the Nike sit in Merrymount Park," said he. Translation: shoot 'em down.

THE SIDEWALK BAZAAR in downtown Quincy inadvertently drew attention to a way to stop the airplane noise. A favorite among youngsters attending the bazaar were balloons made of aluminum foil. A few of the balloons were let loose by the kids and they sailed skyhigh. The aluminum plays havoc with radar -- like the radar at Logan Airport. So, if the city kept enough balloons afloat it might keep airplanes out of the area. [Wonder why Rep. Mike Morrissey didn't think of that].

BOB GENTRY, former North Quincy High teacher and track coach, is recuperating at his Walnut St., Braintree home after surgery at Quincy City Hospital. He's doing fine.

OBSERVATION via the Quincy Kiwanis Club Newsletter: People can be divided into three groups: those who make things happen, those who watch things happen and those who wonder what happened.

More people visit the Grand Canyon in Arizona than any other natural wonder in the U.S., according to the U.S. Travel Service.

The State Trooper Is A Lady!

Police headquarters and over 20 months had a close view of the workings of the department.

"I don't recall that I ever made a decision that I was going to the State Police Academy," she says. "I always knew I wanted to be a policewoman - a cop. So I made up my mind to try for the top and, to me, that is the State Police."

During her four years in college she knew that she would try a police examination when she graduated. After a few months at State Police headquarters she had narrowed it down to that elite force.

The class work was no problem, she was able to cover the assignments with all her male colleagues, but out in the field it was another story.

"The first month, maybe two months, was really hard," Kathy said. "But then I got into shape and after that it was just a matter of builing on it so that I was making all the runs in the morning."

The training started with a before breakfast run of two to three miles and this was gradually increased until the week before graduation Kathy was completing 10 miles, well up with the rest of the troop.

"The first couple of months I was not doing so good," she says, "I was falling behind the troop but I always finished, regardless of how far back. If you don't finish you're in trouble. You're a quitter."

Every other week the troop had a physical training test which included sit-ups, pull-ups, push-ups and a mile run.

"My best time in the mile was 6:22," Kathy says, adding, "I can't run all that fast, but I can run far."

The day started at 5:40 a.m. and lights-out was signaled at 10 p.m. Five days a week the class was under supervision throughout their waking hours. Week-ends were free to be spent at home.

Kathy found her colleagues most congenial and they accepted her as another trooper.

"They were very supportive and gave me all kinds of moral encouragement. I guess that's part of the reason I was able to get through the course, through their acceptance of me," she said.

She also found four Quincy men in the class: Paul Damery, 287 Quincy Shore Dr., Francis Glasheen, 35 West St., Edward Burke, 124 Safford St., and Nicholas Pagliarulo, 35 Lunt St.

On graduation the four Quincy men were assigned to the Andover barracks and Kathy to Framingham where she is now undergoing a familiarization program with Trooper David Shea.

"He's showing me the patrol sectors, what grounds we cover and are responsible for, and, of course, the paper work," she explained. "He is showing me the practical application of everything we learned at the Academy."

How do people respond when stopped by a lady State Trooper!

"They are not too surprised," she said. "Of course when a motorist is stopped he's inclined to be a bit on edge and doesn't want to rock the boat by getting into any flippant conversation."

STATE TROOPER Kathleen Coletta of West Quincy, stands at attention as her father, Gerard A. Coletta, pins on her badge at exercises marking her graduation from the State Police Academy, Framingham. She is now assigned to the Framingham barracks. Coletta is chief executive assistant to Norfolk County Dist. Atty. William Delahunt.

SERIOUS student-trooper Kathleen Coletta of Quincy, stands formation with 83 male colleagues during training at State Police Academy in Framingham.

She did recall one incident when she and her partner, Shea, flagged down a truck on Route 128 because the men in the cab were acting 'suspiciously'.

Shea approached the truck and asked the driver "Why are you checking out the cruiser? Why were you looking at me?"

The driver was equally blunt. "We're not looking at you we're looking at her."

In addition to road patrols Kathy has also participated in other phases of police work such as appearing in court and in Foxboro she assisted in serving a body warrant on a woman wanted on a drug charge.

"They told me to bring my handcuffs, but I didn't use them," she said.

Kathy will be on road patrol and the familiarization program for at least three months. Her next assignment is up to her superiors.

"I'll do anything they give me," she said enthusiastically. "I'm on the road right now and there is a lot I have to learn about out there. Before I make a decision as to whether or not I like that I'll have to go through it.

"I'd like to try as many things as possible. I'd like to work on morals cases, the rape squad, and perhaps do some undercover work, if they decide I can do it," she said.

Kathy is five foot six and weighs 125 pounds. This necessitated some tailoring of the summer slacks and the breeches. The heavy field boots had to be custom made to give her that trim appearance.

Kathy's father was given the honor of pinning on her badge at the graduation because of his position in the district attorney's office.

Kathy and her father are not the only Coletta's involved in law enforcement. Her brother Gerard A. Coletta, III, 23, is attached to the staff of Dist. Atty. Philip A. Rollins of Barnstable County, and her sister, Mary Beth, 20, is secretary to Judge Lewis Whitman of Quincy District Court.

A sister, Maureen, 23, who graduated from UMass at Boston this year, is now working at M.I.T. on a grant, and her brother Michael, 16, a student at Quincy Vocational Technical School, is spending the summer working at a Dorchester yacht club.

They're all proud of the State trooper in their family.

Pregnant Students Can Complete High School

Massachusetts Department of Public Health indicate that in 1975 alone there were 31 live births to Quincy residents 18 and under. The group being investigated gave birth from 1975 through 1977 and is therefore potentially three times the size of the 31 reported in 1975."

Dr. Griffin noted that the six girls in the pilot program became a supportive and cohesive group. They all worked towards becoming skilled and thoughtful parents and shared their knowledge and experience with one another, she said.

Young mothers were encouraged to bring their youngsters with them to class and a baby-sitting service was provided. However, it was found that even a three-day week sometimes proved too difficult a schedule, when coupled with other responsibilities.

The group said it has received support from a number of community organizations and asked that the program be continued and hopefully expanded.

After the vote of approval School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon, noted that when the idea for such a program was first proposed eight years ago the school committee had to discuss it in executive session.

He said that the openness of the report and the action of the committee was an indication of the development of social consciousness.

Quincy's Korean War Casualties Total 79

The shooting stopped in Korea at 8 a.m., EST, and Quincy counted up its casualties from 37 months of warfare against the North Korean and Chinese communists.

There were 30 men dead, 14 of them killed in combat and 16 in accidents; 43 were wounded and six were listed as missing in action.

Capt. George F. McDonell, husband of Claire McDonell of 20 Alnick Rd. West Quincy, was known to be a prisoner of war and Lt. Robert L. Adams, husband of Dorothy Adams of 52 Bayfield Rd. Atlantic, had died in a prison camp.

Carl W. Anderson, vice chairman of the City Council, speaking for Mayor David S. McIntosh, said:

"The news of the armistice is cause for thanksgiving to all the people of Quincy and particularly to the scores of Quincy residents whose sons and husbands have served so heroically in the Korean conflict.

"It is my heartfelt hope that the armistice is the forerunner of a lasting peace which will allow these valiant men and their families to be reunited soon."

GRANITEMEN, VETS PROTEST

A delegation of granitemen and veterans, led by Elmer [Mike] Fagerlund, president of the Quincy Granite Manufacturers Association, met with City Manager William J. Deegan Jr. to protest plans for a World War II memorial in Mt. Wollaston Cemetery.

Fagerlund said that the city was spending $15,000 on the memorial but only one-quarter of that sum was going for granite work, while three quarters was being spent on landscaping.

Included in the delegation were Constanzo Pagnano of the granite cutters union, Augustus Settimelli of the manufacturers and John W. Burke, Arthur Wesley and Louis Volpe representing veterans' organizations.

WOLLASTON BOWS

Charlie Mantia, pitching his second game in three days, weakened in the fifth inning and the Milford Junior Legion team went on to a 7-0 victory over Wollaston in the state quarter finals.

Mantia left the game trailing 1-0 in the fifth and Milford belted his successor, third baseman Bob Mullin, for four runs in the sixth to clinch the victory.

RENT CONTROL CONTINUES

The federal rent control law expired at midnight and Quincy, the only South Shore community to retain controls, rented an office at 67-77 Parkingway to set up a seven- or nine-member board.

The City Council voted retention, 4-3, with Councillors Frank N. Orcutt, Alfred G. Helfrich, Carl W. Anderson and David J. Crowley in favor and David S. McIntosh, Edna B. Austin and Amelio Della Chiesa opposed.

Quincy Legal Services Office Aiding Senior Citizens

Atty. Ann Gosline, and senior paralegals Anne Feldman and Margaret Lampert, of Greater Boston Legal Services, will now be available Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., at the Quincy office, 1 Cliveden St., Quincy Center. They will provide information, referral and other legal services to South Shore citizens ages 60 and older. The telephone number is 472-3177.

The new program, available to senior citizens of Quincy, Weymouth, Braintree, Milton, Randolph, Holbrook, Hingham, Hull, Cohasset, Scituate and Norwell, is funded with a grant available through South Shore Home Care Services.

One of the main goals of the program is to inform senior citizens of their legal rights, and of issues, so that they may participate in community affairs concerning them.

The three staff members will develop and conduct training sessions for agency personnel training them to help seniors recognize legal problems, and obtain services and benefits available to them.

The program staff will also represent individuals with legal problems. Under the guidelines of the program, priority must be given to low income and minority senior citizens, and to cases which often concern senior citizens, such as problems with social security, disability claims, medical bills and housing.

In each case, the staff will try to solve the individual problem, and at the same time, improve or change the way agencies and institutions treat all senior citizens.

Later this summer, the program staff will make regular, scheduled visits to South Shore towns to speak to senior citizens with legal problems.

Summer is traditionally a difficult time for blood programs everywhere. Hot weather and vacations contribute to lower blood collections, which in turn result in dwindling supplies. A constant supply of blood is always needed, as it takes 24-48 hours to process and deliver it to hospitals. Largest of the 57 regional Red Cross blood services, the Boston-based service must collect and distribute about 350,000 units of blood a year.

To become a donor, a person must be in generally good health and weigh at least 110 pounds. Donors must be 18 to 65 years old, or seventeen with written parental permission.

MDC Employee To Be Police Liaison At Wollaston Substation

The MDC has agreed to station an employee at its new Wollaston Beach substation to serve as a police liaison in receiving complaints and dispensing information.

City Councillor Stephen J. McGrath said the MDC made the promise during a meeting with city officials to resolve zoning and esthetic problems that have arisen out of construction of the substation.

"The MDC," said McGrath, "has agreed to commit itself to having an MDC employee man the facility exclusively for the purpose of serving as a police liaison to receive complaints for the police to deal with.

"This person will have a direct line to MDC headquarters which is the dispatching authority and is an addition to the regular person in charge of the bathhouse facility.

"Secondly, there will be outside space available exclusively for emergency vehicles and police who will be able to use this facility as a checkpoint.

"The MDC police will continue to patrol Quincy Shore Drive as they have done in the past."

Rep. Michael W. Morrissey [D-Quincy] expressed his satisfaction with the arrangement, noting that it will enable people seeking immediate police aid to go to the substation for ready assistance.

Sen. and Mayor Arthur H. Tobin [D-Quincy] requested that the facility be made attractive with additional shrubs and greenery and less asphalt areas and the MDC agreed to comply.

Title 3 Funds Approved For ENC

Congressman James A. Burke announces that Eastern Nazarene College's application for a Basic Institutional Development Program grant, authorized under Title III of the Higher Education Act of 1965, has been approved by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The Title III funds are provided to assist developing colleges, in strengthening their academic, administrative and student services programs so that they may participate adequately in the higher education community. The amount of the grant will be negotiated between the College and the Office of Education.

"The Eastern Nazarene award is richly-deserved," said Burke. "I was pleased with the College's decision to remain in Quincy and I hope that the federal grant will assist them in expanding their programs and continuing their fine work."

MONEY TALKS
Home ownership is still within reach of most Americans.
By Philip J. Lawrence, President
Colonial Federal Savings
and Loan Association
of Quincy, Holbrook & Wareham
8-6 Weekdays 8-7:30 Thursdays

Statements to the effect that housing prices throughout the nation have climbed out of the reach of most Americans are simply not true.

This is an interesting discovery of the United States League of Savings Associations based on reports by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, the National Association of Realtors, the U.S. Department of Commerce, and its own figures.

Newspaper releases stating that the average cost of a new home jumped to $53,000 last March present a badly distorted picture of the nation's housing market, the U.S. League holds.

It notes that the average is twisted out of shape by luxury homes selling for well into six figures. New houses with price tags off $65,000 or more constituted only 16% of the 1.2 million single-family homes built last year.

More importantly, such news stories ignore completely the much larger market in existing homes which represented three-fourths of home sales last year.

Using conventional yardsticks as to the amount of income [25%] that families can spend for monthly mortgage principal and interest payments, taxes, and insurance and assuming an 80% loan with a 25-year term at 9% interest rate, the U.S. League study showed that, while a good number of families are priced out of the new home market, existing homes remain available at almost all income levels.

A household with an annual income of $7,000-9,999, representing 12.7% of all U.S. households, would have found that 16.1% of existing homes were sold in 1976 at an affordable price range of $15,039 to $21,489.

Families with annual income ranging between $10,000 and $20,000 had available over half of the existing homes sold last year [53.8%]. These were within their affordable capacities of from $24,489 to $42,967.

About one-fourth of the existing homes [27.4%] sold last year for between $42,967 and $64,450 and up were within the price range of households with annual income over $20,000. Only 8.4% of existing homes were sold in 1976 for $64,450 and more.

While new homes were sold last year at an average price of $48,400, over one-third [35.9%] went for less than $40,000 and 12.4% were sold for less than $30,000.

These figures indicate that most Americans can still attain their goal of home ownership, especially in the existing home market.

17 Track Club Members Qualify For National Meets

Seventeen members of the Quincy Track Club, an all-time high, have qualified for national meets to be held next month.

In the club's first season, 1974, only two members went to the nationals.

Nine members have secured places on the Boston Jesse Owens team which will travel to UCLA Aug. 10 for the ARCO Jesse Owens National Track Classic. Last week eight won their events in the Boston finals and one qualified for the relay.

Maureen Roche continued her winning ways with an outstanding 6.6 in the 50-yard dash, erasing Denise Santo's club record for 11 year olds. Kris Dever came up with a personal best in winning the 10-11 long jump at 12-11 and Geraldine Murphy took second. Beth Veneto won the baseball throw at 122 feet with Patty Ann Leonard second.

Eddie Munroe's fifth place in the boys 10-11 50-yard dash qualifies him for the trip and he will be on the relay team.

Debbie Hastings ran her best ever, winning the 12-13 220 in 29.4 and Theresa Munroe ran third. Penny Sawyer continued her domination of the sprints and jumping events by winning the long jump at 15-8½. Twelve-year old Bernadette Murphy did her best ever in placing second with a 13-3 effort. Liz Wiot was third in the 100.

In boys events, Brad Kenyon proved far above the opposition as he won the 440 by 50 yards in 61.4. Chris McCray easily won the long jump at 17-2½ for a club 12-13 record.

In girls 14-15 events Margaret Osterman got off two of her best jumps to win the long jump at 16-2. Karen McCarthy, who has done 17-4, lost by one inch to take second. Kara Crehan placed third in the high jump at 4-8.

With the results of all New England states in for the Hershey National Youth Program, six Quincy girls will be on their way to Charleston, W. Virginia for the national meet Aug. 3-6.

All six won at the state meet and had their scores compared with those from the other five N. E. States. Kris Dever is the New England champion in the long jump, doing 7.1. The 12-13 girls' relay team of Terry Hamilton, Debbie Hastings, Liz Wiot and Penny Sawyer will also compete. Their winning time in the states was 57.5.

Rounding out the Quincy squad will be Denise Santo, who won her specialty, the 100-yard dash. Several club officials will be selected to be chaperones.

The same weekend several club members will travel to Detroit for the U.S. Youth Games at Wayne State University.

Geraldine Murphy will be in the girls 10-11 long jump, Mike Williams will run the 12-13 220, Kevin Wood will be in the 14-15 high jump, Loretta Garrigan will be in the girls 14-15 high jump, Shawn Burnes will run the 14-15 220 and Mike Bourikas will be in the 12-13 high jump.

The jewelry industry is one of the oldest in the United States. Attleboro, Massachusetts still is a major center for the manufacturing of jewelry and traces its beginnings to the Revolutionary War when one of Lafayette's soldiers started a silver buckle business there. Providence, Rhode Island's, beginnings in the American jewelry business came not too much later, in 1794, when Nehemiah Dodge opened his shop in that city. Mr. Dodge is credited with beginning the low and medium-priced jewelry industry by discovering a method for making jewelry without the necessity of using 18 karat gold. Discover for yourself our fine clock craftsman at GRONO & CHRISTIE, INC., 536 Adams St., East Milton, 696-1490. All types of clocks can be appraised and repaired. One of the reasons our clock repairing is done so expertly is that it's a "labor of love". Our craftsman truly loves clocks and works primarily for the enjoyment of it. Open: Mon. thru Sat. 0 a.m. - 5 p.m.

HELPFUL HINT:

WHAT IS A DEED?

In simplest terms, a deed is a written document that conveys title [evidence of ownership] to real estate from one person to another. You don't acquire title until you receive and accept the deed. The sales contract you get when you buy a house is a pact to convey title sometime in the future. The actual transfer is done by a deed.

Every deed must have a grantor [seller]. He must be of legal age, mentally competent, and legal owner of the property. If he does not fulfill all three requirements - the deed is worthless.

The person who receives and accepts the title is known as the grantee [buyer]. If husband and wife are to be co-owners, the property will be conveyed to "John Doe and Mary Doe, wife". Proper wording will insure that if either spouse dies, the survivor will become the sole owner.

Whether buying or selling, turn to Realty World - President Real Estate for all your real estate needs.

New Takeoff Patterns Experiment At Logan Airport

The FAA is experimenting with a new take-off pattern from Logan Airport's Runway 22 that could possibly resolve the dispute with Quincy over airplane noise in a month.

"This is the first positive thing to come up," said Rep.-Councillor James A. Sheets [D-Quincy]. "If it is successful, it will be a tremendous victory for us."

The experiment was explained to Sheets, Rep. Michael W. Morrissey [D-Quincy] and City Solicitor Richard W. Barry by the FAA's Robert Whittington at a meeting Tuesday.

He told them that the new pattern was tried Tuesday and Wednesday last week for two hours each day and, if it is successful, he will recommend it be adopted about Sept. 1.

See related story, Page 8.

The plan, as explained by Sheets' aide, Ronald Kaufman, goes like this:

Currently, planes taking off from Runway 22 fly out at 180 degrees and at 2,500 feet turn right over Quincy to join New England flight control.

Under the new plan, the planes turn left instead of right and execute a turn before coming into the New England pattern at between 5,000 and 10,000 feet over land.

"There are problems with this and we are working on them now," Kaufman quoted Whittington as telling the group. "If we find there are safety problems, I will not recommend it."

Also present at the meeting in Massport offices were John Arota, Massport attorney; Donna Berman, who is in charge of noise abatement; and Transportation Secretary Frederick P. Salvucci.

The presence of Salvucci, said Sheets, indicates that Gov. Dukakis and Massport "are starting to realize how intensely the people of Quincy feel over the airport noise."

Merchants Oppose Mental Health Treatment Center In Downtown Area

The South Shore Mental Health Association is opening a day treatment center for adults at 1620 Hancock St. and it has some Quincy Center merchants up in arms.

A bid by Robert Colman, of Colman's Sporting Goods, for a temporary restraining order and a preliminary injunction against the move was scheduled to be heard yesterday [Wednesday] in Norfolk Superior Court.

A number of merchants have signed petitions on Quincy Center Business and Professional Association stationery protesting the center as "detrimental to the commercial future of Quincy Center." Among the signees are some members of the QCPBA board of directors.

"Quincy needs and deserves a viable retail community in order to retain its place as the leading city on the South Shore," said Colman.

"If downtown Quincy continues to become a Mecca for social service agencies it will have to relinquish its prominence as a retail center.

"It's time to take a look. Maybe we've done enough, maybe too much, for the social services on the South Shore."

"We have nothing against the concept of mental health centers but we don't think the downtown area is the proper place for them."

Dr. Ronald G. Hersch, director of the South Shore West Mental Health Center, located in Parkingway, explained that the center will be an extension of one currently operated at Wollaston Congregational Church.

"We plan to open as soon as we can get a building permit and renovate the building, probably early in the fall," he said.

The association has signed a three-year lease with the owner, Guy LaFerla.

"It will be a day treatment center for adults who, in some point in their illnesses, have been in state hospitals but are now back in the community," said Dr. Hersch.

"It is not a school," he said, answering one of Colman's contentions. "It is not licensed as a school. We charge no tuition. There are no teachers, no diplomas."

He said the center will treat a maximum of 50 patients on any given day with a staff of seven or eight and kitchen facilities for serving lunches to them.

"We have shared space with a Sunday school in Wollaston for four years with no indication of any problems," said Dr. Hersch.

"We have had no problems at our downtown office on Parkingway or at our second office at 1 Cliveden St."

Colman said he feels that opening the center in the building that once housed a pet shop would add to the congestion in the lower part of Quincy Square.

"There is no parking available to them," he said. "It will be a hardship on both patients and shoppers to bring such a facility into downtown Quincy.

Pet Peeves

Everyone has his or her pet peeves. Are your's among these?

The stay-at-home motorcyclist who hangs around the neighborhood gunning his bike to see how much noise it can really make. If your car made as much noise the Registry would yank you off the road.

The neighborhood mechanic who buys a junk car to rebuild in his driveway and spends Sundays banging out the dents.

The great dog-lover who says everyone should have a dog. And everyone usually does-his! He lets his mutt roam free--day and night--leaving souvenirs on your front lawn, tipping over trash barrels and baying at the moon. The real dog lover keeps his or her dog under control. The only thing wrong with some dogs is their owners.

George Scott, coming to bat at a crucial moment with men in scoring position. And, whiff! [And the next time up whiffing again on the very same pitch].

TV stations that cut movies to shreds to make room for all the commercials sometimes leaving what the movie is all about on the cutting room floor. Like Ch. 56's recent offering of "The Glenn Miller Story". Jimmy Stewart spends more than half the movie trying to find the Glenn Miller sound. Then, suddenly after the umpteenth commercial, he has it but how he got it is somewhere on the floor. And how about the guy with the scissors doing in poor Frances Langford? Just as she's about to sing "Chattanooga Choo Choo!" she loses to another commercial.

You plunk down $6,000 or $7,000 for a brand new car. And you've hardly gone 100 miles when you hear strange noises up front. Is this, you wonder, going to be one of those recalls?

You're driving along and decide to listen to some nice soft music. You press the buttons up and down AM and FM and all you get are talk shows, sport talk shows, rock 'n roll, hill billy music, and the screaming jeemies. You wonder why a radio seemed so important when you bought the car.

A reader takes offense to an item in this column but instead of complaining here, calls up the local talk show and says you ought to be sued. We'd have been happy to print this reader's beef. But maybe it's easier to beef on a talk show when you don't have to identify yourself as you would have to in this newspaper.

The guy [or gal] who doesn't give a damn about anyone and abandons instead of parking his [her] car. Thus taking up one parking space and half the other.

The "fast" parking meter that gives you a nickel's worth of time for a dime. Must be a cousin of the Las Vegas one-armed bandit.

People who call you on the phone and then ask: "Who's this?".

The guy who says he's quitting smoking. Then mooches cigarets from everyone he sees.

The guy who drinks VO when you're buying and then switches to beer when its his round.

Women who push their way in front of you at the store counter. Or, after you've been patiently waiting for 10 minutes, the clerk asks who's next and she arrives just in time to say "Me".

She's the type of female you like to see with a flat tire waiting for a male to come along and fix it. And it doesn't bother you at all to sail right by her.

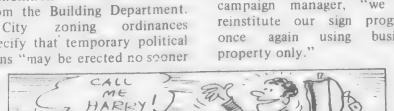
Not to mention the over zealous woman libber who preaches equality as far as rights are concerned and then stares down acidly at you if you're sitting and she's standing on the crowded T.

The guy who makes a U-turn on Hancock St. and gets away with it. And when you get back to your car you have a tag for being at an expired meter.

TV commercials that bounce your TV set off the floor but which the TV stations insist are no louder than the program itself.

The job applicant who says certainly, he [or she] knows how to spell. Then misspells the name of his [her] street on the job application.

The sartorial combination of wild flowery tie, wild flowery shirt and wild flowery jacket.



If you're still with me down to this point you're probably saying this is an easy way to write a column. You're right.

Sheets Committee Removes Political Signs

The Sheets for Congress Committee has announced that it has voluntarily removed all political signs from the city of Quincy in response to an admonition to all candidates from the Building Department.

City zoning ordinances specify that temporary political signs "may be erected no sooner than 30 days before any primary election." This year's primary is Sept. 19.

"At the appropriate time," said William Fein, Sheets' campaign manager, "we will reinstitute our sign program, once again using business property only."

Escapologist Harry Houdini's real name was Ehrich Weiss.

Political Motivations Involved?

Citizens Group Says Jet Noise Will Cost Dukakis 25,000 Votes

By TOM HENSHAW

"We hope," said Dave Raferty, "to convince Gov. Dukakis that airplane noise is going to cost him 25,000 votes on the South Shore."

Raferty is one of the moving spirits behind Citizens Against Airplane Noise [CAAN], which was organized Monday to prepare for the big Aug. 9 hearing at 7:30 p.m. in the Quincy Vo-Tech School auditorium.

Massport Director David W. Davis and FAA Regional Director Robert Whittington are to be at the hearing and there are indications that Dukakis, increasingly the target of protests, himself may be there.

The Dukakis Administration lined up behind Massport last week when a letter of support from Environmental Affairs Secretary Evelyn F. Murphy helped to tip the scales against Quincy's case in Suffolk Superior Court.

Dukakis, however, was reported to be unhappy over the Murphy letter.

Meanwhile there were hints of possible political motivations behind the shift in takeoff patterns that brought the jets from Logan Airport over Quincy instead of South Boston and Dorchester.

"I have no doubt that games are being played without telling the governor," said an angry Mayor Tobin after Judge Joseph Ford denied the city's bid for a preliminary injunction against Massport.

He pointed out that both Massport's Davis and Transportation Secretary Frederick P. Salvucci had worked for Boston Mayor Kevin H. White, politically and in the Boston city government.

Edward J. King, former director of Massport who passed through Quincy last week in pursuit of the Democratic nomination for governor, went a step further.

"The only reason I could see is that it has to be political," he told The Sun. "I don't know why anyone would want to aggravate a whole new group of people unless it is political.

"White is getting ready to run for re-election. He is not well liked in South Boston...."

"The Department of Transportation is running the airport now, along with the governor. When I was executive director of Massport the department had absolutely nothing to say.

"Dukakis gets elected. Davis comes in from the little city halls. Salvucci somes in from the little city halls. One is his campaign treasurer. The other is his North End advisor.

"They are totally responsible."

The organizers of CAAN were planning their assault on the airplane noise on a number of fronts.

They have set up an account at the North Quincy branch of the Hancock Bank, 415 Hancock St., to raise money for operating expenses. Donations should be sent to the manager, John McGue.

"We plan to distribute flyers door-to-door to every house, store, church, etc., in the city advising people of the Aug. 9 hearing," said Dave Tenney, a member of the 31-member CAAN executive committee.

"We're going to saturate the city. We are asking supermarkets to cooperate by putting our flyers in their bags. We're hitting the MBTA stations, morning and night."

CAAN is also planning to arrange buses to transport senior citizens to the hearing from the six major complexes in Quincy and setting up a chain phone call, wherein one calls 10 and so on and so on.

Rep. Michael W. Morrissey [D-Quincy] said Gov. Dukakis and his secretaries, Salvucci and Murphy, also had been invited to appear at the Aug. 9 hearing.

And Rep. James A. Sheets [D-Quincy] said he will ask for a special meeting of the City Council to pass a second and stronger anti-noise resolution to present to Massport at the hearing.

CAAN scheduled committee meetings for tonight [Thursday] and Monday to make additional preparations for the hearing, said Bernice Mader, who chairs the group.

Quincy won a minor victory last week in Suffolk Superior Court when Judge Ford ordered Massport to appear at a show cause hearing later in the week.

But the city lost the second round when Judge Ford denied the bid for a preliminary injunction to have Massport withdraw its flight pattern recommendations to the FAA for environmental reasons.

Massport's defense received a tremendous boost from the controversial Murphy letter which supported Massport's contention that it did not need an environmental impact statement to change takeoff patterns.

A letter from Davis to Murphy asking for a ruling on the matter was dated July 26 and Murphy's reply was dated July 27, the day the Quincy suit was heard, and distributed at the morning hearing.

Murphy said takeoff patterns did not qualify as a "project" under the Mass Environmental Policy Act [MEPA] and therefore were exempt from environmental regulations.

King, the former Massport director, however, recalled a time in 1973-74 when it was "claimed that even the removal of snow at the airport was a project and they wanted us to file an impact statement. I would think this is a project, too.

"The purpose of the thing is to protect people from environmental erosion and that's what is happening."

After losing the bid for an injunction, Mayor Tobin said that he went to see Gov. Dukakis and "told him of my displeasure with the Murphy letter."

"I asked him if he did not direct Salvucci to cooperate with us on noise abatement," said the Mayor. "I asked him, 'Is this your way of cooperating?'

"The governor was upset. He called Salvucci while I was there and told him of his displeasure."

Koch Club Starts Christmas Toy Collection

Christmas is still five months away but already the Koch Club of Quincy is in the process of revving up for its eighth annual drive to collect new or used toys for needy children.

The collection conducted year round in case persons doing house cleaning or moving find toys that are no longer being used but are still in workable condition.

The items donated are cleaned and refurbished by a committee of Koch Club members and friends and are delivered to families and organizations serving needy children in Quincy, the South Shore and Greater Boston areas.

Since 1971, more than 10,000 articles of enjoyment have been made available to thousands of children at Christmas time to brighten the holiday season for those in need.

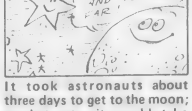
Organizations participating in the program during the past eight years include the Parent Teachers Organization and students of the Massachusetts Fields and the Parker Schools, students of the Sacred Heart School, North Quincy; members of the South Shore Junior Ten Pin Bowling League, Quincy Junior Wonders Candlepin Bowling League, the Koch Club Women's Bowling League, the Boys and Girls Bowling Leagues of the Koch Club, Koch Club Basketball Leagues and employees of Otis Elevator Company in Quincy, directed by Mrs. Alice Buchan.

The Dress-A-Doll Project is one of the highlights of the holiday season and women and girls are welcome to participate by cleaning, grooming and dressing donated dolls that will provide a new Christmas gift for some little girl.

Persons wishing to donate or dress dolls may contact Mrs. Simone Koch at 241 Newbury Ave., Quincy or Mrs. Ginny Derringer at 4 Edward Cody Lane, South Weymouth.

Planning Dept. To Survey Historic Buildings, Sites

Mayor Arthur Tobin announces the Planning Department is organizing an architectural and historical survey of the city's structures, buildings and historic sites.



The survey results will be presented to the Massachusetts Historical Commission for review and approval.

The purpose of the survey is to inventory the city's historical resources and to provide a tool for future city development.

Many of the structures and sites are responsible for the city's distinctive character and therefore their preservation is imperative, said Tobin.

The survey is funded through a federal grant from the Massachusetts Historic Commission and the Community Development Block Grant. It will be conducted by Nancy Derene, a student at Harvard University Graduate School of Design.

Any Quincy resident who believes he knows of potential survey material, should contact the Department of Planning and Community Development at 773-1380, ext. 361.

It took astronauts about three days to get to the moon; at that rate, it would take 878,000 years to reach the closest star, Proxima Centauri.

QUINCY'S YESTERDAYS By Tom Henshaw

'No Fix' Parking Goes Into Effect

The new "no fix" parking ticket went into effect in downtown Quincy and at noon of the first day Police Chief John J. Avery called it a success.

Aug. 3-9
41 Years Ago
This Week

"I have sent for another batch of tags," he said. "The initial order of 200 has been exhausted.

"I have traveled through the retail section of the city and I noticed a decided improvement in conditions. A shopper now has a good chance to park his or her car."

There were, however, occasional problems.

A motorist who parked his car on the rounded corner of Temple St., where there was no parking restriction, and Hancock St., where there was, protested his tag on grounds he was parked on Temple St.

And State Rep. Eddie Carson was miffed when he found a ticket on his windshield, placed there by Patrolman James A. D. MacKay.

SHIPYARD PETITION

President Thomas C. Johnson of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce petitioned Congress to change the wording of a law so that at least 50 per cent of all naval shipbuilding would be done in private yards.

If successful, the Fore River Shipyard would be in line for an $11 million contract to build two of eight new destroyers. Two would go to Bath, Maine, and four to government shipyards.

Cong. Richard Wigglesworth [R-Milton], in support of Johnson's petition, told Navy Secretary Claude Swanson:

"Everyone connected with shipbuilding knows the difficulty involved in comparing firm bids from private yards with estimates from government navy yards."

SAINTS WIN WITH McKEAG

St. Ann's whipped the Civics, 6-4, behind the five-hit, eight-strikeout pitching of Lefty Dave McKeag to take over third place in the Quincy City League race.

The lineups included:

CIVICS - Pete Sharpe 3b, Maxie Shangold cf, Chet McCarthy lf, Joe Shapiro c, Danny Lubarsky 1b, Andy Dahlquist lf, Wally Forbush 2b, Jim Whelan ss, Paul Paluzzi p.

Jewels & Gems

by Stan Manin

The staple jewelry of the seventies has been the delicate look of gold and silver chains, nothing necklaces, studs, and tiny hoop earrings. The accent has been on the subtle. But that hasn't always been true for jewelry. The jewelry of the 40's, 50's, and 60's was large, glittering and prominent, the kinds of things most people wouldn't be caught dead in today. But that look made sense with the fashions of the day, when formal dressing and skirts were the dominant form of dress for women. Actually, the delicate look of today's jewelry is more the strange fashion, in historical terms, than large jewelry.

You'll be sure of finding antique jewelry, as well as the latest styles, by coming to us at GRONO & CHRISTIE, INC., 536 Adams St., East Milton, 696-1490. Our wide selection of antique and estate jewelry enables you to find many different and interesting items for yourself or gifts. Come in and browse. You're welcome to ask questions of our family, who are here to serve you. Hours: 9 a.m. - 5 p.m., Mon. thru Sat.

Hopes High For Biggest QBRW Of Them All

By TOM SULLIVAN

The 41st edition of Quincy Bay Race Week returns to its old schedule this year after being moved up to July last summer.

Racing starts Wednesday and continues through Sunday in the schedule followed until last year when racing was held in July and ran Saturday through Wednesday.

QBRW President Bernie Reisberg has hopes of this being the biggest and best Race Week yet.

"From talking to several people, I honestly feel we will have the largest number of boats this year," Reisberg said. "Of course, that's all I can go on. But there is a lot of interest and we should improve on last year's turnout."

The racing schedule was changed last year to take advantage of the tides and the race officials were rewarded not only with perfect tides but perfect weather.

"We were a little disappointed in the turnout last year and decided to revert to the old schedule this year," Reisberg continued.

Boys, girls, men and women of all ages will be among the competitors.

Racing is being held each day from one of the participating clubs.

Gala Night will be held Friday at Town River Yacht Club with Reisberg and Quincy Y. C. Commodore Albert Harvey as hosts.

Rendezvous Night will be hled Saturday at Town River with Reisberg and Commodore Chuck Reynolds as hosts.

The colorful Marine Parade will be held Sunday with boats rendezvousing between Town River and Wessagussett Yacht Clubs at noon.

Trophy Night will be held Sept. 8 at Metropolitan Y. C. with all winners and guests invited.

REMEMBER WHEN?

Remember when the Quincy Yacht Club looked like this in 1894? This etching was taken from Quincy Yacht Club Yearbook of the same year. The yacht club, now in its 104th year, was heavily damaged during the Great Blizzard of 1978 and is undergoing extensive repairs. But its sailors are as active as ever in this year's Quincy Bay Race Week.

Bermuda Cup, Remick Trophies Prize Highlights

Ocean Racing Saturday Off Hangman's Island

One of the highlights each year of Quincy Bay Race Week is the ocean racing, which will be held Saturday, starting off Hangman's Island.

These races are held to stimulate continued interest in the cruising type of sailboat.

The Frank E. Remick ocean race will again be held in three fleets, so popular has this attraction become. Fleet 1 consists of boats from 26 overall length to 45 feet overall, Fleet 2 for boats from 17 feet waterline length to under 26 feet overall, and Fleet 3 for Trimarans.

In 1959 the trophy was presented to the QBRWA by Remick for competition between ocean racing sailboats. Because of the large number of boats competing, it was decided to divide the race into two fleets. Remick presented the association with a second trophy for the Fleet 2 winner and last three added the third trophy for Trimarans.

Last year Raymond Smith won the Fleet 1 trophy in his Gadget, Phil Sadowski was the Fleet 2 winner in his White Lightning and Dr. Keith Merrill Jr. won the Fleet 3 trophy in his Hydra.

The Bermuda Cup, a silver punch bowl, has been in the custody of the Quincy Yacht Club for more than a half century. It was presented by the City of Boston in 1905 for a Boston to Bermuda race which was never held.

In 1911 the city again placed the cup in competition to become the permanent possession of the winner. That race was won by Hollis Burgess in his sloop Marie L.

QUINCY BAY RACE WEEK officers, Treasurer David Maloney, President Bernie Reisberg, Secretary Edward Simpson and Vice President Chester Gillis.

Burgess made the Quincy YC trustee of the silver bowl to be placed in competition. In 1968 the Quincy YC presented the trophy to the QBRWA for Race Week competition.

Last year's winner was Richard Marcel in his Navillus.

The Harry Warner Memorial Trophy race is for cruising type trimarans and last year's winner was Keith Merrill.

In all races the trophies will be held by the winners until Race Week of the following year when they will be returned to the association. An engraved keeper trophy will be awarded each winner for his permanent possession.

A boat has to win more than just races. It has to win your confidence.

Where is it written that any boat built to be safe, durable and comfortable is inherently incapable of blowing the socks off everything else in the race course?

Unlike a lot of boats in the 15-to-17 foot range, the Boston Whaler Harpoon 4.6 and Harpoon 5.2 are fast enough to send shivers up the backs of even the most aggressive club or collegiate racers.

[After all, both are C&C designs with equipment like Harken blocks, Elvstrom bailers, Kenyon spars and other go-fast goodies.]

And yet, where you really come out ahead is on Boston Whaler's reputation for comfort, strength and durability.

Both boats are stable, easy to move around in, and safe. With wide beams. Uncluttered cockpits. And foam sandwich hulls guaranteed for 10 long years.

Harpoon 4.6. Harpoon 5.2. Long before they ever win you the club trophy, they'll win you something far more important. Your confidence. See both at your Harpoon dealers.

QBRW: 41 Years Of Tradition

There is a good deal of tradition of excellence for yachtsmen to live up to in this week's Quincy Bay Race Week.

QYC To Host 'Gala Night' At Town River

The Quincy Yacht Club, badly damaged during February's blizzard, will host Quincy Bay Race Week's "Gala Night" on Friday, Aug. 5, at the Town River Yacht Club.

Albert J. Harvey, commodore of the 104-year-old Quincy Yacht Club, said renovation and refurnishing of the damaged structure on Sea St. will not be completed before Labor Day. The QYC will participate in all the events of Race Week, using the facilities of fellow yachtsmen.

Cost of repairing the damaged structure is estimated at $200,000. New pilings, replacement of the lower decks and other repairs are costing $165,000. An additional $35,000 is being spent for re-equipping and refurnishing the building, according to Harvey.

QBRW has been an outstanding success since it was established in 1938 by the Quincy, Wollaston and Squantum Yacht Clubs, which formed the association.

In the years that followed, Town River and Wessagussett Yacht Clubs joined up to make the event an area success.

Edward P. Shaw of Wollaston was the first president. Other officers included Roy McPherson of Quincy, vice president; George Hoy of Squantum, treasurer, and Arthur Leavitt, secretary.

Former Mayor-Senator Thomas S. Burgin was named honorary chairman and presided over the first year's activities. He provided a trophy for the Adams Class and his successor as honorary chairman, former Boston Mayor Maurice J. Tobin, set up another in 1939.

He became governor of the state and was chief of judges for the Marine Parade in 1946 which had the largest number of entries.

In the following years the Merrymount club dissolved and was succeeded in membership by Wessagussett.

Five years ago Braintree and Metropolitan clubs were added to the association.

The six million dollar man.

It's Josiah Quincy, Jr., founder of cooperative banking in Massachusetts. He's the man for whom our bank was named. The six million dollars is what Quincy Cooperative Banks' depositors received in interest for the year ending April 29, 1978. Over 2,000 To Compete For Prestige And Trophies

A number of handsome and coveted trophies will be the rewards for the winners among the more than 2000 men, women, boys and girls who will compete in Quincy Bay Race Week.

The Fred Hunt Memorial Trophy is a perpetual award presented since 1966 by The Patriot Ledger in memory of the late yachting editor who served more than three decades.

This trophy is awarded annually to a person who has demonstrated a high degree of sportsmanship and a willingness to help others in the advancement of the yacht racing sport and who has contributed to the success of Race Week. It is to be held until the succeeding Race Week by the home club of the winner who is to be awarded a suitable keeper trophy for his permanent possession.

The Capt. James Berwick Finlay Memorial Trophy was presented to the Quincy Yacht Club in 1948 by Albert W. Finlay, his father, for competition during Race Week.

This beautiful trophy presented in loving memory of a son who, during his lifetime, did much to advance the sport of yachting on Massachusetts Bay to the yacht or yachtsman considered to have performed some single act of sportsmanship during Race Week.

It is to be suitably engraved annually and will remain in the custody of the Quincy Yacht Club. A suitably engraved keeper trophy will be awarded to the winner for his permanent possession.

The Reynolds Memorial Trophy is a perpetual trophy presented to the QBRWA in 1966 by the family of John Reynolds, an ardent supporter of and skipper in the Day Sailor Class until his untimely death in 1965.

This beautiful trophy is awarded annually to the Race Week winner in the Day Sailor Class and is to be held by him until Race Week of the following year when it is to be returned to the association.

A suitably engraved keeper trophy is to be awarded to the winner for his personal possession.

The 1300 Trophy has been presented each year since 1960 to the QBRWA by Radio Station WJDA to demonstrate its great and cooperative interest in Race Week and to aid in the stimulation of racing interest among the junior classes.

This beautiful trophy is awarded annually to the winning skipper in the Turnabout Class and becomes his permanent possession.

The Commodore Isadore Bromfield Trophy was presented two years ago to the QBRWA by the Commonwealth National Bank of Boston. It will be awarded annually to the Race Week winner according to the deed of gift. The winner is to be presented a suitably engraved trophy for his permanent possession.

The Morley Memorial Trophy is a perpetual trophy donated in memory of Robert Morley, a member of Town River Yacht Club and an able Snipe skipper. The trophy will be awarded to the winning skipper in the Snipe Class.

It is to be held by the winner until Race Week of the following year and is to be returned to the association. A suitably engraved keeper trophy will be awarded to the winner for his permanent possession.

The Howard Gannett Trophy has been presented each year since 1954 in memory of Howard Gannett, who served for more than 50 years as secretary of the Race Week Committee and was a member of the committee from 1939 until his death in 1953.

It is presented to the Race Week winner in a class to be selected by the committee.

The Quincy Heritage Trophy was first presented two years ago for the best decorated boat in the Marine Parade.

Details of the Harry Warner Memorial Trophy, the City of Boston Bermuda Cup and the three Frank E. Remick trophies can be found elsewhere on these pages.

Last year's winners were David Maloney, Finlay Trophy; Albert Woodman, Fred Hunt Trophy; Ed Gallagher Jr., Reynolds Trophy; Richard Marcel, Bermuda Cup; Edward Mills, 1300 Trophy; Doug McGregor and Ralph DiMattia [tie], Bromfield Trophy, and Dr. Keith Merrill, Harry Warner Trophy.

ON SWALLOWING GASOLINE

What do you do if your child swallows some gasoline? If he also spilled it on himself, get the wet clothing off and wash him with warm water and lots of soap to prevent chemical burns.

Then call a poison center or doctor right away. Get those numbers now and keep them by the phone so you don't waste heart beats looking them up. If there's no poison center in your phone book, get the number in advance from the operator.

Now what NOT to do. When someone has drunk gasoline, DO NOT make him throw-up unless the doctor or poison center tells you to. Sometimes throwing up can make it worse. The same is true for kerosene, lighter fluid, and fuel oil.

Of course, prevention would have been better. Keep gasoline away from children. When you have the gas can out, do not leave them with it for a second. One teaspoonful can be fatal to a small child. And never start syphoning by sucking on the hose. Kids aren't the only ones who get poisoned.

Frustrating Finale

Mariners Lose Playoff Spot

A week ago the Quincy Bay Mariners had a 12-6 record and was fighting for first place in the South Shore Coast Baseball League.

It appeared nothing could keep them from a playoff spot in their first season in the league.

However, they proceeded to lose their last three regular season games and finished in a fourth place tie with the Plymouth A's, necessitating a playoff for the fourth and final playoff spot.

Quincy was walloped, 9-2, Sunday, thereby ending its season in frustrating fashion as Plymouth made the fourth spot and joins first place Weymouth, second Place Rockland and third place Braintree.

The Mariners' downfall began when they were surprised by seventh place Randolph Town Team, 6-1.

Quincy was held to four hits by Gary Martin while Dave Raftery gave up nine. Steve Carrera had two hits and Lew Fishman and Preston Carroll one each for Quincy.

Next came a 6-2 loss to Rockland as the Mariners again were held to four hits, two by Carroll and one apiece by Dave Perdios and Bruce Cluett.

Weymouth then defeated Quincy, 8-5. Art Morgan had three of the Mariners' 10 hits. Bob Stack had two and Carroll, Perdios, Cluett, Carrera and Mike Murphy one each.

In Sunday's Plymouth game, which doomed the Mariners, they got off to a good start with two first inning runs but were blanked thereafter, while the A's scored twice in the second and third, once in the fourth and salted away the decision with four in the eighth.

Quincy collected but three hits, one each by Stack, Vespaziani and Steve Bell.

Track Club Wins 2 Team Titles

The Quincy Track Club won two team titles in the Lewiston Metric Championships and the Pine Tree Relays last Saturday and Sunday at Montello Field, Lewiston, Me.

Quincy won the Saturday crown with 68 points, clinched by the two top places in the mile relays.

Denise Santo came up with the finest performance of the meet, setting a club 14-15 record of 12.6 in the 100 meters. She also took third in the 200 meters in 27.1. Margaret Osterman won the 400 meters in 62.5 and the 110 relay team of Santo, Karen McCarthy, Paula Church and Osterman won in 53.0. The mile relay team of Church, Osterman, Donna Reardon and Karen Lindenfelzer also won.

Other scorers included Michelle Millane, who set club 14-15 records in the shot put with a second place 34-9 and a discus second place of 111½. McCarthy and Osterman took second and third in the long jump. Church as fifth in the 440. Lindenfelzer took fourth in the 880, and Mary Crehan and Reardon took third and fourth in both the 1500 and the 3000 meter runs. The "B" 110 relay team placed third and the B mile relay team took third.

Sunday Quincy dominated the Pine Tree Relays, winning with 48 points, and setting a meet record for the discus relay with Millane throwing 113-3. Linda Morash doing 67-5 and Lindenfelzer 62-8. Millane also improved her shot put record with a 35½ toss, helping the club to victory in the shot put relay along with Morash and Martha Donaghue.

Quincy also won the 200, 440 and 800 meter relays as well as the long jump relay.

Coaches John Jacoppo and Jeff Hennessy accompanied the girls on the overnight trip to Maine.

Quincy Junior All Stars Face Raynham

Quincy's Junior Baseball League All-Stars, still in the running after splitting two games last weekend, will face Raynham Saturday at 2 p.m. in the double elimination Stoughton Invitational Tournament.

Quincy breezed past Milton, 13-0, last Saturday as Joe Conti pitched a no-hitter. He faced only 20 batters and struck out 15. Mike Notorangelo, Mike Miller and Steve Hogan had three hits each, all of Hogan's being doubles; Mark Hubbard and Frank Reynolds had two apiece and Conti, Vin Cristiani, Bob McElaney, Mike Conlon and Brian Meehan one each.

Sunday, however, Quincy bowed to Middleboro, 8-4. Notorangelo, Conti, Conlon, Tom Travers and Hubbard had Quincy's hits.

The Quincy roster includes Notorangelo, McElaney, Conti, Conlon, Meehan, Miller, Hogan, Scott Mele, Cristiani, Travers, Mike Gill, Hubbard, Dave Krantzburg, Reynolds and Jim McPartland.

Joe Conti is the manager and his coaches are Kevin McDonough, Ace Abboud and Pete Cappola.

Fore River Playground Tennis Courts To Get Facelifting

The Fore River Playground tennis courts in Quincy Point will shortly undergo major repairs and resurfacing, announces Richard J. Koch, executive secretary of the Park and Recreation Board.

Derbes Brothers of Quincy was low bidder at $13,250 to renovate and sealcoat the courts. The project is being financed with community development and city funding.

Koch said the emphasis for several years has been to renovate and upgrade existing tennis courts throughout the city before considering the construction of new ones.

The School Department has resurfaced the five outdoor tennis courts adjacent to the Vocational Technical School on Russell Park for the enjoyment of tennis enthusiasts.

Among the larger outdoor tennis court facilities in the city are the Bishop Playground Tennis Courts on Holbrook Rd., Montclair, with a total of six; the Vocational Technical School on Russell Park has a complex of five outdoor courts; and Faxon Park in South Quincy has four tennis courts located within its confines.

The remaining 29 outdoor municipal public tennis courts are double and single units located at playground sites in each ward of the city for use of neighborhood residents.

Of the 44 city-owned courts, 33 are located on Park Department property and eleven on School Department land.

Located in the Montclair section of Quincy is the Wollaston Recreational Facility which includes 10 excellent outdoor tennis courts with lighting for evening play.

The Wollaston Recreational Facility is under the jurisdiction of Norfolk County and, although public, a reasonable fee is charged. Information or reservations may be made by calling 328-8665.

Two MDC outdoor tennis courts are located on Willard St., adjacent to the Shea Rink.

Quincy has a total of 56 public outdoor tennis courts located in the city and provided by city, county and MDC authorities.

The Park and Recreation Board requests that those utilizing municipal courts adopt a courtesy code, playing for one hour and relinquishing the facility to others waiting to play.

The city had only 24 outdoor tennis courts in 1964 compared to 44 today.

HAPPY ACRES DAY CAMP: Thursday's day trip was to Ferrings Pond where the campers enjoyed swimming and a picnic. Brian Ballen, John Yuma, Arthur Hill, Carolyn Reilly and Mary Ellen Birchmore enjoyed the swimming and the relief from the hot weather. Camps Special Event was the annual car wash with all the groups taking part. Each group took turns washing and drying the cars. Camp director, John Osgood and bus driver George McCall along with a busfull of campers attended a practice session of the New England Teamen Soccer Team at Schaeffer Stadium. Campers John Yscavich and Darryl Gleek really got a kick out of the trip.

Coming events that have the campers excited are the overnights for the boys and girls as well as boating and sailing at Black's Creek.

DISTRICT 5

FORE RIVER: The Junior girls basketball team maintained its winning ways with a 6-2 victory over Faxon Park. Margaret McBride stood out both offensively and defensively for the Falcons. Lisa Trifone, Kathy McBride and Kristin Fitzgerald were also standouts for the winners. The boys Midget baseball team behind the pitching of David Britt and Chris Marshall defeated the Pollard bomber, 17-8. Britt also contributed a double and home run. Other hitters for the Falcons were Robert Pitts, Darren Koss and Robert Fitzgerald. This week's "Falcon of the Week" is Margaret McBride. She participates in Junior girls softball and basketball as well as playing tennis.

FAXON PARK: Ceramic classes are a hit at Faxon. Last week's artists were Robert Laracy, Michael Sheils, Donna Rucker and Alanna Sheils. Macrame was the weekly arts and crafts project and Michael Macomber and Patricia McRudin made two of the best bracelets. Lisa Boyne and David Dwyer won the bubble gum blowing contest while Paul Gilbody and Kirk Riley won the water balloon throwing contest.

POLLARD: The Pollard Bombers hosted the District 5 Basketball Clinic where the Recreation Specialist taught basic fundamentals of the game. Even though the baseball teams lost both games a hardy congratulations must go to Edzo O'Brien who struck out 21 batters in two games. Other outstanding players for the bombers are David Healy, Timothy Brillo and Ronald Harkins.

ELM STREET: The parks winners in the Pepsi Hot Shot competition were Jean Fraser, Ricky Burns, Michael Devonshire, and Patrick Fay. Kick ball and wiffle ball are two of the favorite games played by the children at Elm St.

POND STREET: The Junior boys baseball team remained undefeated by beating Pollard 13-2. Team members include Tom Travers, Chip Jaehnig, Jim Grassi, Paul Sciblio, Chris Shaunessy, Richard Pettinelli, William Chaison and the Kellys, Steven and Kevin. The girls Senior and Junior basketball teams are also unbeaten

Morrisette Loses Bid For 22nd Zone Title

The Morrisette Legion baseball team failed to win its 22nd Zone 6 championship this year and now looks forward to the Northeast Regionals at Adams Field Aug. 23 to 27 when it will be the host team for the second time in three years.

Morrisette, whose title hopes went down the drain last week when it bowed to zone champion Weymouth, 6-3, will compete against the state champions from the six New England states and a team from New York. Morrisette won the regionals in 1975 and played in the Legion World Series in Rapid City, South Dakota. This year's World Series will be played in Yakima, Wash., which won the series in 1975.

Morrisette Coach Ray Cattaneo hopes to schedule several exhibition games to keep in shape for the regionals, while Zone 6 titlist Weymouth and Zone 6A winner Braintree will be going for the state crown.

Morrisette rebounded from the fatal loss to Weymouth to win its last two games, edging Scituate, 6-5, Monday at Adams Field in eight innings. It took a 13-6 record into its final game last night (Wednesday) against Braintree.

Don Perdios drove in the winning run Monday after a walk and a single by Dave King.

Paul O'Toole pitched the first five innings for Morrisette and Gary Earle pitched the last three and got the win, striking out six.

Morrisette edged Hingham, 8-7, last Friday, Mark Giordani scoring the winner on a wild pitch in the sixth inning. Hingham had sent 11 batters to the plate in the top of the sixth to lead, 7-5.

Mike McCormack hit his third homer over the 356-foot sign in right field at Adams Field and Giordani and King had two hits each.

In the title-deciding loss to Weymouth, the champs clinched the win with five runs in the third inning. Earle went all the way for Morrisette and pitched outstanding ball except for that one inning.

Steve Cook and Perdios each had two hits and Giordani, King and Bob Biagini had one apiece.

Quincy, which finished its season in grand fashion with three wins in a row, started Morrisette's downfall by upsetting the defending champs, 7-6, earlier last week.

Quincy was held to three hits but took advantage of errors and walks and won it with a run in the last inning. Ron Prezioso walked. After King made a dazzling diving catch of Rich Gilbody's pop. Brian Jolley popped a bunt to the mound. Earle tried to make a shoestring catch but missed. He scrambled after the ball and, while sitting on the grass, fired low to first base. The ball got away and Prezioso scored.

Gilbody, Dean Prescott and Bob Roberts had the only Quincy hits. For Morrisette Giordani had two and Cook, McCormack, King, Biagini and Pete Niosi had one each.

Quincy followed up with a 2-1 win over luckless Wollaston, which finished 4-14. It was one of the best pitched games of the Zone 6 season.

Starters Prezioso of Quincy and Bob Lindenfelzer of Wollaston were outstanding through six innings. Both were relieved in the seventh when the game was decided.

Quincy scored in the fourth when Prescott walked, was bunted along by Roberts and Smart singled home Prescott.

In the top of the seventh Wollaston tied it when Tom LaBlue walked and Art Davis relieved Prezioso. LaBlue stole second, moved up on an infield single by Jim Flaherty. Pinch runner John Denardo stole second. Dave McLaughlin threw out LaBlue at the plate on a disputed play but Jim Travers hit a sky high pop that Davis misjudged and Denardo scored the tying run.

In the bottom of the seventh Jeff Giordani walked and LaBlue relieved Lindenfelzer. Giordani moved up on a wild pitch and scored the winner on McLaughlin's single.

Each team had only three hits, Smart having two and Gilbody one for Quincy, and Travers, Flaherty and Bob Stevens one each for Wollaston.

Quincy finished up Friday by upsetting Weymouth, 8-4, to wind up with an 8-11 record, as Gilbody broke up a 4-4 tie with a 380-foot grand slam home run in the final inning.

Jolley's two-run single in the fifth had tied the game for Quincy and Davis picked up the win.

Stricter Requirements For Real Estate Licenses

Applicants for real estate licenses in Massachusetts will be required to meet minimum educational requirements under a new reform measure signed into law by Gov. Dukakis.

Edward P. Flavin, president of the Quincy and South Shore Board of Realtors, joined officials and members of the Massachusetts Association of Realtors in hailing the measure. Flavin and several members of the Quincy board were active in securing passage of the bill.

Under the new law, which becomes effective Jan. 1, 1980, individuals applying for a real estate salesman's license will be required to complete 24 classroom hours in real estate subjects. Applicants for a broker's license will be required to complete an additional 30 classroom hours in addition to having been actively associated as a real estate salesman with a licensed broker for a period of one year.

"We are certain that this law will improve professionalism in the real estate industry and it will surely upgrade and improve the quality of services being rendered by real estate brokers and salesmen in the years to come," Flavin said.

ESCROW

One word used frequently in real estate matters but not too well understood by the layman is the word "ESCROW".

This word normally pops its head with regard to "deposit" or "earnest money" paid at time of signing a purchase and sales agreement. This deposit is held in "escrow" or a "trustee" account until the closing. The word "ESCROW" may occur again at the culmination of the sale of a home if any of the terms of the purchase and sales agreement are incomplete. This sum of money is placed in the hands of an impartial party [usually the attorney or the bank] by one party of the transaction and is not released to the other party until he meets specific conditions.

For example, if there is painting or landscaping to be completed at the time of the closing, the money for this work can be held in escrow until it is completed. In this way, the passing of title will not be held up until the job is completed, yet both parties are protected.

Whether buying or selling, turn to Realty World - President Real Estate for all your real estate needs.

Joseph McDonough To Appeal Ballot Disqualification

Quincy Atty. Joseph P. McDonough plans to appeal his disqualification by the State Ballot Law Commission as a candidate for Congress from the 11th District.

McDonough, who recently moved his home to Hyde Park, was ruled off the ballot last Friday when the Commission decided that a large number of signatures on his nomination papers were invalid.

McDonough said he obtained 3,152 signatures and a maximum of 1,020 names [68 on each of 15 challenged sheets] were called invalid, leaving 2,132 legitimate signatures, more than the required 2,000.

He said he will file his appeal in Suffolk Superior Court in the next few days.

Also ruled off the Congressional ballot in the Sept. 19 primary was George\ Donovan, an attorney who lives at 79 North Central Ave., Wollaston, who lost 496 signatures ruled "not genuine".

Burke's Campaign Chairman Backs Donnelly

Rep. Brian J. Donnelly [D-Dorchester-Milton], has the support of Mrs. Madeline L. Moore in his bid to succeed retiring Cong. James A. Burke [D-Milton] in the 11th Congressional District.

Mrs. Moore served as chairman of Burke's campaign committee for the past 10 years.

Donnelly's "roots in the 11th district have been established over the period of a lifetime," said Mrs. Moore. "Such background would be a major advantage in helping to make Donnelly an effective congressman."

United Auto Workers Endorse McCarthy

The United Auto Workers of Eastern Mass have endorsed Patrick H. McCarthy for Congress in the 11th District and contributed $1,500 to his campaign.

Support for McCarthy in the Sept. 19 Democratic primary was voted by the Executive Board of the Regional Confrerence of the union, which has 9,000 members in Eastern Mass with more than 2,000 living in the 11th district.

The check for $1,500 was presented to McCarthy by Vincent Ofria of Quincy and Alex Berzins of Hyde Park, both directors of area locals.

The auto workers are the third labor organization to announce their support for McCarthy in the past two weeks.

Fund-Raiser For Lt. Gov. O'Neill

A fund-raiser for Lt. Gov. Thomas P. O'Neill III, featuring the Kingston Trio, has been scheduled for Sunday, Aug. 6, at the South Shore Music Circus in Cohasset.

Tickets for South Shore people are available through Eleanor Iacobucci at 472-5768.

Morrissey Raps Governor

City Pushes For Permanent Jet Noise Solution

By TOM HENSHAW

Quincy may appear to have won a round in the battle against airplane noise but the fight is far from over.

Gov. Dukakis announced Monday that the FAA will experiment with a new overwater takeoff pattern between 11 p.m. and 7 a.m. starting yesterday [Wednesday] and continuing for a month.

Leaders of the fight in Quincy, while grateful for small favors, indicated they plan to push ahead on all fronts to insure a permanent solution to the problem of aircraft noise.

"It's a publicity thing," snapped Rep. Michael W. Morrissey [D-Quincy], one of the fight leaders who was vacationing on Martha's Vineyard when Dukakis called a press conference to make the announcement.

"I think the governor's office is just trying to bail out of this thing. They knew last week that this was going to happen. But he called everybody in for a press conference on Monday.

"A guy called up my house and told my mother, 'I know Rep. Morrissey is on vacation but we just wanted to let him know there's a press conference in the governor's office.'

"I'm glad I didn't make it because I don't think I'd want to be part of anything like that. I don't think it's an acceptable solution."

Bernice Mader, chairman of Citizens Against Airplane Noise [CAAN] announced that the big public hearing scheduled for the Quincy Vo Tech School gym was still on for last night [Wednesday] at 8 p.m.

"We do not believe that the efforts on the part of the governor's office go far enough to afford Quincy residents substantial relief," she said.

"This first step takes into account only the part of the day when we are least impacted. Only about 25 of the 125 to 150 flights a day take place at night. Granted it's night relief but what about day relief?

"We must have people at the hearing to speed up abatement. If just the threat of a mass

Defy National Ruling

Quincy Jaycees To Keep, Invite Women Members

By PETER BARNICLE

The recently revived Quincy Jaycees are not about to give up their women members despite a ruling from national headquarters that after Dec. 31, women can only be considered "associate" members.

Joseph DeRosa, president of the Quincy Jaycees, said he is opposed to the edict from national headquarters.

"We have six women in our chapter and they do good work and bring us a lot of motivation," DeRosa said.

He pointed out that the Quincy chapter had been moribund for several years and is just now engaged in a membership drive. Within the past month three women have become members.

Under the national edict females could become members but could not hold office. At the moment, according to DeRosa, six chapters in Massachusetts have women presidents.

The national convention of the Jaycees in May voted to continue the three year pilot program allowing women to be members of the organization.

Last month the national executive informed all chapters that as of the end of the year women would have to be carried as associate members and would not be eligible for any office in the Jaycees.

DeRosa noted that at the convention the pilot program being carried out in Massachusetts and California had been approved for at least another year.

He said opposition to full membership of women in the Jaycees came from the south and midwestern states.

Presently Massachusetts chapters are conducting a survey

Hospital Receives $755 Grant

Quincy City Hospital has received a U.S. Public Health Service grant of $755 under the Nursing Scholarship Program, it was announced by Cong. James A. Burke (D-Milton).

98 Samples Taken

City Beach Bacteria Count Good

The bacteria count at 13 city beaches has been good to excellent from June 14 to July 31, reports Richard J. Koch, executive secretary of the Park-Recreation Board.

Koch said 98 samples were taken during the seven week period and the 1,000 coliform count was recorded only once. It was surpassed eight times in the same period last year.

A coliform count of more than 1,000 per 100 millimeters is considered as a guide that requires additional investigation, survey or special analysis of the water.

Starting in 1970 and in each succeeding year the water quality has improved continually and has been good for the past several years, said Koch.

According to the State Department of Public Health, the bacteriological quality of bathing beach waters indicates the fact that sewerage or other hazardous substances are being discharged into the bathing areas and swimming areas; or that high bathing density has created a condition which is or may be dangerous to the public health.

Chlorination of street drains emptying into the beach area, elimination of the Moon Island sewerage treatment plant and chlorination of the general beach area may have all contributed to the reduction of water pollution during the bathing period since the 1970 season.

The Department of Public Health reduced the coliform count from 1500 allowable in 1968 to 1000 allowable in 1969, an action that results in greater protection to the swimmers.

Koch also announced that a total of 1,584 cubic yards of beach sand was purchased by the Park Department at a cost of $4,435.20 and the sand was delivered and spread at the 10 city beaches within Park Department jurisdiction.

The lowest bidder for the 1978 season was C. P. Gardiner Co. of Quincy at $2.80 per cubic yard, an increase of 55 cents over last years price of $2.25 or $637 overall additional cost for beach sand.

The city beaches receiving the greatest amounts of sand include: Avalon Beach in Quincy Point, 360 cubic yards; Perry Beach on Parkhurst St. in Houghs Neck, 252 cubic yards; Orchard Beach, 270 cubic yards and Nickerson Beach, 216 cubic yards, both in Squantum, and Baker Beach in Germantown, 198 cubic yards.

Each of the other locations required less than 100 yards. Mound Street Beach in Quincy Point and Rocky Beach, Germantown, required very little sand due to recent major renovations.

SENIOR CITIZENS

This notice is being written in response to the thousands of requests for information and applications concerning the Elderly Housing known as "Granite Place" being built on Granite Street in Quincy Center.

Residents for the 270 units will be selected from applications filed with O'Connell Management Company, Inc., 45 School Street, Quincy, Mass. The Department of Housing and Urban Development requires that applications not be made available until 90 days before the completion of the building. A public notice will appear in this paper, probably in November, giving the time and place where applications will be available.

Rents for the selected residents will be 25% of their income as computed on the HUD applications. The maximum income levels for one person is $10,100; for two people $11,500; and for three people $12,950 per year. If your income exceeds these limits you would not be eligible.

Raymondi Asks Cleanup In Shipyard Area

City Councillor Daniel G. Raymondi has called for a general cleanup of the area surrounding the General Dynamics Quincy Shipyard in Quincy Point.

In letters to the Department of Public Works and the Quincy Disaster Agency, Raymondi noted that the sidewalks and curbs in the area are littered with debris and broken bottles.

Jewels & Gems

Pins are coming back onto the jewelry scene. This might have something to do with the new look called "the return of the dress." Most of the new dresses lack seams and have fairly straight lines. To balance this, there is a new attention to collars. Collars now come notched, rolled, cowled, and rounded. A pin, or two, would be the perfect accessory. Visit our jewelry showcases and notice the beautiful pins ready for your "new look" in a variety of price ranges.

You're welcome to stop by and see our beautiful displays, of pins and other pieces of jewelry, at GRONO & CHRISTIE, INC., 536 Adams St., East Milton, 696-1490. Up To $5 Million

Quincy In Competition For Heritage Park Funds

Quincy is one of 31 cities in Massachusetts in competition for up to $5 million in state funds for creation of a heritage park to spur "economic revitalization and a sense of community pride."

Three or four of the cities on the "distressed areas" list will be chosen by the State Department of Environmental Management for grants which will be included in Gov. Dukakis' 1979-80 capital outlay budget.

The Governor said the plan was prompted by the success of the Lowell Heritage Park and the legislature's recent authorization of $5 million for a similar project in Fall River.

The Lowell Park is built around the city's development as the first planned industrial city in America and has triggered tens of millions of dollars in private and public investment.

The Fall River Park will center on the Battleship Cove area, site of the USS Massachusetts, and is expected to generate $12 to $17 million in private development.

"Since colonial times," said Gov. Dukakis, "our older urban areas have been centers of leadership in industry, learning, culture and commerce.

"Unfortunately their recent decline has been marked by a widespread notion that older cities are unattractive places which should be avoided or part of the past that deserves to be forgotten.

"Nothing could be more erroneous.

"The heritage parks will highlight their contributions and will provide vital recreational and open space for inner city residents.

"And equally important, they are certain to be the catalyst for private investment that will lead to an economic rebirth of the downtowns."

Under criteria developed by the DEM, cities contesting for the heritage park designation must outline plans for recreation and protection of historical resources, estimate costs and cite public and private funds needed for park improvement.

Park themes must relate to the specific history of the city, focusing on such areas as the natural environment, maritime history, industry and labor, or commerce.

DEM will evaluate the projects based on their community need, coordination with downtown revitalization plans, protection of resources of statewide significance, provision of recreational and open space opportunities and local support.

The plan sets up the following categories of distress for larger cities:

- Age of housing.

Quincy qualifies since 71.2 per cent of its housing was built before 1940.

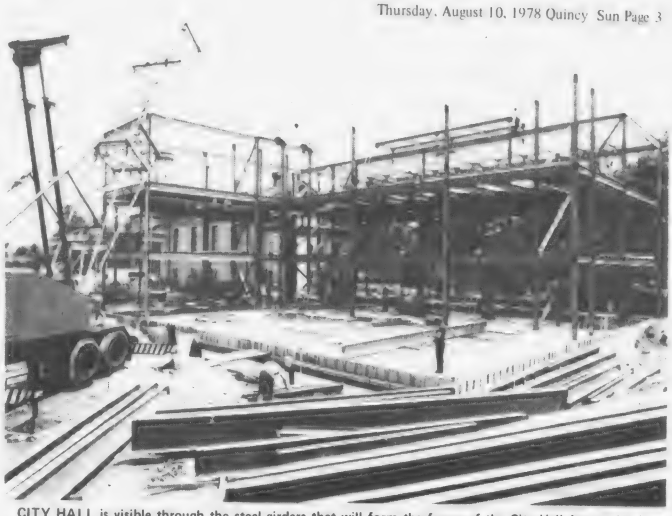
- Per capita income.

Quincy does not qualify.

- Population lag or decline.

Quincy qualifies since its rate of increase has been only 4.67 per cent between 1960 and 1975.

- Unemployment.



Quincy qualifies since its rate of unemployment for 1976 was 9.3 per cent.

- Job lag or decline.

Quincy qualifies since its job lag was down 23 per cent in retail and management.

- Poverty.

Quincy does not qualify.

$391,115 In Wiring

The department of wire inspection during July issued 104 permits for work to cost an estimated $391,115.

William H. Pitts, inspector of wires, reports that the major wiring projects during the month included the new addition to City Hall, 1305 Hancock St., and installation of elevators in three buildings at Faxon Commons, 1027, 1037 and 1055 Southern Artery.

Forty-five certificates of approval were issued to Massachusetts Electric and $1,626 was collected in fees.

5000 Shipyard Workers have a lot at stake.

That's why they want Pat McCarthy in Congress.

The Quincy Shipyard.
Backbone of the South Shore economy.
Largest single employer of Brockton residents.
Last federally-supported bright spot in Massachusetts.
The Quincy Shipyard is the economic symbol of the 11th Congressional District.

With so much at stake, the 5000 Shipyard Workers want a Congressman Washington will take seriously.

On August 1, 1978, Local #5 of the International Union of Marine Shipbuilding Workers of America endorsed Pat McCarthy for Congress.

In their own words, here's why:

"I looked over each one of those six candidates and I said to myself - - which one is really going to be taken seriously in Washington. I had to go with Pat McCarthy. It wasn't even close."

— Tony Svizzero, New England Regional Director

"I knew McCarthy's record as Congressman Moakley's top man. So I wasn't surprised he knew all about Congress. But I couldn't believe how much he knew about all our own special problems. You know, the LNG, the destroyers, the whole bit."

— Joseph Gramazio, Trustee

"Hey, we're talking about my job, my mortgage, and my kids education. You'd better believe I have a lot at stake in this election. Pat McCarthy? I was impressed. He's got my vote."

— George O'Kane, Treasurer

"Two years ago, when Pat McCarthy ran against Jimmy Burke and got 43% of the vote, we were with Burke because he was such a great friend of the shipyard. Now we're with Pat. He's got the background to deliver."

— Stan Kyller, President

Paid for by the McCarthy for Congress Committee, 67 Highland Avenue, Randolph, MA 02368; Richard Pierce, Treasurer.

Stay Alive!

RISKING YOUR CHILD'S LIFE

By Jack Silverstein

If you care about your children, you shouldn't let them ride in your car unrestrained. In a crash, a child's fragile body can become a missile. For example, if you're involved in a head-on collision at 30 mph, you car will stop moving in less than a second. But something that's loose inside the car will keep moving at 30 mph - until it hits a solid object. And that "something" could be your child.

It's impossible for an adult to hold a child safely in a car. The strong force of even a minor collision can tear a child from an adult's grip. Using the same seat or shoulder belt to fasten a child and an adult together is also unsafe. In an accident, the child - crushed between the adult and the belt - would probably suffer internal injuries that could be fatal.

Infants and children under 4 should use special restraints built specifically for intants and car seats. After age 4 and until the child is tall enough - about 55 inches - to insure the correct fit of an adult's seat belt, he or she should sit on a firm cushion to position the lap belt at hip level rather than around the soft abdomen. But if no special restraint is available, using a standard belt is safer than allowing the youngster to ride loose.

Quincy Jaycees Defy National Ban On Women Members to determine what action they will take if the national organization is adament in its stand against women members.

The Quincy Jaycees, DeRosa said, is endeavoring to dispel the notion that the organization is exclusively for young executives. At the moment the Quincy chapter has 41 members, six of them women. The chapter is now engaged in a membership drive, seeking young women as well as young men.

"We are seeking a diversified membership," he said. "At the moment there are lawyers, certified public accountants, a telephone repairman, two plumbers, a court officer and people in a variety of other occupations.

The Jaycees meet on the first Wednesday of the month in the cafeteria at Quincy District Court. A program for the coming year is being prepared with emphasis on involvement in community affairs and individual development among the membership.

Last spring the Jaycees sponsored a magic show in Wollaston to raise money for a scholarship to be awarded to a Quincy High School graduate. The $200 scholarship will be presented at the September meeting.

JOSEPH J. DeROSA

On July 22 the group sponsored a fishing derby for youngsters at St. Moritz Pond. Prizes were awarded in a number of categories for quantity and quality.

The Jaycees also plan a CPR program this month and will have a raffle to aid the Muscular Dystrophy Association in the coming weeks.

DeRosa said the chapter has also started a "Speak Out" program to help members attain more confidence in public speaking and in meeting with other people. This is one of a series of programs designed to carry out the individual development part of the Jaycees objectives.

The all-out membership drive will get underway in September, but new members are always welcome, the chapter president said. Anybody interested is asked to contact John Flavin at 479-1000 or Ronald Rice at 472-3424.

Working with DeRosa as officers are: Chris Bunnell, internal vice president; Ronald Rice, external vice president; John Castleman, treasurer; John Flavin, secretary; John Reid, state director, and Robert Fahey and Nicholas DeRosa, directors.

Miss Quincy Bays To Swim For MDA

You know the winners of the Miss Quincy Bay Pageant look pretty in a swimsuit but did you ever wonder if they know how to swim?

Well, they can. And three of them are going to do just that for a worthy cause.

Kathy Mann, this year's winner; Terri McElaney [1977] and Mary Pickering [1976] are going to swim for youngsters who cannot.

The trio are serving as co-chairmen of Quincy's first Swim-a-thon for Muscular Dystrophy to be held Thursday, Aug. 24 from 5:30 p.m. to 10 p.m. at the Lincoln Hancock Community School Pool, Granite St.

And the girls are going to swim themselves.

They and other participants will raise funds for the MDA by having sponsors pledge money to them for each lap they swim at the pool. The pledges can be any size -- a nickel, dime, quarter, dollar, or up.

Sponsor pledge forms are available at the Lincoln Hancock Pool, city playgrounds, and at The Quincy Sun, 1372 Hancock St., Quincy Sq.

The event is being sponsored by the Quincy-South Shore Jerry Lewis Telethon Committee and the Lincoln Hancock Community School Council.

It is being carried out with the cooperation of School Supt. Dr. Lawrence Creedon, Mary Jo Riley, Community school coordinator, Ron Iacobucci, president of the Lincoln Hancock Community Council and City Recreation Director Charles Alongi.

Last year, Mary Pickering was chairman of a 24-hour Quincy dance marathon that raised $1,280 for Muscular Dystrophy. Terri McElaney danced in it.

This year, Kathy is joining them in the swim-a-thon.

You can help them help defeat muscular dystrophy - one of the cruelest diseases afflicting children - by sponsoring them or someone else in the swim-a-thon.

You'll be helping Jerry's Kids who can't swim.

COST OF GOING to Washington, D.C. this year is somewhere between $100,000-$150,000. That's the estimated financial ticket to win the 11th Congressional seat. Most of the major candidates in the race to succeed Congressman James Burke figure $100,000 to $150,000 as the minimum war chest for the campaign.

OPENING PARAGRAPHS That Make Us Want To Read Further Dept: From a news release from the office of Senator Edward Brooke:

"Sen. Edward W. Brooke [R-Mass] has secured Appropriations Committee approval of an amendment to the Senate HUD Appropriations bill which would make available up to $4 billion in 'Brooke-Cranston' GNMA tandem funds for FY 79."

Huh?

OBSERVATION: Skateboards may be a lot of fun but youngsters should be careful how and where they use them. One of three youngsters racing along Hancock St. the other day was lucky. He slipped and went sprawling. Fortunately there wasn't a car behind him or one coming in the opposite direction.

POLICE Chief Frank Finn has joined the jogging ranks. Sighted [how could you miss him] early the other morning sprinting along Washington St. in bright green shorts with matching color running shoes. He does about five miles an outing, in different sartorial splendor.

IF YOU CAUGHT "The Friends of Eddie Coyle" on TV recently you were probably amused by references to Quincy and other local areas. And you probably were trying to figure out the location of the South Shore Bank branch that was robbed. Actually, the two robberies were at different branches -- the first at Dedham and the second at South Weymouth. "Victims" of the holdups were actual bank employees.

LOOK ALIKES: Janice Mahoney, pretty teller at the Quincy Savings Bank downtown branch, and the middle girl in the Lawrence Welk singing trio.

SMALL WORLD DEPT: Did you know that the telephone exchange for St. Croix in the Virgin Islands is 773-- the same as in Quincy? Only the area code is 809.

The painting, Washington Crosses the Delaware was done in Germany in 1850, and the river used as a model was the Rhine.

meeting was able to bring us this far imagine the impact we can have when the meeting becomes a reality."

"There is no question," said Rep. James A. Sheets [D-Quincy], "that the steps taken so far are due to nothing but the pressure put on the governor and Massport by the people of Quincy and the South Shore.

"While this is a move in the right direction, we must remember it only affects a small percentage of the total number of aircraft that impact Quincy, the South Shore and Dorchester.

"Basically, it's a numbers game. Until such time as it's a 24-hour-a-day operation we should not in any way take the heat off the governor or Massport."

Mayor Tobin said he was happy with certain parts of the plan and unhappy with others.

"We're very happy and proud that Robert Whittington, the regional director of the FAA, told us that because of our concerted drive they pushed this experiment up 30 to 60 days," he said.

"The thing we're not happy with is that there is not a big percentage of the planes flying from 11 p.m. to 7 a.m. You're talking about some 25 planes out of 150.

"Some of the people are not too happy with that but they've got to understand it's a big step because it's a significant change in standards that have been working at Logan Airport for years and years."

Tobin said the suit he filed in Suffolk Superior Court is still pending even though Judge Joseph Ford denied the city a preliminary injunction against Massport.

"The judge only ruled on one count in the eight-count complaint," said the Mayor. "He only denied the injunction. He didn't rule on the merits of the case.

"I think the FAA and Massport wanted to move expeditiously here before they got to the merits of the case. We've got a hell of a case there and they know it.

"I think this whole thing penetrated the governor's office and the FAA and that's why we're at the stage we're at right now."

Tobin said he has been working with the office of Cong. James A. Burke [D-Milton], who assured him that "if we're not satisfied with the recent turn in events he will arrange for me to meet with FAA officials in Washington.

The pattern being tested by the FAA consists of planes taking off from the controversial runway 22, turning out over the water, then looping back over Boston at 7-8,000 feet to join the regional pattern.

The problem is that the over-two-water routes are also used by incoming planes and a mixture of arrivals and departures would create a traffic hazard.

It is not clear why the experimental pattern was announced Monday by the governor since it was disclosed to some city officials a week ago Tuesday at an airport meeting. The Quincy Sun described it in last week's edition.

Mrs. Mader, who chaired a meeting of CAAN last Thursday night which was attended by Massport officials and Transportation Secretary Frederick P. Salvucci, expressed confusion.

"Massport and Salvucci had no really effective over-the-ocean answers for us as late as last Thursday night when they met with us," she said.

"It is hard to understand how these answers were found between 10:15 p.m. on Thursday evening and the next day when the governor's Monday press conference became common knowledge."

Both Tobin and Morrissey indicated that some relief may be coming from a different source around Labor Day when Runway 15 is scheduled to be reopened after undergoing repairs.

Tobin quoted the FAA's Whittington as saying that Runway 15 will "play a significant role in helping to solve the problem because it goes directly over the water and will handle 70 per cent of the load."

Mental Health Case Resumes Thursday

The case of Robert Colman vs. the South Shore Mental Health Association has been continued until today [Thursday] in Norfolk Superior Court, Dedham.

Colman, owner of the sporting goods store, is seeking a temporary retraining order to prevent the SSMHA from opening a day treatment center for adults at 1620 Hancock St.

Petitions circulating in Quincy Square protest the center as "detrimental to the commercial future of Quincy Center." The center would be a few doors down from Colman's store.

AUTO-VEYOR GARAGE proposed for downtown Quincy is shown in working prototype model. Cars enter at curbside vestibule and are stored on moving chain-type apparatus underground. Auto may be retrieved in about 37 seconds, according to inventor.

Modular Design

Compact Underground Parking Garage For Downtown?

By PETER BARNICLE

A new concept for underground parking, designed to alleviate downtown traffic congestion, is under consideration by Quincy officials.

The proposed garage - known as an Auto-veyor - is of modular construction and is much more compact than the standard ramp type underground garage.

Jacob Nevo, the inventor and developer, introduced the Auto-veyor to a group of Quincy businessmen and city officials at the South Shore Chamber of Commerce.

He explained the mechanical technology with the aid of a working model of the proposed facility. The optium module holds 50 to 60 cars and a complex of five modules would provide parking for 250 vehicles.

Each module would have its own sidewalk entrance and exit, making it possible to retrieve a car in about 37 seconds, the inventor said.

After driving into the curbside, car-port type entrance the motorist locks the vehicle and obtains a computerized ticket. On returning the ticket is placed in a slot and while the driver pays the fee the car is brought to the surface.

The developer says a fee of 25 cents would be charged on entering and 25 cents for each half hour. Such fees, he maintains would pay off the capital investment in from five to seven years.

Two locations in downtown Quincy have been suggested as possible sites for the Auto-veyor. One is the Della Chiesa parking lot where the city is now planning construction of an office building. The second location is the site of the proposed new courthouse on land now occupied by the Bargain Center.

Nevo said he favors the Della Chiesa area, pointing out that the city could build the garage by obtaining federal funds and lease the air-rights to the building developer.

Milton Bordman, counsel for Auto-veyor, has been making inquiries in Washington as to funds available from the Housing and Urban Development Administration and the Department of Transportation.

Ronald Zooleck, executive vice president of the Chamber of Commerce, said the Chamber considers the Auto-veyor "very attractive."

He pointed out that underground parking permits development of commercial, residential and recreational areas, and would give more taxable land for development.

Zooleck also said the security offered by this type of garage is greater than one in which people are wandering around.

City Councillor Leo J. Kelly said the Auto-veyor people have indicated to him that if Quincy undertakes to build an Auto-veyor in the city the company will move its corporate offices and plant here. This could mean several thousand new jobs.

A two-level model of Auto-veyor would require only 14-feet excavation. The cars are moved on an endless chain and this is operated by a computer which is able to retrieve a car out of sequence if necessary.

All the components are industrial "off-the-shelf" and standardized units which are readily available, Nevo said. Testing has proven that operation is trouble free. The crews who install the equipment also maintain it.

Such an installation would also lessen air pollution which can result in most underground garages when people cruise around looking for an empty space.

The car is locked before it is moved to its position. This is also a safety factor, it was pointed out. A sensor is run across the vehicle before it is stored. This enables the operator to determine if a person is hidden inside the car. Only the holder of the ticket can open the vehicle.

Zooleck said that Mayor Tobin, the Planning Board and other officials are investigating the utilization of the Auto-veyor and if they are convinced of its advantages will ask the City Council to approve construction.

Burke Corp. Collecting Aluminum Cans

A campaign to collect aluminum cans is being inaugurated by Burke Distributing Corp., 89 Teed Dr., Randolph, as its contribution to the drive to keep the area clear of litter.

Cans will be accepted at the Burke Plant on Saturdays from 8 a.m. to noon starting Aug. 5, according to Alex G. Fotiades, general sales manager of the firm.

Service clubs, veterans organizations and fraternal groups have all been informed of the drive with the suggestion they might raise money by participating. Burke will pay 17 cents a pound for the aluminum containers. It is estimated that approximately 23 12-ounce containers weigh one pound.

To help collectors Burke's will distribute magnets for testing. The magnet will attract a can containing steel, but will not pick up an all aluminum container.

Wollaston Beach Business Plan Protested

A hundred Wollaston homeowners, alternately hooting and cheering, jammed a City Council Chamber hearing to show their disapproval of a business zoning plan for Wollaston Beach.

Aug. 10-16, 1956
22 Years Ago This Week

The beach already was zoned for business and the plan under study would change it to a stricter business zoning, but the residents were in favor of Residential A and B zoning for beachfront property.

"We don't want this to be another Revere Beach," said one angry resident.

Three people spoke out against the business zoning plan and 97 others registered their opposition while four spoke up for it but only five signified they were in favor.

McDONOUGH CHALLENGED

The State Ballot Law Commission ruled Quincy Atty. Joseph P. McDonough out as a candidate for lieutenant governor after a handwriting expert testified many of his nomination signatures were invalid.

McDonough, former chairman of the Quincy Rent Control Board, petitioned Suffolk Superior Court for a review of the commission's ruling.

His signatures were challenged by Joseph A. Burke, brother of James A. Burke of Hyde Park, another candidate for the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor.

WAGE TALKS STALL

The Shipbuilders Union, representing 14,000 workers in eight East Coast shipyards, turned down a Bethlehem Steel Co. offer of a three-year contract giving them a 21 1/2 to 28 cent an hour raise.

"Except for the union shop," said Donald Edmonston, president of Local 5 at the Fore River Shipyard, "the company has rejected every one of the proposals made by the union to improve seniority and other working conditions."

Edmonston said the union was seeking a 28-cent hourly wage increase on a one-year contract with call-in pay and improvements on holiday pay, seniority rights and vacations.

Can't buy a house?
Don't tell that to last year's first-timers!

By Philip J. Lawrence, President

It just isn't true that you can't buy a house anymore unless you already own one. Or that if you can make that first-time purchase, you must be loaded with money.

A comprehensive study of 8,500 mortgage applications approved in 1977 by almost 200 savings associations across the country has been published by the U.S. League of Savings Associations. It reveals that though ownership may come easier the second time around, new buyers accounted for one of every three homes sold in 1977.

As may be expected, the survey found that first-time buyers are younger, have smaller families, make less money, and purchase less expensive homes.

Two-thirds of the new buyers were under 30 years of age, as compared with only one of every five repurchasers. Half of them had family incomes under $20,000, whereas less than a third of repurchasers were in this earning category.

Over 43% of the newcomers represented families of two people, but only 26% of the repurchasers had families that small.

Single people buying homes were especially evident among the first-timers. Commenting about the 25% of these persons who were not married, Kenneth J. Thygerson, the League's chief economist, said, "They are beginning to recognize that they are missing out on one of the best investments open to them."

Secondary income was important to the new buyers, with one-third receiving 30% or more of the total income from a second earner. Only one of three repurchasers received this kind of help.

New buyers looked to existing homes which tend to be less expensive. Over 57% of them bought homes for less than $40,000. But 30% of the repurchasers spent more than $60,000 for their homes. Home equity represented a large share of the repurchaser's net worth and helped him to invest more money in his next house.

The U.S. League study demonstrates that home ownership is still a goal being realized by those of moderate means as well as the affluent.

Weatherman Curtails Racing

QBRW Ocean Racing To Be Rescheduled

QBRW President Bernie Reisberg announces the Quincy Bay Race Week ocean racing, called off last Saturday because of the weather, will be rescheduled later this month.

"The skippers told me they wanted to go ahead with the races and we will have them near the end of the month," Reisberg said. "The date will be announced."

The weatherman failed to cooperate but the 41st edition of Race Week was rated a success despite the cancellation of the ocean racing, all racing on Thursday, the second day of racing, and the inside racing Sunday.

Reisberg said he couldn't even guess the number of entrants in Race Week due to the many who were forced to turn back.

"Those from North Shore clubs were unable to make it due to the weather and had to turn back," he said.

However, the weatherman did cooperate for the colorful Marine Parade Sunday, with fine weather during the two hours of the parade.

REMEMBER WHEN?

Remember when the Quincy Yacht Club looked like this in 1894? This etching was taken from Quincy Yacht Club Yearbook of the same year. The yacht club, now in its 104th year, was heavily damaged during the Great Blizzard of 1978 and is undergoing extensive repairs. But its sailors were as active as ever in this year's Quincy Bay Race Week.

Local 1139, Golden First Round Playoff Winners

Local 1139 and Golden Print won the first round of the Babe Ruth League playoffs, Local 1139 eliminating the Police Club and Golden Print ousting the Elks in three games.

Local 1139 blanked Police, 4-0, behind the two-hit pitching of Mark Millane in the opening game. Millane struck out 14. Mark Righini, Wally Kilgallon, Millane, Kevin Howlett, Richie Hallberg and Antony Twohig had the hits off loser John Costigan, while John Sweet had both hits for the Police. A fine throw from Twohig in center field to third baseman Kilgallon cut down the runner trying to advance after the catch to end a Police threat in the sixth inning.

The Police evened the series, 3-0, as Gary DiNardo pitched three-hit ball to edge Bob Hallberg, who allowed only four hits. Ron Pettinelli had two Police hits and drove in a run, while John Costigan and Sweet had the other hits. Millane had two hits and Hallberg one for Local 1139.

Millane came back to pitch a three-hitter to give Local 1139 a 1-0 win in the series clincher as he nipped Costigan in a brilliant pitching duel. Costigan also allowed just three hits. Kevin Howlett singled, stole second and scored on Rich Hallberg's hit for the lone run in the second. Kilgallon had the other hit. For Police DiNardo, Sweet and Mike Pettinelli had the hits. Howlett was outstanding behind the plate for Local 1139 and Millane started two double plays.

Golden won the clincher, 8-4, with Martin the winning pitcher. Golden took a 2-0 lead in the first as Todd and Bob Ready singled, moved up on a double steal and Todd scored on a passed ball. Ready scored on a squeeze bunt by Martin. In the fourth the Elks scored a run when Peecevich singled, stole second and came all the way home on a wild pitch.

Steve Stohlberg doubled for two runs and Bill Shaw singled in Stohlberg.

In the seventh Golden scored its final two runs when Ready and Molloy singled, moved up on a bunt and scored on Balzano's single.

This week Golden is playing Houghs Neck, the American League champs, with the third game, if necessary, being played Friday night. Meanwhile, Golden is meeting the National League champs, Morrisette Post, with the third game, if necessary, also being played Friday.

In a playoff game to decide third place in the American League, Golden had defeated Barry's Deli, 8-2, with Todd pitching a five-hitter.

Morrisette Winds Up On Strong Note

Although Morrisette Legion's baseball team failed to win a 22nd Zone 6 championship, it did finish strong with three wins in a row and last week it upset Braintree's Zone 6-A champions, 4-3, in the final regularly scheduled game.

Morrisette, with a 14-6 record, finished second to Weymouth and now awaits the Northeast Regional Tournament, which it will host for the second time in three years Aug. 23 to 27 at Adams Field. The winner will play in the Legion World Series in Yakima, Washington.

Morrisette won the regional tourney in 1975 after taking the state crown for the first time and played in the World Series.

In last week's finale, Gary Earle pitched fine ball and Mark Giordani scored the winning run on a bases-loaded walk.

Billy Deitsch and Dave King had two hits apiece for Morrisette and Giordani, Steve Cook, Mike McCormick and Don Perdios one each.

Golden Asks McDonough To Suspend Self From Duties

William B. Golden of Quincy has asked Governor's Councillor Patrick J. [Sonny] McDonough to suspend himself from official duties pending an investigation of "inaccuracies" in his testimony before the State Ballot Law Commission.

Golden, an attorney who is opposing McDonough for the Democratic nomination for governor's council, challenged McDonough's place on the ballot on grounds that he is a resident of Marathon, Fla., and not Dorchester, where he lists his voting address.

During the hearing before the Commission, McDonough testified that he did not have a driver's license issued in Florida but Golden came up with documentation claiming McDonough obtained a Florida license on May 12, 1977, listing his address as 955 122nd St., Marathon.

The Commission denied Golden's motion.

"I believe that Mr. McDonough's failure to tell the truth concerning the existence of his Florida driver's license calls into question the credibility of his entire testimony before the State Ballot Law Commission," said Golden.

"In the light of the Commission's refusal to reopen the hearing on this matter, I am publicly calling on Mr. McDonough to suspend himself from all official duties until the appropriate authorities can fully investigate the serious allegations which I have raised.

"I am also requesting through my attorney that the State Ballot Law Commission take immediate steps to refer this matter to the appropriate legal authorities."

Local 5 Endorses McCarthy For Congress

The 5,700-member Local 5 of the Shipbuilders Union has endorsed Randolph attorney Patrick H. McCarthy for the 11th District Congressional seat being vacated by James A. Burke [D-Milton].

"We want Pat McCarthy in Washington because he knows his way around and won't spend the first two years getting his feet wet," said Local 5 President Stan Kyller.

"We're losing a great friend in Congressman Burke and cannot wait for our next representative to get on-the-job training."

McCarthy, who served three years in Washington as chief-of-staff to Cong. Joseph Moakley [D-Boston], to continue Burke's efforts "to preserve our economic cornerstone, the Quincy shipyard."

"We looked over each of the six candidates and said to ourselves – which one is really going to be taken seriously in Washington," said Tony Svizzero, the union's New England regional director.

"We had to go with Pat McCarthy. It wasn't even close."

Nourse Sees New FR Bridge Biggest Economy Boost

"The biggest boost to the economy of the South Shore, Quincy and Weymouth in particular, will be the building of a new Fore River Bridge," says Dolores E. Nourse, Democratic candidate for state representative in the new Quincy-Weymouth district.

Speaking at a coffee reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert MacKenzie, 48 Abbott St., South Weymouth, Mrs. Nourse said she supports the project wholeheartedly.

"This $60 million project, to be built with 90 percent federal funding, is an absolute must to give General Dynamics that badly needed competitive edge to build the larger ships of the future," she said.

The candidate pointed out that the state's share of the cost of the bridge would be 10 percent, or approximately $6 million dollars.

DEBT-FREE HOUSE

Mr. Homeowner, does it make sense to strive for a paid-up mortgage as soon as possible? The so-called experts are divided down the middle on this question. So we'll cover the paid-up mortgage advocates today.

One of the prime motivations for buying homes is the view toward retirement. During that period, Social Security can, at best, act only as a supplement to living expenses. It will not pay for mortgage payments also. A paid-up mortgage in the latter, less affluent years of life can give a family a great sense of security and well being.

On the strictly financial side, the larger the down payment, the more you will save on interest costs and the lower your monthly mortgage payments will be, leaving more cash for savings and other living expenses. Also, the more you have invested in your house, the more you can take out when you eventually sell.

Whether buying or selling, turn to Realty World - President Real Estate for all your real estate needs.

State Given 30 Days

Court Looms If Promises Fail On Jet Noise Problem

By TOM HENSHAW

Quincy adopted a wait and see policy following last week's massive aircraft noise hearing during which state officials apologized profusely and promised better things to come.

Gov. Dukakis himself showed up unexpectedly in shirt sleeves to assure some 1,200 people in the Vo Tech School gym that "I will personally involve myself very actively in this and make sure we move just as quickly as humanly possible to deal with this issue effectively."

Ronald Kaufman, a member of the executive board of Citizens Against Airport Noise [CAAN], said the group considered it "a good meeting. We got our point across. We are concerned maybe we were to mild."

He said CAAN plans to give state authorities 30 days to shape up the flight patterns out of Logan Airport before entering the next phase of protest, which could include a class action law suit.

CAAN's executive board met Monday night to make plans for a leaflet campaign Saturday in Squantum, urging residents to keep up the pressure of their phone calls on Massport and Gov. Dukakis.

Monday was designated as the regular meeting night for CAAN and it was planned to invite representatives of Massport to the meeting Aug. 28 to discuss developments of the past few weeks.

Rep. James A. Sheets [D-Quincy], who is giving up his seat in the State House next year, said he will ask Rep. Michael W. Morrissey to file a bill for him assuring representation for the South Shore on Massport's seven-member board of directors.

Mayor Tobin described himself as "pleased with the hearing -- if they now follow through with their promises. If the FAA and Massport act in good faith there really isn't any purpose to do anything more right now."

Morrissey called the hearing "partially successful. If they can turn their promises into action then it will be a total success. We are part way there. We have to continue the fight."

Selected excerpts from the main speakers at the hearing follow:

Bernice Mader, chairman of CAAN:

"Yesterday the governor said, 'We are anticipating a long-term noise abatement over Quincy.' Let us hold him to that statement. In answer to my

Stolen From Birthplace

John Adams Wedding Vest, Other Articles Still Missing

Police have reported no progress in their search for the burglar who broke into the birthplace of John Quincy Adams on Franklin St., South Quincy, and made off with John Adams' wedding vest.

Also taken in the early Sunday morning break were a 165-year-old musket, powder horn and bayonet; two Civil War sabres; and a braided rug that was used to package the loot.

Quincy police said they checked out a couple of youngsters who were picked up by MDC police in Medford with a sabre of unknown origin but they failed to connect it with the birthplaces.

Mrs. Margaret O'Connell, who has charge of the Adams birthplaces for the Quincy Historical Society, said the break was discovered by a passing motorist who saw someone climbing out of the dish room window between 5 a.m. and 6 a.m. Sunday.

Two panes of glass were broken to permit entry, she said.

Mrs. O'Connell said the most serious loss was the Adams vest, a cream colored brocaded silk with sheafs of wheat embroidered in the front and English Tudor rose buttons.

It was made by John Adams'

Quincy Most Costly Of County's District Courts

Quincy District Court was by far the most expensive of the five district courts in Norfolk County during the past fiscal year, it was disclosed by Treasurer James Michael Collins.

The Quincy court's expenditures for judicial, clerks, probation and county defenders program were pegged at $1,213,329.

The others were Dedham $641,057, Wrentham $521,047, Brookline $374,403, and Stoughton $353,821 for a county total of $3,103,657.

Superior court costs totalled $2,256,388 and probate court expenses were $302,218 with most probate court salaries paid by the state.

BERNICE MADER, chairman of CAAN, opens the protestors' part of the jet noise hearing with a ringing defense of residents' rights.

More To Come

And Still More Money For Another 800 Quincy Residents

The State Treasurer's office released the final list of persons entitled to cash from the unclaimed money fund--and then announced that it has discovered still more unclaimed funds.

Treasurer Robert Q. Crane said Blue Cross-Blue Shield has turned over to the state $253,000 in unclaimed checks to subscribers and vendors between 1950 and 1968.

The names of those entitled to refunds from that windfall will be released at a later date.

Meanwhile, the fifth and final original list released by Crane included more than 800 names of Quincy people.

If your name appears on the following list, contact the State Treasurer, 12th Floor, McCormack Building, Ashburton Place, Boston 02108 or telephone 727-5192 or 727-1157.

Home For Battered Wives Planned At Gordon House

Dist. Atty. William D. Delahunt is expected to announce this week plans to open a federally funded home for battered wives and abused children at Gordon House at Quincy City Hospital.

The plan will include a "hot line", paid for by the district attorney's office.

The program will be a model for the state with the big grants coming from Washington. Applications for federal funds will be announced by Delahunt at a news conference today [Thursday].

Plans were finalized at a meeting Monday among Delahunt, Mayor Tobin, Hospital Director Anthony DeFalco, City Councillor Joanne Condon, Quincy policewoman Barbara DiNatale and the chairwoman of the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women.

Chief Cautions Police Officers Over Lodging House License

Quincy police officers John P. McDonough and Paul J. Leman Jr., were given a word of caution Tuesday when the City Licensing Board granted them a license to operate the Elmwood Lodging House, 293 Fayette St., Wollaston.

Police Chief Francis Finn, a member of the board, refrained from voting on the petition. The other four members of the board voiced approval.

"One word of caution," the Chief said after the vote. "If ever there is a call to the police from that address don't either of you answer it. Send somebody else."

He added that he would expect the officers not to let operation of the lodging house interfere with their police duties.

City Councillors Joanne Condon and John J. Lydon Jr., both recommended issuance of the license and appeared before the board to support the petition.

Board Wants Report On Restaurant Parking Lot

The Knotty Pine Restaurant, 518-526 Washington St., Quincy Point, was called before City Licensing Board Tuesday to explain why certain work ordered by the board a year ago has not yet been completed.

The board noted that grading, paving and screening of a parking lot has not been finished. Building Inspector Allan MacDonald also pointed out that some renovations had been started without a proper building permit.

Peter Saxonis, appearing for the restaurant, said he was waiting for reports from an engineer before proceeding.

The board told Saxonis they did not feel he was cooperating in obtaining permits and completing the work. The hearing was continued to Sept. 5 and the restaurant owner was told to appear with the engineer's reports and information as to progress on the parking lot.

Jewels & Gems

by Stan Manin

Rene Lalique, a French artist, was the most famous Art Nouveau jewelry crafter. His jewelry featured natural objects with lines that stretched to almost fantastic extremes. In his designs, a peacock's tail turned into a complicated trellis of gold design and his dragon fly pin featured wings that were small collages of gems. The dragon fly itself ended with a woman's torso and head. That made quite a pin.

Let us at GRONO & CHRISTIE, INC., 536 Adams St., East Milton, 696-1490 design a piece of jewelry especially for you. We have a fine selection of diamonds, loose or mounted, and invite you to come in and choose your own diamonds and settings. Golden Bowl Granted Temporary 2 A.M. License

By PETER BARNICLE

The Golden Bowl restaurant, 83-89 Franklin St., South Quincy, on Tuesday was granted a temporary 2 a.m. liquor license pending a further hearing on Sept. 5.

The restaurant has petitioned for a one hour extension of its license. Atty. George Burke, appearing for the restaurant, told the licensing board the extension is being sought to enable the company to meet "heavy financial commitments."

Burke said the restaurant is now carrying two mortgages and faces problems which could be alleviated by having a later closing hour.

Building Inspector Allen F. MacDonald, a member of the board, said at the outset that he is opposed to issuance of any 2 a.m. licenses. He cited complaints received from residents abutting Dutton's Restaurant after that establishment had been given a 2 a.m. license.

Burke said the Golden Bowl has exercised its option to purchase three dwellings abutting the restaurant and is now in the process of closing the transaction.

The attorney pointed out that because of the present restricted parking area the restaurant is unable to utilize the third floor of the building. He said an effort had been made to obtain permission from the MBTA for use of an area adjacent to the restaurant. However, the 'T' is using the area for parking during construction of the Red Line extension.

Burke said the dwellings are being purchased with the purpose of eventually razing them and expanding the present parking lot.

The board voted to continue the hearing until Sept. 5 and asked Burke to provide written proof of the status of the real estate transaction.

Police Chief Francis Finn voiced approval of the request for the temporary license. He said the summer is the best time of the year to test the impact of noise and other factors on nearby residents.

Board Chairman John Gillis, Health Commissioner Dr. Samuel Solomon, and Chief Finn voted in favor of the temporary license. MacDonald and Fire Chief Edward Barry voted in opposition

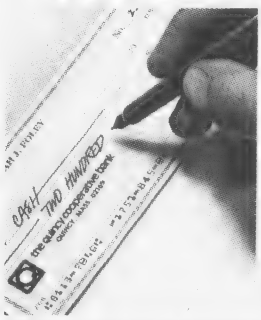
Raymondi Complains Of Brook Defouling

City Councillor Daniel G. Raymondi has lodged a complaint with the Public Works Department and the Conservation Commission about the befouling of Town Brook.



Raymondi said oil and other debris is being discharged into the brook causing an offensive odor and the destruction of the natural habitat of vegetation and fish life.

He said there is a possibility that residents are disposing of their oil changes into storm drains, which, he pointed out, is an illegal act.

To Train Girls -

Vocational Education Important Under Title IX

Implementation of Title IX and Chapter 622 laws dealing with equal opportunity was discussed by Loel Greene of the New England Equal Education Center, Hartford, Ct., at a workshop held at Quincy High School Method Center under the auspices of the Quincy school system.

Title IX applies to all schools which receive federal money and requires that every school system perform a self-evaluation, designate a responsible employee and develop a grievance procedure for teachers and students.

Greene told the educators that vocational education has been singled out as important under Title IX because of the critical need to train girls for the world of work.

The speaker noted that nine out of ten girls will work at some time in their lives and that four out of ten women will be the sole support of their children. He said that presently the average woman earns 58 cents for every dollar a man earns.

Under the law equal funding for boys and girls athletics is not required, but equal opportunity must be provided, Greene said. This means equal pay for coaches, equal schedules, uniforms and awards.

Title IX requires co-educational physical education at all school levels. Separate teams may be offered in contact sports such as boxing, rugby, wrestling, hockey, football and basketball.

Massachusetts Chapter 622 was enacted in 1971, but regulations were not promulgated until 1975, Greene said. He said no other state has an equal opportunity law as strong as Chapter 622. Under this law the only courses which may be segregated by sex are courses on human sexuality.

The state law, he said, requires guidance counselors provide a broad spectrum of career opportunities for boys and girls. All textbooks and learning materials are to be reviewed for sex stereotyping.

Greene said the law requires more attention to the inclusion of women in social studies, music, science and arts curricula.

Alicia Coletti, Title IX/622 coordinator for Quincy public schools and workshop director, said the seminar was set up to assess the status of the Quincy school system with regard to implementation of the regulations under Title IX and Chapter 622.

Upon successful completion of the course, certificates are awarded.

The Federation is a non-profit organization of directors and teachers of nursery schools and day care centers dedicated to improving the quality of child care throughout the state. It represents the views and interests of its members to state agencies and legislators.

Stay Alive!

Smoking And Menopause

By Jack Silverstein

It is a well known medical fact that smoking is more harmful to women than it is to men because of their smaller lungs and their additional reproduction systems. Though women now outlive men by about six years, by the year 2000, it is predicted that female smokers will actually die on the average of two to four years earlier than men. But now a new result from a study of lady smokers has risen from the ashtray.

A recent report in the British medical journal Lancet indicates that women who smoke are likely to undergo menopause 12-24 months earlier than women who have never smoked. The more women smoke, the earlier the menopause. These facts were a surprised finding in the study of heart disease in women of menopause age. The study included thousands of women in 7 countries, and the smoking and menopause correlation was closely similar in all countries.

Why should smoking affect menopause? Nobody knows yet - but these findings suggest that something in cigarette smoke may have an unsuspected affect on the body's production of distribution of female hormones.

Koch Club Scholarship Fund At $8,364 Mark

Recent gifts to the Koch Club Permanent Scholarship Fund have increased the current total to $8,364, according to Richard J. Koch, executive director.

A $100 check from the Koch Club Women's Bowling League, as well as donations from the Koch Club Couples Bowling League and individual gifts from Mrs. Ellen McAdam and Mrs. Trudy Kimball, raised $177.

The Permanent Scholarship Fund was established in 1973 on the 25th anniversary of the Koch Club with a $5,000 grant in trust to the City of Quincy; $3,000 of the amount was raised from the Silver Jubilee Booklet and a $1,000 gift from the North Quincy and Broadmeadows Districts.

All gifts and interest of the fund will accumulate and in 1998, on the 50th anniversary of the Koch Club, interest accrued between 1997-1998 will be used to provide a scholarship to a graduate from each of the high schools in Quincy or their successor institution or institutions.

The Permanent Scholarship Fund is established so that the Koch Club of Quincy or any other organization or individual may add to the principal.

The selection of the scholarship recipients and investment of scholarship fund monies are determined by five trustees, the Mayor of Quincy, the City Treasurer and the principals of Quincy High School, North Quincy High School and Quincy Vocational Technical School.

A $50 donation was also received from the Koch Club Men's Bowling League and applied to the Active Scholarship Fund.

The Koch Club Active Scholarship Fund was founded in 1959 with a $100 scholarship presented to a boy and girl graduate of North Quincy High. It was expanded in 1964 to include a boy and girl graduate of Quincy High School and in 1968, a boy graduate of the Vocational Technical School was added and a girl in 1970.

Since 1959, the Koch Club Active Scholarship Fund was awarded a total of $8,000 in awards to 88 boy and girl graduates of Quincy, North Quincy and the Vocational Technical High Schools.

Born In Germany

Liscombe Triplets Meet Their Grandparents

By PETER BARNICLE

There was plenty of excitement around the Liscombe household at 29 Rock Island Rd, Houghs Neck, the past two weeks with Jonathan, Gregory and Jeffrey Liscombe on their first visit with their paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. George Liscombe.

The triplet sons of Army Sgt. and Mrs. Edward Liscombe were born in Frankfort, West Germany, 13 months ago. Now, along with their brother Edward Jr., 8, they are on their way to a new home at Fort Benjamin Harrison in Indiana.

Young Edward attended the school maintained by the Army for servicemen's children and now he's looking forward to his new school in Indianapolis.

"He knows some German," his father said. "He took it in school a couple of years. In fact, I think he knows more German than he lets on."

Sgt. Liscombe attended Atherton Hough School, Broad Meadows Junior High and graduated from Quincy High School in 1967.

Shortly after graduation he enlisted and was stationed in Munich and Washington before returning to Germany with the Army postal service.

Back in Munich he met Cahide [Cevik] of Eskischir, Turkey, a town about 90 miles from Ankara. She was employed in Germany by an electronics firm.

One thing they did not have in common was language. Cahide spoke Turkish and fluent German, but no English. Liscombe took on the task of teaching her English and they were married in Munich in 1970.

In 1972 he was transferred to a post in San Antonio, Tex., and after a year 'Stateside' he was assigned to a post in Frankfort, Germany.

Sgt. Liscombe has three brothers, Robert, 39, of Tampa, Fla., Arnold, 34, of East Haddam, Ct., and George, 31, of Weymouth.

HOME FROM GERMANY -- Army Sgt. Edward Liscombe and his family visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Liscombe, 29 Rock Island Rd, Houghs Neck, en route from West Germany to new post in Indiana. The sergeant and his wife, Cahide, are parents of 13-month-old triplets. Sgt. Liscombe holds Gregory, and Mrs. Liscombe has Jonathan on her lap. Jeffrey and his older brother, Edward, 8, seated in foreground. [Quincy Sun Photo by Steve Grochowski]

Services Held For W. Edgar Wylie, 86, Retired Scout Executive

On the occasion of his retirement he and Mrs. Wylie were guests at a farewell reception held at the Woodward School for Girls, at which more than 1,000 persons honored them.

When he came to Quincy the Boy Scout Council had less than 800 members. By the time of his retirement it had grown to 2,389 boys and 881 adults in 79 units.

He was a firm believer in the influence of the home and church as a deterent to juvenile delinquency.

In addition to his work in Scouting he joined the American Red Cross in 1917 and was unpaid secretary of the Quincy Chapter from 1938-55. He also worked with the Quincy Community Fund.

Besides his wife, he is survived by a son, William E. Wylie, owner and manager of a Mexican restaurant in Hanover; a daughter, Mrs. Betty W. Atherton of Washington, D.C.; five grandchildren and two nephews.

Mrs. Atherton is the wife of Alfred L. Atherton, U.S. Ambassador at Large who has most recently been active in Middle East peace negotiations.

Court Action Withdrawn

Mental Health Clinic Issue Decision In Hands Of Building Inspector

The skirmish over a proposed South Shore Mental Health Association clinic on Hancock St. in downtown Quincy has moved out of the courts and into the city building inspectors office.

Dr. Ronald G. Hersch, director of the South Shore West Mental Health Center, said the group plans to file this week for a building permit to make alterations at 1620 Hancock St.

Dr. Hersch said an application was filed more than 30 days ago but it was denied because the building inspector ruled that it was incomplete.

Meanwhile, Robert Colman, proprietor of Colman's Sporting Goods Store at 1630 Hancock St., filed suit seeking to ban the clinic on grounds that it would be a school.

The suit was withdrawn in Norfolk Superior Court last week, said Colman's attorney, Nathaniel Sherman, because "they have filed the papers they feel are required."

"In that light," said Sherman, "we withdraw the suit without prejudice. Now it is up to the building inspector to make a decision whether or not to issue the permit for that particular use."

Taylor Ahearn of the building inspector's office said the first application was turned down "because it did not have the type of construction and the use group.

"Before we can properly ascertain what he can do there we have to know what it is. If it is a school, certain conditions must prevail. They claim it is not a school.

"If it is embraced by the definition of the law, then we will accept it.

"If it comes in with everything in order, I think we'd have no alternative but to issue the permit, even though we may or may not think it is a proper use for the downtown area."

Should the permit be granted, said Atty. Sherman, "we can go in and ask that it be rescinded."

Dr. Hersch describes the clinic as a day treatment center of adults. It is not licensed as a school. We charge no tuition. There are no teachers, no diplomas."

Dukakis On Jet Spot

Mike Dukakis wasn't wearing his blizzard sweater.

But, let's hope that wasn't a political snow job he gave them!

He was in shirt sleeves, projecting a summer "I'm working" look.

And, he was walking into the lion's den--a crowded lion's den. But in a matter of seconds he had them purring like kittens.

That was Dukakis' triumphant appearance at the public hearing on jet noise held at the Quincy Vo-Tech gym last week.

An estimated 1,200 to 1,500 Quincy residents--most of them ticked off over all the jet noise over their homes--had gathered to tell somebody off. One sign expressed their fighting mood: "Quincy Is The Political Lamb which wont Be Slaughtered".

But, the Governor, who in effect is Massport's boss and Massport is Quincy's enemy at the moment, got a hero's welcome. It went like this:

Shortly before Dukakis made his big entrance, a little man in a powder blue suit arrived, sporting a button that said, "Noise" but crossed out in red. Like a Paul Revere, he made the rounds of officials sitting on the dais and reporters at the press table, proclaiming, "The Governor is coming, the Governor is coming."

Rev. Bedros Baharian, moderating the hearing, then announced: "I've been told the Governor has arrived."

Cheers rang out in the back of the hall as Dukakis entered, escorted by Mayor-Senator Arthur Tobin. Then everybody was up for a 40-second standing ovation. You'd have thought this was Dukakis' campaign headquarters on election night.

Then, the mayor's introduction:

"Ladies and gentlemen, true to his word to come here this evening to the city of Quincy and to listen to the people and to take over and involve himself in...[finding] ...a speedy solution, I give you a man who has done a lot to help me turn this city around, the governor of our Commonwealth, Michael Dukakis."

Fifteen seconds more applause.

"Ladies and gentlemen, I'm sorry that I'm late," the Governor warmed up. "First, I regret very much that you even have to be here on an evening when you ought to be home enjoying a QUIET [he paused to let a roar erupt from the crowd] night and I can tell you I know something about this problem because I happen to live, as you know, in a community which is right next to Boston and my own community from time to time is plagued with it and I've been sitting there listening to these things come over hour after hour and it's not pleasant, it's not fun and it's a very disturbing kind of thing...

At this point he has the crowd in the palm of his hand. He's definitely their ally. The jets are his enemy, too. A commond bond has been riveted.

He continues:

"I can only say to you, as I think the secretary [Transportation Secretary Fred Salvucci] has already said, that in this particular case there was not that degree of sensitivity and responsiveness to this community as there should have been. We will make every effort to see that it does not happen again, whether in Quincy or elsewhere. That, I can assure you is the policy of any administration I am responsible for and we will work very hard to make sure that we don't put a community through what you've been going through for the past few months.

More applause.

Then a promise.

"I will personally involve myself very actively in this and make sure we move just as quickly as humanly possible to deal with this issue effectively and well.

"I hope in the future you will not again have to put up with this. There is no reason for it. One of my jobs, and one of the jobs of us in state government, is to make sure that when we act we do so in a way that's sensitive to your concerns, that communicates to you in advance of what we're doing and make sure to the greatest extent possible that you do not have to put up with the noise and the burdens and the inconvenience that you have over the last few months.

Fifteen seconds more applause.

But before Dukakis could go, he was presented petitions containing an estimated 20,000 names by Reps. Michael Morrissey and James Sheets, and Councillor Daniel Raymondi.

It provided the perfect always-leave-'em laughing exit.

"I don't know whether it is coincidental," said Dukakis, looking at the top sheet of names. "But the first names on the first petition that I got happen to be from the Antonakos family. [Chuckles]. You certainly know where to get me with the ethnic origin of the folks that are signing. So, with the Greeks leading the list of the problem we discussed this evening, I can assure you we are going to solve it just as quickly as possible. Thank you all very much.

Deafening applause as he takes leave. He had come, he had seen, he had conquered.

But what did he really say? At the very most he promised to actively get involved "to make sure we move as quickly as humanly possible to deal with this issue effectively and well."

Maybe the Governor will find the solution quickly, effectively and well.

The people who cheered him, left there that night convinced he indeed was going to find a solution to the jet noise problem. Not a stop-gap solution until the elections but a permanent year-round solution.

He's on the spot as far as Quincy is concerned.

If he doesn't deliver the goods, the next time he comes to Quincy they'll give him not the key to the city but a snow shovel, to go with his blizzard sweater.

ESTIMATED 1,200 to 1,500 people filled the Quincy Vo Tech School gym for last week's big hearing on the noise of aircraft taking off from Logan Airport.

question whether the noise would return to a very low or zero level yesterday, Mr. Whittington said, 'Yes. This means zero noise.' Let us hold him to that statement.

"The full opportunity for a full peaceful life is the inalienable right of all of us. The person who denies that is a tyrant. The person who does not demand that is a coward. The person who is indifferent to that is a slave. A person who does not desire that is a fool."

Dr. Albert M. Grass of Grass Instrument Co.:

"OSHA says that noise over 85 decibels is dangerous to our hearing. A 707 coming over the top of a hill produces 105 decibels. That's 20 over OSHA requirements. I would like to see if you can possibly make 105 decibels in this room. Will everybody make noise please. [Everyone shouts] You only got to 100 decibels."

Ed Flavin of the South Shore Board of Realtors:

"Air traffic over a city has longtime economic effects. Noise pollution will decrease residential growth. Many people who live in Quincy will choose to leave the city, not just because they want to escape the noise, but because they want to protect their property investments.

"Decline of our residential desirability can only result in a depreciation of property values and in turn resulting low assessments. This decline in property values would seriously hurt the city's economy by decreasing city tax revenues and thus the services afforded to our citizens."

Dr. Ronald G. Hersch, director of the South Shore West Mental Health Center:

"One of my concerns is that the longer we talk about the noise and the longer it goes on, we'll start not to pay attention to it and we'll think that it does not bother us much. Research studies of people who live around airports and are used to living with noise--even those who say it doesn't bother them--find they are more nervous in general than people who don't live near noise.

"People who live near airports don't even wake up from the noise after a while. Still, their sleep patterns change and they no longer sleep as soundly. When you no longer sleep as soundly you're more tense; you're more nervous and I don't have to go into detail about what that means.

"As time goes on and the noise continues, we might become lackadaisical. That's one of the effects of longterm noise. You get used to it on one level and you start to say there is no hope of dealing with it. I want to warn you it will continue to bother us and we should make a continuing effort [to fight it]."

Dr. Luleen Anderson, coordinator of psychological services in Quincy public schools:

"The impact of the airplane noise and the tension, anger and frustration generated by it are already causing problems for Quincy parents and children. Children are being awakened throughout the night, having nightmares and sleep disturbances.

"Having one's sleep interfered with contributes to anxiety and to the ability to comprehend and I submit that this is an especially important consideration when school begins because if you think the noise is bad now, imagine the effect on children and teachers when school begins.

"Children at the Squantum School as well as those in the North Quincy and Wollaston areas will be in triple jeopardy. First, their participation in classroom activities will be interfered with during the school day. Secondly, their playtime and homework time will be interfered with in the afternoon. Finally, they get it again by having their sleep interrupted throughout the night.

"In an era when the quality of family life is already severely taxed and strained we cannot in good conscience sit back and accept this additional source of stress and anxiety, not if we care deeply about children and families."

Frederick P. Salvucci, state

CAAN's 8 Questions To Massport

The Committee Against Airport Noise [CAAN] posed eight questions for Massport Director David Davis at last Thursday's hearing.

"It is the strong feeling of the citizens," said CAAN, "that unless all the questions are answered satisfactorily, we will not have significant relief from airplane noise."

Here are the questions and Davis' answers:

QUESTION 1 - Gov. Dukakis has told us that the goal is to achieve zero noise. Is this Massport's goal also?

DAVIS - Yes, it is a goal. We want to put as many movements over the water as possible. I assume that's the way we achieve zero noise.

QUESTION 2 - When will Massport achieve that goal?

DAVIS - Frankly, I don't know if we will ever achieve zero noise. But we will make good progress toward that goal as the FAA can evaluate over-the-water procedures.

QUESTION 3 - When will you make a binding commitment in writing to a zero noise operating program?

DAVIS - I'll make a binding committment anytime in writing to working toward a zero noise goal. I don't know if I can ever expect to have no noise at all. We obviously have a long record, including a memorandum to FAA dated Aug. 3 requesting an evaluation of the additional over-the-water route.

QUESTION 4 - Is Massport interested in the views of the affected citizens and local officials regarding the noise pollution? If so, how will citizens and officials be directly involved in the future?

DAVIS - I'm glad to meet with you in any number of forums, including smaller groups, larger groups if possible. We have regular meetings at the agency at the airport with local government officials. Obviously, local government officials here should be invited and will be invited. We have regular meetings with community groups in East Boston, South secretary of transportation:

"The comment has been made that people in Quincy were not consulted in advance of making the changes that have caused the recent problems. That is true. I apologize for that lack of consultation. I promise you that it was a good faith error on our part. I promise you it will not happen again.

"I'll make a commitment to you that if your organization stays organized as I hope it will that I personally will be willing to come to meetings to try and assure that we stay in good communication and we do not repeat the mistake of not having consulted in advance. It was an error. I apologize for it.

"People were working in good faith at Massport trying to lessen noise levels in South Boston. We were anxious to push the pattern out and urge the FAA to push it out over the ocean and if it wasn't possible to do it in one jump to do it in more than one step. That resulted, without adequate foresight by me or other people, in the fact that the flight pattern started going over Squantum -- and again I apologize for that.

"I am happy to say [the FAA] have committed themselves to shift the pattern the rest of the way out over the water so that we have a noise free departure pattern. We have gotten a committment from the FAA to try the new procedure between the hours of 11 p.m. and 7 a.m. and to try and extend the hours during which that pattern is used.

"The FAA committed themselves to that. They mean it. They'll be giving you a report later on their experience trying out the new pattern. I believe we are on the verge of a solution that everyone can feel pretty good about."

David Davis, executive director of Massport:

"The FAA controls the flight of aircraft but I will say quite candidly that the FAA was responding to a request by the Authority to try this pattern. So I will accept responsibility for the change in the environment that has happened here.

"It is Massport's policy to work for the greatest relief possible to the most severely impacted citizens. I can look at you, somewhat uncomfortably it is true, and say that [the change] has resulted in a decrease in the level of noise for more people than are affected by the new pattern.

"But even though that amount of relief has happened in South Boston, the noise levels there are still greater than they are here.

"However, it is our responsibility to press for additional relief and we have been talking to the FAA about a tighter turn and a continuing left turn back over the airport and that is what the FAA is committed to during the nighttime hours. It is our hope that the FAA will find this a feasible pattern or some combination of remedies will be feasible 24 hours a day."

Robert Whittington, regional director for the FAA:

"We will continue to do the best we can. Our new procedure is just the first step. We will try to make that one work and maximize its use but at the same time hopefully we can come up with an even better idea than that. My objective is zero noise but that's up to the pilots, the airlines and specifically the air traffic controllers."

William Keepers, tower chief at Logan Airport:

"I am very, very happy with the results of the first day [of the new pattern] but I want to caution you that all of the questions have not been answered. We still have a lot of work to do. We still have a long way to go. But we at the tower feel we are on the right track. We think we can lick the problem and I promise you we'll do our best."

Fred Ford, director of aviation for Massport:

"I've been impressed by the Authority's efforts to push aircraft over the water. The FAA has made changes over the last few months that really were not even considered some time ago. The over-the-water left turn that was started yesterday just couldn't be accomplished before. These things are going to offer very real potential."

Houghs Neck Fire Presents Problems

Fire destroyed the Centerville, a cottage on Sea St. occupied by James F. Burns and his family of Readville, and only the absence of wind prevented a conflagration in the Houghs Neck summer community.

Also damaged slightly were the Blanche, owned by Albert Gustafson on Bird St.; the Celestine, occupied by W. T. Tilley on Sea St.; and Albert Acorn's cottage, also on Sea St.

The local fire company, it was reported, had trouble getting water onto the fire.

"First, the hydrant wrench could not be found. Then there was a fracas between two firemen on the nozzle which resulted in blows," said the report.

The problem of fires in the resort community was such that a Boston insurance company notified homeowners: "We are not writing any business at Houghs Neck believing that locality is not desireable."

BATTLESHIP LAUNCHING

The Fore River Shipbuilding Co. was preparing to launch the USS Vermont, the third battleship to be sent down the ways since the shipyard moved to Quincy from Braintree in 1900.

Some 3,500 tickets were issued and protection from 18 police officers was asked for the launching, which was to feature christening by Miss Jennie Bell, daughter of the governor of Vermont.

Also on the guest list were Gov. William L. Douglas of Massachusetts, Asst. Secretary of the Navy Charles B. Darling, and Cmdr. A. G. Boutakoff, the Russian naval attache in Washington.

COPELANDS WIN

LADIES DAY SPOILED

Rough seas hampered the annual Ladies Day at the Squantum Yacht Club, forcing most of the ladies to remain on the veranda to listen to a concert by Thorley's Orchestra.

Commodore Bryant put out in the 25-horse power launch "Squantum" promptly at 3 p.m. signalling the start of festivities but the sea was so rough that no attempt was made to pass in review.

Team One [Archie Briggs, John McClure, Henry Swanson and Curtis Hallett] won the water polo contest, 2-0, over Team Two [Laurie Bean, Henry Arthur, Clifton Hill and George Coleman].

Caddy Detachment Raising Funds For Headquarters

William R. Caddy Detachment, Marine Corps League, has embarked on a campaign to raise funds for a new headquarters.

The drive will concentrate on an ad-book with Leo Cardarelli, chairman of the committee in charge of publication. Commandant Paul Norton said the Detachment is hoping to find a building or land to build on.

A donation of land or a building would be welcomed by the veterans' organization.

The Caddy Detachment has been located in Quincy since 1946. The group met first at the Walter Scott Hall on Franklin St., and later at 356 Center St., South Quincy. Since 1958 the detachment has been meeting at Fore River Club House, 19 Nevada Rd, Quincy Point.

The Caddy Detachment takes an active part in volunteer work at the Brockton Veterans Administration Hospital. Part of the funds raised through the ad-book will be used to meet the cost of four ward parties at the hospital. Some of the money will be used to defray costs of a Christmas party for patients.

CAAN Questions To Massport

[Cont'd from Page 14]

Boston, Chelsea, Winthrop, Revere. I'm certainly ready, willing and able to add CAAN to that list.

QUESTION 5 - What alternatives do you have if your present plan fails?

DAVIS - I think that that's a tough question and probably one that would be better answered by the FAA or my aviation director, Mr. Ford. I think there are other possibilities, including steeper takeoff during the over-the-water portion. I'd like to defer on that question in detail to Mr. Ford, if he will pick up after this. [Fred Ford, director of aviation for Massport, never did answer the question].

QUESTION 6 - In the test which starts today, you told us planes would be diverted from the South Shore. Of the hundreds of daily flights, how may will be diverted each day?

DAVIS - I'm just going to have to ask the FAA to attempt to answer that question.

QUESTION 7 - When will Massport divert the daylight flights?

DAVIS - We don't divert them but we're certainly recommending they be diverted as soon as the FAA can find a way to do it on a safe basis.

QUESTION 8 - Is the position of Gov. Dukakis, Mr. Whittington of the FAA and the Logan Tower Chief the same as far as the optimism they feel about the new maneuver's potential to cut noise?

DAVIS - Yes, I think emphatically so.

Atlantic Center Building May Be Purchased By City

The building that houses the Atlantic Neighborhood Center, 150 East Squantum St., may be purchased by the city of Quincy with federal community development funds.

Mayor Tobin said the building, owned by Timothy Cardwell, is to be sold at auction in a couple of weeks and City Councillor Joanne Condon has asked the city to take it over.

Mrs. Condon is one of the founders of the Atlantic Neighborhood Association, whose successful center has occupied the building for about three years and is looking for more space.

"If the city takes over ownership," said Tobin, "we would be able to enlarge, upgrade and beautify the center and even run a health clinic service like they do in Houghs Neck."

Morrisette To Host Northeast Regional Tourney

Morrisette Legion's baseball team, for the second time in three years, will be the host team for the Northeast Regional Tournament to be held from next Wednesday, Aug. 23, through Sunday, Aug. 27, at Adams Field.

Four games will be played Wednesday and four more on Thursday.

The state champions from the six New England states and New York will compete together with Morrisette for the right to play in the Legion World Series at Yakima, Washington.

In 1975 Morrisette, after winning the Zone 6, sectional and state tournaments, won the Northeast title and played in the World Series.

Although Morrisette finished second to Weymouth in Zone 6 this year, it had another fine season with a 14-6 zone record and 19-7 overall mark. It finished up with three wins in a row including one over Zone 6-A champion Braintree.

A dinner will be held for all eight teams next Tuesday night at 7 at Morrisette Post. Ken Coleman, former Voice of the Red Sox, will be the principal speaker.

Quincy All-Stars Win 3 In Stoughton Tourney

Quincy's Junior League All-Stars, faced with elimination after splitting their first two games in the Stoughton Invitational Tournament, continue to roll, winning three games last week to remain in contention.

They played Holbrook Tuesday night.

Quincy nipped Raynham, 1-0, as Joe Conti, the tourney's standout pitcher, allowed only two hits while striking out five and walking only two. In the fourth inning Mike Miller singled, Mike Conlon and Vin Cristiani walked and Mark Hubbard drove in the winning run. Steve Hogan and Jim McPartland also had hits. Miller made the play of the game, robbing the last batter of the game of a game-tying home run.

Quincy then topped Milton, 6-1, with Scott Mele pitching fine ball and his mates showing plenty of power to knock Milton out of the tourney. Bob McElaney and Hogan had two hits apiece and Hubbard, Miller, Conlon, Frank Reynolds, Brian Meehan and Tom Travers one each.

Conti came back to knock Braintree out of the tournament, 3-0. In the first inning Hubbard singled, stole second, moved to third on Miller's single and scored on a double steal. In the third Hubbard singled as did Hogan and Miller drove in both with a double. McElaney and Conti also had hits.

Conti is 3-0, has a no-hitter, a one-hitter and a two-hitter, has struck out 26 and walked just seven.

Local 1139, Golden In Title Showdown

For the first time the top teams in the Quincy Babe Ruth League have been eliminated in the playoffs.

Local 1139, runnerup in the National League, and Golden Print, third place team in the American League, are meeting this week for the championship.

Golden ousted American League first place team Houghs Neck in two games and Local 1139 eliminated National first place team Morrisette in two.

If the fourth and fifth games of the championship series are necessary, they will be played Friday at 5 and Sunday morning at 10 at Adams Field.

Local 1139 defeated Morrisette, 10-6, in the opener of their series with Dick Hallberg the winning pitcher. He helped his own cause with two hits and a walk. Mark Millane and Gerry O'Rourke had two hits apiece and Kevin Howlett, Antony Twohig and Tom Richards had one each. For Morrisette, Jim Hensley, Kevin Whalen and Rich Mallory had two hits each.

Local 1139 clinched the series with a 3-0 decision as Millane pitched his third shutout of the playoffs. He had pitched 21 straight scoreless innings in the playoffs. Kevin Howlett, 1139 catcher, continued to play outstanding ball behind the plate. Wally Kilgallon, playing only his eighth game of the year due to an eye injury in the second game of the season, had two hits and starred defensively. Mark Righini, Millane, Hallberg and Paul Quigley one hit each and Howlett had a long double.

Golden Print topped Houghs Neck, 5-1, in the opener, with John Todd pitching great clutch ball. Golden clinched the win with four runs in the fifth as Todd singled, Bob Ready doubled and Brian Reale hit a long triple. Dan Molloy drove Reale in with a single. Molloy went to second on an error and scored on John Balzano's single. Ross Connerty had three of HN's nine hits.

The second game was one of the best in the league this year, going 11 innings before Golden pulled it out, 3-2. Two 14-year olds, Sean Martin of Golden and Tommy O'Connor of Houghs Neck, staged a brilliant pitching duel, both going 10 innings, the limit set by Babe Ruth League rules. Martin gave up six hits, struck out seven and walked four, while O'Connor also allowed six hits, struck out six and walked six.

HN took a 1-0 lead in the second when Tommy McFarland and Connerty singled, moved up on a double steal and McFarland scored on an error. In the fourth, Golden scored twice. Todd and Ready walked and, with two outs, Martin singled to fill the bases and Balzano, a 13-year old, singled for the two runs. HN tied it in the seventh when Dale Adams and Scott Mathews walked and, with two outs, O'Connor singled to score Adams.

In the bottom of the 11th, Ready singled, was bunted along by Reale, went to third on a passed ball and scored the winner on Molloy's sacrifice fly.

Mike Hussey played an outstanding game in right field for Golden, making three excellent catches.

3 Win Top Honors In Babe Ruth Skills Competition

Three Quincy boys have won top honors in baseball skills competition and three others received runnerup awards in a program co-sponsored by the National Babe Ruth League and French's Mustard Company.

The competition was supervised by Sal Salvatore of the Quincy Babe Ruth League.

The boys, divided into three age groups, matched skills in base running, fungo hitting and throwing accuracy. Winners were determined by averaging contestants' scores over three events.

Jim Austin was the winner and Bob Mudge runnerup in the 13-year old class; Anthony Green was first and Hughie Campbell runnerup among the 14-year olders, and James Walsh was the winner and Mike Scurti runnerup in the 15-year old group.

The top winners will receive plaques for their achievements. This program, intended to upgrade baseball skills in a spirit of friendly competition among boys of the same age group, is conducted on a nationwide basis. All participants will receive certificates of recognition.

325 Mile Trip From Philly Raises $800 For Jimmy Fund

By PETER BARNICLE

Nineteen days and 325 miles after leaving Independence Hall in Philadelphia, Robert Mangan Jr., 25, of Hopkinton, trudged into Quincy Sq. with pledges of over $800 for the Jimmy Fund.

Mangan, a music teacher in the Framingham schools, completed the trip on foot in much faster time than he had anticipated.

His biggest disappointment was in Quincy Sq. when he found that Susan Moscardelli of South St., Quincy Point, was not there to greet him. The Moscardelli family was in Rhode Island attending a wedding. Susan had inspired him to make the trip for the Jimmy Fund.

However, the pledges will be presented to the Jimmy Fund in her name.

Like Washington he crossed the Delaware River near Trenton, but he used the bridge. From there his route took him through Princeton, Elizabeth and Jersey City.

On the seventh day he crossed the George Washington Bridge about 6 p.m. and found himself in the Bronx.

"I went to a police station to get directions and they were aghast when I told them I planned to walk through The Bronx at night," Mangan said.

The police at Precinct 44 put him up for the night and wanted to give him a ride through the borough the next morning, but Mangan decided it was safe enough to walk.

That night his accommodations were a little more luxurious. He put up at a Sheraton Hotel in Greenwich, Ct.

"It was a little beyond my budget, but they gave me a special rate," he said. "And I played piano and sang in the lounge while the regular band was taking its break."

Most of the trip had been made through rundown sections of cities until this point. Through Connecticut he traveled country roads towards New Haven and Norwich, Ct.

"They don't build hotels or motels on those roads and I had difficulty finding places to sleep. However, the people I met along the way were most generous and several of them put me up at their home."

He was surprised to find small towns, some of them not even on his map.

"Just over the Rhode Island border I passed through Rice City. There's nothing there but five or six houses," he said.

Passing between Providence and Woonsocket he made for North Attleboro, Mansfield, Foxboro, Stoughton and Randolph.

"The last night out he spent at the Howard Johnson in Braintree where he was offered a complimentary room.

On the 19th day he made it to Quincy and was greeted by Mayor Tobin at City Hall.

He was still wearing the same sneakers he started out with.

"At first I had some trouble with my achilles tendon, but that didn't cause me too much trouble. I got a lot of blisters and because I kept on walking they just stayed with me and new ones developed," he said.

Mangan is still accepting pledges and asked that checks be made out to The Jimmy Fund and sent to Robert Mangan Jr., 12 Cedar St., Hopkinton, MA 01748.

AT LONG LAST -- Robert Mangan, 25, of Hopkinton, relaxes on steps of Church of the Presidents in Quincy Sq., at the end of his trek of more than 300 miles from Philadelphia to raise funds for the Jimmy Fund. Mangan made the trip in 19 days.

mother for him to wear at his wedding to Abigail Smith.

"There is really no monetary value to it," she said, "so who ever took it would have a hard time getting rid of it. Historically, of course, it's very, very valuable.

"Why would anyone take something like that. It is so fragile. It's just going to disintegrate. It's so old that you touch it and it falls apart. We had it in a glass case.

"The only reason I can think of is that some young person took it. You know how they dress these days, the vests they wear. This might have appealed to some person like that."

The vest was made in 1764, she said.

The musket, powder horn and bayonet were dated about 1812; the sabres about 1860; and the handmade braided rug was somewhat younger. None had distinguishing marks, said Mrs. O'Connell.

The birthplace of John Quincy Adams is unoccupied but the neighboring birthplace of his father, John Adams, has rooms for the caretakers, Mr. and Mrs. William Van Riper.

The houses, which are property of the city of Quincy, are in the process of being turned over to the National Parks Service. The take over bill has passed the House, currently awaits Senate passage.

Photo Quick Specializes In One Day Film Processing

By PETER BARNICLE

PhotoQuick, one of the newest and most innovative firms in the field of photo finishing, prides itself on personalized one day service in the developing and printing of color films.

The key to the operation is on-premises processing. All film is handled by trained technicians at the shop and a customer who brings his film in before 10 a.m. will have his developed negatives and prints or slides ready by 4 p.m.

At the Quincy PhotoQuick, 10 Granite St., just off Quincy Sq., the sophisticated processing equipment is in a glass-enclosure, permitting customers to see the developing and printing.

Film processing is now a $2 billion business and many of the major photo-finishers process 30,000 to 40,000 rolls of film daily.

Each PhotoQuick shop limits its processing to a maximum of 150 to 200 rolls a day, thus allowing technicians time to analyze their work.

"The big photo-finishing firms send their film to a centralized laboratory, or they are sent in by mail," according to George A. Howard, executive vice president of Photo-Quick.

It is estimated that during 1977 more than seven billion amateur prints were developed throughout the country. Howard said that several million rolls of film, or the finished prints, were lost in transit.

With PhotoQuick the film never leaves the mini-lab where it is handed in. In addition, the chemicals are checked daily and the store manager and his assistant are ready and able to give advice.

Frank Gilbert of Governors Rd, West Quincy, is manager of the Quincy PhotoQuick. Gilbert is a graduate of Quincy High School and Brandeis University. He received his master's degree in Business administration from Boston University.

"I've always been interested in photography and I paid my way through college by working with a photo-finisher," Gilbert said.

With him at PhotoQuick is Brian Sullivan of Weymouth who worked at Miller's Studios prior to joining PhotoQuick.

PhotoQuick is headquartered in Randolph and has five company-owned stores in operation; four in New England and one in Atlanta, Ga.

The company has opened its first franchised store in Cleveland, O., and is preparing to open three more; two in Boston and one in Cambridge.

All franchise owners and employees are trained in the use of the Pako developing and printing equipment.

"We are planning, later this year, to open a training school at the Quincy store," Howard said. A large area at the rear of the store is being outfitted with equipment and lecture rooms to handle classes for new franchisees and their employees.

Howard also pointed out that PhotoQuick deals almost exclusively with film processing.

"Unlike other photo-finishers we do not go in to the sale of cameras, lenses and other ancilliary products," he said.

The stores use Kodak products exclusively and do have film available for their customers. They also sell a limited line of inexpensive cameras, but the emphasis is entirely on developing and printing.

Pine Craft Offers Unfinished Pine, Hardwood Furniture

Pine Craft, 27A Beale St., Wollaston, is offering a complete line of unfinished pine and hardwood furniture and both finished and unfinished wooden accessories.

Jack and Susan Toomey are co-owners of the new shop. They formerly operated Toomey's Shop for furniture repairs and refinishing.

Pine Craft carries "Master Craft" furniture and other fine lines. Included are tables, chairs, rockers, benches, desks, bookcases, cabinets, dry sinks, hutches, chests, dressers, bars, stools, racks, sconces and shelves. There is also a selection of doll houses.

The accessory lines are all handcrafted in the New England area.

The Toomeys will willingly pass along their own "expertise" to customers who wish to do their own refinishing. They also do finishing for those who prefer.

The shop is also equipped to repair furniture.

Advantage Of Large Mortgage

When buying a home, should you strive for a low down payment with a commensurately large mortgage loan? Here's what some experts say about the value of a large mortgage.

The lower your down payment is, the easier it will be to sell your home in the future. The reasoning is that there will be a greater number of prospects who have a smaller amount of cash available to take over a small equity than for a huge down payment or even being forced to take out a new loan at a possibly higher interest rate.

The higher interest charge is offset somewhat by a higher tax deduction. The money that would have been put into a larger down payment can be used for other income-producing investments. Finally, it's cheaper to borrow mortgage money than any other kind. And you certainly may have to borrow for autos and college tuition if you are an average American.

Whether buying or selling, turn to Realty World - President Real Estate for all your real estate needs.

FIRST PATIENT in Quincy City Hospital's new Alternative Child Birth Center, Mrs. Patricia Thorley, and husband, Robert, of Plymouth, formerly of Quincy, gaze fondly at their new son, Brian. Labor and delivery occurred in room designed to have homelike atmosphere for natural childbirth. Brian stayed in room with his mother during entire two day stay in the hospital. He arrived at 10:33 a.m. Aug. 15.

Father Present

'At Home' Births Now At Quincy Hospital

By PETER BARNICLE

In recent years many expectant mothers have opted for having their baby at home by natural childbirth.

Obstetricians are willing to concede that it is understandable for a woman to want to have her baby in a home-like atmosphere with the father-to-be in attendance to share in the very human experience.

However, doctors have expressed some concern that in the event of unforseen complications during a home delivery the lives of both mother and infant could be endangered. Some doctors insist that an ambulance be standing by.

Quincy City Hospital is introducing an Alternative Child Birth Center which will provide a home-like setting and the medical expertise and equipment needed to meet any unexpected emergency which might arise during the delivery.

The Alternative Child Birth Center involves a number of innovations including participation of the father-to-be in the role of a support person. Arrangements can be made, under specific guidelines, to have siblings of the newborn present during labor and delivery.

The traditional trip from the labor room to the delivery room and then to the post-partum area is eliminated. A "Birthing Room" makes it possible for all procedures to be carried out in one place.

The newborn infant is not hurried off to the nursery, but remains with the mother throughout her stay in the hospital, whether it be six hours or two days.

The Birthing Room, the first of four, has been completely refurnished. The austere hospital furniture has been replaced. Colorful drapes, lounge chairs, a television, a non-institutional dresser and other little touches give the room the appearance of a bedroom at home.

Rate Under $200

Less Than $2.80 Tax Hike Seen

By TOM HENSHAW

Indications are that the Quincy tax rate for 1978-79 will be under $200. That would mean a hike of less than $2.90 over the current rate of $197.20.

Mayor Arthur Tobin declined to speculate on the upcoming tax rate exept to say that it will be announced in 10 days to two weeks.

"I don't want to play games and throw figures all over the place," he said.

"There are some loose ends we are pulling together right now. That's why I hesitate to make predictions on the bottom line.

"But I have a pretty good idea what the announcement is going to be and, given all the problems of the past two years, I think everyone is going to be pleased with it."

One of the loose ends is the fact that city officials are still negotiating an item that could save the city up to $200,000, said Tobin.

The item has to do with the figures on the cherry sheet, which was released the other day showing that Quincy will receive $11,148,165 in state aid, an increase of $2,029,524.

Gov. Dukakis had mandated that the money from the state be used for purposes of property tax relief and that state tax officials will examine tax rates closely to see that the mandate is carried out.

Tobin said he has directed Assessor Chairman John Comer to "supply each city councillor with a copy of the cherry sheet so they can study it before the tax rate is announced."

New Schedules At NQHS

Public Schools Open Sept. 5

Quincy public schools will open for classes Wednesday, Sept. 5, with juniors and seniors in the three secondary schools reporting on Thursday.

In announcing the schedule Arthur S. Woodward, director of secondary education, reminded students and parents that during the completion of construction and renovations of North Quincy High School some changes of school assignments have been made.

Students who would normally attend NQHS in grade nine will attend Atlantic Junior High School. Grades 10 through 12 will attend NQHS. Atlantic Junior High will have grades 8 and 9.

Grade seven students who would normally attend Atlantic Junior High have been assigned to Squantum School. The new wing of the Squantum School will be the main area of operations for this grade. Some home economics and shop classes will be held at Broad Meadows and Merrymount, with supervised transportation.

Students who would have attended Atlantic Junior High from Quincy Elementary, Myles Standish, Massachusetts Fields, Montclair and Parker districts, will be transported by bus to and from Squantum.

These students will report to the new wing at Squantum School at 8 a.m. on Sept. 6. They will be dismissed after the morning session. No lunch will be served.

At Atlantic Junior High eighth grade students and those in ninth grade who would have gone to NQHS are to report at 8:30 a.m. No lunch will be served and they will be dismissed after the morning session.

Grade seven to nine students at Broad Meadows, Central, Quincy Point and Sterling Junior High Schools will report at 8:30 a.m. and homeroom or orientation program schedules will be posted in each building. School will let out after the forenoon session.

At the elementary schools all students, grades one through six, will report at 8:30 a.m. and will be dismissed after the morning session.

At North Quincy High School juniors and their homeroom teachers are to report to the cafeteria at 8 a.m. on Thursday, Sept. 7. Seniors and their homeroom teachers will meet at assigned homerooms. The assignments will be posted in the cafeteria and in the main corridors. School will be dismissed at 2:30 p.m. and no lunch will be served.

Juniors and seniors at Quincy High School and Quincy Vocational Technical School and their homeroom teachers are to report to the Vo-Tech gymnasium at 8:30 where home room assignments will be announced. Dismissal will be at 2:30 p.m.

Sophomores at all three secondary schools will not have classes on Thursday.

Friday, Sept. 8 will be a regular school day for all

3 Major Developments Now Under Discussion

Mayor Tobin's development conference last May 24 at the Neighborhood Club is at last bearing fruit.

The Mayor said Tuesday that discussions are underway concerning three major developments "which will be a tremendous boost to the city both in tax base and in creation of jobs."

"One of the people we're talking to was at our economic development conference," said Tobin. "He liked what he saw. That's what turned him on to Quincy."

The Mayor declined to be specific about development locations but he did say that all three were in commercial zones, not residential areas.

"We are talking multi-million dollar developments," he said. "We will get a maximum valuation for our tax dollars and enhance some of the areas that are run down at the present time."

Building Inspector Studying Proposed Mental Health Clinic

Building Inspector Allan F. MacDonald has taken under advisement a plan offered by the South Shore Mental Health Association to convert a store at 1620 Hancock St. into a clinic.

MacDonald said he plans to confer with State Building Inspectors about the plan to see if it falls into the school, clinic or office classification under the state building code.

Some downtown Quincy businessmen, notably Robert Colman of Colman's Sporting Goods, have maintained that the clinic is really a school with kitchen and other training facilities.

Seeks $30,000 Damages

Lt. Solimini Files Suit Against City, Police Chief

Police Lt. Corady Solimini has filed suit in Federal Court at Boston against the City of Quincy and Police Chief Francis X. Finn alleging discrimination and violations of his right to free speech and freedom of association.

The suit asks for a permanent injunction to halt the alleged discriminatory acts and also $30,000 in damages. The case has been assigned to U.S. District Court Judge David Mazzone.

Solimini was named inspector of divisions by former Mayor Joseph LaRaia. Shortly after last year's municipal election he was reassigned to the division of statistical services.

Atty. Thomas Sullivan of Brockton, counsel for Solimini contends "the rules and regulations of the table of organization does not establish such a positio.."

Sullivan alleges that Solimini's duties consist of keeping "an inventory of equipment on index cards and he is assigned to a room without a telephone." The lieutenant has also been given the assignment of checking and logging gasoline slips for cruisers, according to the lawyer.

Sullivan said the suit alleges that Chief Finn has issued an order instructing the plaintiff not to talk with other officers and has also ordered the police officers not to talk to Solimini.

"We allege this violates his right of freedom of speech under the First Amendment," Sullivan said.

The attorney said the police chief has also instructed the lieutenant not to go into the detective division or other parts of the police headquarters during his tour of duty.

The suit charges this constitutes an infringement of his right of association.

"We are alleging," Sullivan said, "that these actions by the defendant comprise unequal treatment of the plaintiff, based solely on his ethnic background and political associations and therefore are discriminatory and deprive the plaintiff of equal protection and due process under the law."

City Solicitor Richard Barry withheld any comment on the case, saying papers in the suit have not yet reached his office. Chief Finn is on vacation and was not available.

Solimini and Chief Finn have been at loggerheads since former Mayor LaRaia named the lieutenant inspector of divisions early in his administration. The chief went to court and obtained a ruling that assignment of members of the force was entirely his prerogative and not that of the mayor.

It was several months after the court ruling before Finn transferred Solimini to statistical services and named Capt. Paul Nestor as inspector of divisions, a post he held prior to LaRaia's naming Solimini.

The Quincy Community Action Program provides help and information to those residents of Quincy who do not know where to go for assistance regarding welfare, housing, legal services, etc. Quincy CAP administers the Family Planning Clinic, Headstart, and "crisis intervention" programs.

COTTAGE AVE. off Hanock St. was closed to vehicular traffic Saturday so that Quincy's handicraftsmen could show off their wares for strolling shoppers. Another Craft Market is planned for Cottage Ave. this Saturday; then the show may move to Cliveden St.

Downtown Craft Market Success

The Quincy Craft Market was a huge success on Cottage Ave. last Saturday.

It will be back for at least one more Saturday and then possibly move across Hancock St. to Cliveden St.

Cottage Ave. was closed to vehicular traffic off Hancock St. from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., the time of the Craft Market, Saturday and the move didn't sit well with some merchants on the street.

"My peak sales period started Saturday," said Vincent Banco, who operates the Child Teen Shoe Shop at 28 Cottage Ave. "It's the Christmas season for us.

"I don't know how badly closing the street to traffic hurt me but possibly some customers came to Cottage Ave., saw it was closed and said, 'The heck with it.'

"I need vehicular traffic on the street at my peak period. I have no criticism of the Craft Market concept but I don't feel they should do it at a time like this."

Banco said 14 of the 16 store owners on Cottage Ave. signed a petition against closing the street.

The Craft Market is sponsored by the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association and the city of Quincy. It was to have operated through Sept. 30 on Cottage Ave.

Members of the QCBPA and city officials met Tuesday afternoon, however, and Robert Luongo of the Planning Department said it was decided to hold it Saturday, Aug. 26, on Cottage Ave., then possibly move it to Cliveden St.

schools, grades one through 12. Also day one of the six day cycle at North Quincy High, Quincy High and Vo-Tech will be in force. Students from NQHS who will attend Vo-Tech will begin that schedule.

In connection with the opening of school an orientation program for all teachers new to the Quincy public schools will be held at the Method Center, Quincy High School, starting at 8:30 a.m., Wednesday, Aug. 30.

On Tuesday, Sept. 5, all professional staff members will meet with Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon, superintendent of schools, at 8:30 a.m. in the gymnasium at Quincy Vocational-Technical School. After the meeting with Dr. Creedon all staff members will spend the remainder of the day in their respective buildings, under the direction of the principals.

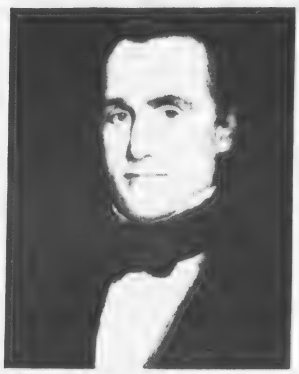
Jewels & Gems

by Stan Manin



Thinking about getting your ears pierced? These days it is a fairly painless, quick process. You can go to your doctor to have it done, but more conveniently, many jewelry stores hire someone to do ear piercing. With modern piercing devices, there is little chance of a trained person making a mistake when piercing your ears. Once pierced, it is important to follow care instructions. Do not move out of posts too soon, and be certain to check for infections.

Check with us at GRONO & CHRISTIE, INC., 536 Adams St., East Milton, 696-1490 before you purchase any jewelry. Ours is a family business. If it's not me, it's my wife Marilyn, my son Bruce, or my other daughter or son, to help you. We strive to treat our customers, as we do members of our own family. Master Charges and other credit terms are available. Open: Mon. thru Sat. 9 a.m. - 5 p.m.

HELPFUL HINT:

Gold posts are usually recommended initial wear for pierced ears.

The six million dollar man.

It's Josiah Quincy, Jr., founder of cooperative banking in Massachusetts. He's the man for whom our bank was named. The six million dollars is what Quincy Cooperative Banks' depositors received in interest for the year ending April 29, 1978. This tremendous dividend payout is just one of the reasons why more and more people open accounts with us every year. Come talk with us. We'll give you a whole lot more.

Six million dollars paid to our depositors...

Josiah would have liked that.

Visiting English Judge Finds Our Courts A Little Different

By PETER BARNICLE

A be-wigged English jurist presiding at London's historic Old Bailey Criminal Court is a formidable figure whose stern visage, as we know it from the movies, can silence both barrister and culprit with a glance.

On holiday, however, Judge Alan Lipfriend of the London County Court, hardly fits the description. The soft-spoken judge whose ready smile belies the movie or TV-type explained that less than half of his time is spent in the criminal sessions at Old Bailey and Shoreditch Guildhall.

Most of the time he sits in civil sessions of the High Court and Bow County Court, hearing divorce cases and family matters.

Judge Lipfriend and his wife, Adele, spent the weekend on the South Shore as guests of Norfolk County Register Paul C. Gay and his wife. The judge is one of a group of 60 members of the English bar who expressed a desire to visit the Boston area after attending the 10-day convention of the American Bar Association in New York.

Members of the Massachusetts Bar Association made arrangements for their English colleagues to be guests at the homes of Bay State lawyers, jurists and members of the court.

Judge Lipfriend noted that he had not had much opportunity to visit American courts. However, he did remark on a lecture he attended at the ABA convention which interested him greatly. This dealt with audio-visual depositions taken for civil actions.

"It is a system we could use in England and I think we will see it accepted before too long," he said.

WILLS OF JOHN ADAMS and John Quincy Adams are examined by Judge Alan Lipfriend during visit to Norfolk County Registry of Deeds as guest of Register Paul C. Gay. From left are Mrs. Lipfriend, Judge Lipfriend and Register Gay. The English jurist and his wife were guests of the Gays on week-end visit to area.

Then, with a quick smile, he said, "during the presentation there were more objections in 20 minutes than I would get during a three or four day hearing."

He attributed the volley of objections to the presence of a jury. In England all civil cases are heard before a single judge. On appeal a panel of three judges will hear the case.

He noted another difference in the court systems. In England a barrister, or trial lawyer, is not permitted to confer with a witness before his appearance on the stand. If the barrister feels some point needs clarification he calls in the client's solicitor and has him obtain the information. This precludes any coaching of witnesses.

Judge Lipfriend said he had wanted to see New England, and particularly the Boston area, because of its many connections with England.

"In school we heard so much about Boston," Mrs. Lipfriend chimed in. "About all the things your people did to our George III."

Their host had prepared a full itinerary which included a tour of Boston on the day of their arrival.

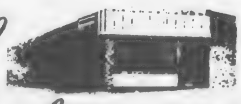
One of the places they visited was Bunker Hill. The itinerary written with tongue in cheek (we hope) noted that the hill was "site of ignominious defeat of elite British regulars by a rag-tag group of Colonial volunteers."

Another stop was at the Old State House, "focus of unwarranted attack by armed mercenaries of the Crown against innocent, unarmed citizens of Boston."

The judge smiled and murmured: "I wonder if John Adams would agree with that."

Register Gay showed the judge the Norfolk House of Correction, the district court and the Dedham superior court as well known in England as in America as the scene of the world-famous Sacco-Vanzetti murder trial.

Mrs. Lipfriend said she found the New England landscape very much like that of England.



"It's certainly quite a change after New York," she said and then added, "New York is so huge. It was a wonderful experience to visit it, but I can't ever imagine living there."

The Lipfriends toured Lexington and Concord and then went to the Gay's summer home on Saltzer's Point on Buzzards Bay. After four busy days they left for Denver and San Francisco before returning home.

The Judge wondered if he would be able to find people out there as easily as he did in Boston.

"When we arrived at Boston I didn't have the faintest idea of how to find my host. My wife had just suggested that I put on my convention badge when a gentleman stepped up and asked if he could help. It turned out to be Mr. Gay," Lipfriend said.

"I asked him how in the world he ever recognized me and he said, 'Oh, you look like a judge -- and you looked lost'."

Senator Tobin is an effective legislator whose hard work benefits us every day.

During just this past term, for instance:

he acquired state funds to pay for a $5 million flood control project vital to those of us who own homes in South Quincy;

he secured the depression of the MBTA tracks so necessary to the revitalization of our downtown area;

he successfully sponsored legislation enabling him as Mayor to finance the $7.5 million deficit his administration inherited (and thus saving us from a $30 increase in our property taxes.)

On September 19, let's vote to keep Senator Tobin working hard for us.

$2.051 Million E-H Savings Bonds Sales In Country

Sales of Series E-H savings bonds in Norfolk County during June totalled $2,051,997, according to Jeremiah Donovan, volunteer bond sales chairman for Norfolk County.

The figure brings total sales for the year to date to $10,657,525 or 52 percent of the 1978 quota.

During the first six months of the year sales of Series E and H savings bonds throughout Massachusetts came to $140,866,694, which is 53 percent of the 1978 quota of $263,200,000.

It is reported Americans owned $79.4 billion worth of E and H savings bonds as of June 30, an increase of $2.36 billion over the figure of Jan. 1, 1978.

Now Serving Norfolk County

Survival, Inc. Is Alive And Well

Quincy is the birthplace of Survival, Inc., a drug-free treatment program, based on the "self-help" model.

It is an excellent, multi-service program which serves teenagers and their families in Norfolk county.

Eight years ago a group of dedicated and concerned men and women in the medical profession, education field, police department, religious and business world came together with the city government to found the sorely needed program.

Due to the low profile Survival has maintained, many people think Survival and the drug problem it is attempting to alleviate, have been phased out. Nothing could be farther from the truth.

Survival is alive and well on the South Shore. In fact it has expanded and become so proficient and professional the federal government insisted it become a regional program. Survival now serves Norfolk County and the entire South Shore.

However, "drug abuse is considered no less a problem than ever, but drug usage is now more acceptable in the community. There is more poly drug abuse, more alcohol abuse; angel dust, glue sniffing, and "downs" are prevalent". This last is a direct quote from a National Institute on Drug Abuse report.

Survival's latest evaluation by the National Institute on Drug Abuse, which covered the total program, has just been completed. Components of the program, in addition to administration, include:

- Outpatient drug-free counseling.
- The Independent Living program, for medium-term supervised apartment dwelling.
- The drug-free residential program at the Whiteman House.
- The Hotline.

"The evaluation team believes that, overall, Survival is a very viable program delivering high quality services in all it's components. There is considerable evidence of a marked improvement in services. We consider the present staff of excellent calibre."

On the multi-service center:

"Therapeutically, there is more emphasis on quality treatment and on family therapy. The goal in the multi-service center is to encourage the client to be active and to make decisions. Individual and group therapy take place."

On the hotline:

"It may well be the best hotline in the state."

On the independent living program:

"This program permits a broader alternative range of services to be provided."

On the Whiteman House:

"The residents gave evidence of gaining the ability to formulate understanding of their parents and their limitations. The tasks and responsibilities gradually given residents furnished them with a newfound sense of confidence and accomplishment. Through the family atmosphere at the Whiteman House, combined with the full educational plan, led by a fantastic and dedicated teacher, clients gain control over their own lives. The program provides a structured environment with appropriate limit-setting."

A great many people tell us "You're a wonderful program and deserve a decent residence, but not in our neighborhood." We feel we would be an asset to any ward in the city. Ask our neighbors. Take a look at the loving care given to the house we're now leasing.

Surely after all these years, we've proven ourselves. There has never been any trouble in the community originating from the program. These young people, thirteen to nineteen, who are working so hard to overcome this terrible affliction deserve your encouragement and support.

We invite you to share our dream of reconstructing these worthy lives. A young life is such a terrible thing to waste.

Free Milk Program At St. Mary's School

St. Mary's School, 131 Crescent St., West Quincy, will participate in the federally funded free milk program during the coming school year.

To be eligible to receive free milk parents of the children must meet certain income criteria. Rev. John McMahon, pastor of St. Mary's said forms will be sent home explaining procedures to be followed.

In addition to children from low income families those whose parents are unemployed or are considered nardship cases because of unusually high medical expenses or special educational expenses will be considered.

David Reilly Speaks At Learning Disabilities Workshop

David Reilly, of Quincy, was one of the guest speakers at the Blue Hills Association for Children with Learning Disabilities Workshop on Education held recently at the Holiday Inn in Somerville.

Main theme of the workshop, which was sponsored by Boston Self Help Center as well as many other groups, was "Conference on 504-Celebration of Our Rights." Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 prohibits discrimination against the handicapped by any program which receives federal assistance.

Reilly explained the problems a learning disabled person encounters in education and employment. He has also spoken on this subject on Channel 4 Eye Witness News and Bridgewater State College.

Pat McCarthy faces the issues.

ENERGY

"President Carter believes that if energy costs more, Americans will use it less. That's why he favors new and higher energy taxes. I oppose those new taxes as cruel and inflationary. Like the President, I support conservation, insulation, auto and appliance efficiency. Unlike the President, I do not believe that those methods alone will bridge the transition period to coal, solar and nuclear fusion. Accordingly, I favor increased domestic production of oil and natural gas. Current U.S. energy policy resembles a "Marshall Plan" for OPEC. We give Arab economies a $45 billion annual boost. Let's start spending as much of that money as possible right here in America. Let's produce more American energy. That way we can help sponge up American welfare and American unemployment and help promote American jobs."

Volunteers Sought For Atlantic Newsletter Distribution

Adult volunteers from the Atlantic area are needed to help put the "Atlantic Neighborhood News" newsletter together at the Atlantic Neighborhood Center Tuesday, Aug. 29, and Wednesday, Aug. 30.

Jim Sheets: Underdog

None of the so-called political experts can tell you for sure who our next Congressman is going to be.

The voters themselves will do the telling Sept. 19--primary election day. The Democrat who wins that day becomes Congressman James Burke's successor in the 11th District. There will be no final election showdown in November because the Republicans failed to field a candidate.

But with the primary less than a month away [26 days] if you were asked to pick the underdog among the major contenders at this stage, it would have to be City Councillor-Rep. James Sheets.

Sheets has many dedicated followers who sincerely believe in him and are working hard for him. They radiate optimism and insist, "He's going to win, just wait and see."

But despite his large number of loyal supporters, Jim Sheets finds himself pretty much in a Lone Ranger role as far as "name endorsement" help in Quincy is concerned.

He has got to come out of Quincy with a big vote or he can't win it. This is one of the reasons former Mayor-Senator James McIntyre, after considerable mental wrestling over whether or not to run, finally decided to pass it up. He figured he and Sheets would split the Quincy vote and lose the battle elsewhere.

Sheets, who had Quincy all to himself at the start, now has "names" slicing up for other candidates what should be his stronghold.

For example:

Former Rep. Joseph Brett has openly endorsed Rep. Brian Donnelly of Dorchester.

Former Mayor Joseph LaRaia has a letter in circulation backing Patrick McCarthy of Randolph. Local 5 shipbuilders union has it all on the line for McCarthy. So does Quincy District Court Dennis Ryan.

Although Congressman Burke publicly is "staying out of it", indications are he prefers Donnelly. Mrs. Edward Moore, his campaign manager and wife of his long-time friend and aide, has endorsed Donnelly. And so has Burke's brother, Walter. It's doubtful either endorsement would have come-publicly at least if Burke didn't approve of Donnelly.

Sheets is also handicapped by the fact he has less money than the other major candidates with which to finance an exposure campaign. A few Quincy businessmen have chipped in some money but not enough to launch anything big, publicity wise.

He has auto bumper stickers and some signs around but other than that his campaign has been one of low key, low visability compared to Donnelly, McCarthy and City Councillor Patrick McDonough who have more money to project their image.

But, this could be a blessing in disguise for Sheets.

Unable to afford much newspaper, radio, or television advertising and other campaign literature, Sheets is relying once again on "the personal touch" approach.

For months now he and his wife Joann, have been out knocking on doors pretty much all over the 11th District. The doors number in the thousands.

The visit then is followed up by a letter which usually takes note of some little thing at each home giving it that "personal touch." Like the name of the family dog, the pretty flowers in the garden, the children or "I hope Mr. Jones is feeling better."

This style campaign got Jim Sheets--an unknown at the time--elected to the City Council and then to the state House of Representatives.

The only problem this time, however, may be the fact that the 11th Congressional District is a lot bigger than Quincy's Ward 4. Will the voters he visited last March remember he was the charming fellow who visited them?

Observers feel he has got to put on a big publicity finish to remind all those voters he was the one who took the time to personally visit them and to find out what they wanted their next Congressman to do for them.

His followers think he can win it without the needed money for the big climax.

The Sheets "personal touch" will overcome the money deficit they say. The big question: But will it?

'At Home' Births Now A

[Cont'd from Page 1]

Mrs. Patricia Thorley of Plymouth, was the first patient admitted to the Alternative Child Birth Center. She gave birth to a son at 10:33 a.m. on Aug. 15.

Mrs. Thorley has a 19-month old daughter, Lauren, who was born at the same hospital. The Thorleys formerly lived in Quincy.

"This time was much more pleasurable and informal," she said. "What made it easier was that my husband, Robert, was with me."

The new mother had high praise for the procedure and said she has already recommended it to one of her friends who is presently pregnant.

"Our obstetrical department is very progressive in changing with the times and keeping up with the latest techniques Anthony P. DeFalco, director of the Quincy City Hospital, said in discussing the new program.

He noted that the length of stay in the hospital has been dramatically shortened over the past generation. The average stay now is about four days when the traditional delivery method is used.

With the Alternative Child Birth Center the recommended stay is 48 hours. State law requires a patient to remain in the hospital at least six hours after delivery to assure that there are no complications.

"Beyond that time the patient, with the agreement of her doctor, can be discharged at any time," DeFalco said. "Some women want to go home, others prefer to recuperate over the longer period."

The economic factor is also a consideration. The cost of having a baby is estimated today at approximately $1,200.

"With this new plan no delivery room is involved, no anesthesia and no nursery," Richard Bertocchi, assistant director of the hospital, pointed out. "Because of this, and the shortened hospital stay, the cost of this program is about $450, including all hospital services."

The hospital has developed the Alternative Birth Center to handle normal births in line with modern methods. At the same time obstetricians are cognizant that with increasing sophistication in technical resources for management of high-risk obstetrical situations the traditional delivery methods must be continued.

Women who wish to take advantage of the Alternative Birth Center must meet a number of criteria. First, all patients must have prenatal supervision by a physician, either a private attending obstetrician or a clinic doctor.

Obstetricians who are not members of the Quincy City Hospital staff may obtain temporary staff privileges to deliver babies upon request, with the approval of the hospital obstetrical service.

It must be ascertained that the patient has no suggestion of increased risk of complications during labor, delivery or the immediate post-partum period. If such conditions prevail the patient will be required to follow the course of labor and delivery as prescribed by her physician.

It is expected that all patients will attend some type of prepared childbirth classes and participate in the orientation program provided by the hospital staff.

"This is one of the most valuable parts of the program," DeFalco said. "The information provided gives the parents more confidence to face the delivery, especially the father-to-be."

The prenatal classes, which are recommended for all expectant parents, give the couple information on how to time labor pains. In this way, DeFalco said, they can properly estimate when the patient should head for the hospital.

It is expected that all mothers who wish to use the Alternative Center will be accompanied by a support person. This is usually the expectant father.

Children under 12 years of age must be accompanied by an adult who is not considered a major support person and who can leave with the children if the mother develops complications or the child becomes ill or upset.

Children must be screened for abnormal temperature or the slightest sign of infectious disease. It is suggested that food and toys be brought from home and patients are reminded the youngsters will not be allowed in the hospital corridors.

In general a specific plan for family participation must be approved by the hospital staff prior to admission to the center, with consideration for the comfort and safety of mother and infant being given top priority.

Any participants may be asked to leave if their presence seems to be stressful to the laboring mother and the major support person, or if the mother has to be moved out of the Center.

Dr. Ibrahim Fanous, chief of the obstetrical staff at Quincy City Hospital, said he and members of the staff are looking forward to wide acceptance of the program.

"This is a new concept, but one which was needed," he said. "We have to offer as

Because Of New Annex

May Change Bus Route Through McIntyre Mall

An engineer is looking into the possibility of changing bus routes through McIntyre Mall at the behest of Mayor Tobin and MBTA director Robert Kiley.

Tobin and Kiley conferred at length Friday over problems shared jointly by the city and the authority.

"We are concerned," said Tobin, "that the bus exit from the Quincy MBTA station comes too close to the end of the new City Hall annex which is due to be finished in a little while.

"We're putting the assessors' and the treasurer's office on the first floor of the annex because they get the most business from the citizens of Quincy.

"But that will generate a lot of traffic in and out of the building and that's not really the place to have buses coming out of the station every few minutes."

Tobin said he asked Kiley to cooperate as a safety measure and take the buses out the other end of the station lot where they enter now.

"There are problems," the Mayor said.

Tobin said they also talked about the possibility of relocating a gas station next to the new North Quincy High School addition on land owned by the MBTA across Hancock St.

"It was found to be unfeasible," he said. "We are now going to have to look to other locations."

Tobin and Kiley also visited the area where the MBTA tracks are to be depressed between the Ross Parking Area and the Grossman-Turnstile Shopping site.

"We discussed using the air rights over the tracks for development purposes," said the Mayor. "And he took a positive view of it."

REASON TO CELEBRATE -- Three couples toast each other during festive dinner at Quincy City Hospital dining room following birth of their babies. The hospital hosts parents before mothers are discharged. Here, from left are, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Welch of Pembroke, parents of a baby girl; Mr. and Mrs. John Shaw of Plymouth, parents of a baby boy, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Thorley of Plymouth, parents of a baby boy. many alternatives as possible. People are all different. Women have varying philosophies about giving birth.

"Most recently women have been told that delivery is a natural thing. Quite naturally, they ask if giving birth is a natural thing then why is it treated like a disease," Dr. Fanous continued.

"Giving birth is a natural thing, but the problem is that there is nothing to tell us when complications may intervene. They may happen very fast and they have to be taken care of at once.

"If a woman wants to prepare for a delivery in a home-like atmosphere it can now be done in a hospital facility. If anything happens all we have to do is open the doors and we have the equipment and personnel needed to meet the emergency," Dr. Fanous said.

All the usual safeguards are taken. At the time a woman is admitted to the Birthing Room an obstetrical nurse is assigned to evaluate her labor and remain with the patient and her support person throughout the labor and delivery. At the time of delivery, a second nurse is assigned to the room.

If, for any reason, complications develop during the labor or delivery the patient can be immediately moved to the regular labor and delivery room section of the hospital.

Intensive tests are made as a precaution against such an eventuality, prior to the patient's admission to the Alternative Birth Center. Her medical record and the history of any previous births are checked and the agreement of her doctor is required.

On the evening before her discharge the new mother and her husband are guests of the hospital at a candlelight dinner in a special section of the hospital dining room.

Along with a bottle of wine the dinner may include such entrees as sirloin steak, lobster newburg or rock Cornish game hen with wild rice stuffing, baked potato, with sour cream and chives, french fries, or whipped potatoes, asparagus, green beans almondine. There is also a salad and dessert.

Adams Birthplaces May Get Burglar Alarm

Quincy is going to explore cost of installing a burglar m in the Adams Birthplaces Franklin St., South Quincy, re a thief made off with ral historical items two ks ago.

I'm going to have Jack nock of the Fire Alarm sion and Hobart Holly of the orical Society check it over advise me what the cost ld be of an alarm system," Mayor Tobin.

The birthplaces of John and John Quincy Adams are owned by the city, operated by the Historical Society and currently in the process of being taken over by the National Parks Service.

Mrs. Margaret O'Connell, who has charge of the houses, said she doubts if the items taken in the early morning break Aug. 13 in the John Quincy Adams birthplace will ever be recovered.

She said an inventory of the building showed that the only things taken were John Adams' wedding vest, a musket, powder horn and bayonet from the War of 1812 and six Civil War sabres.

The loot was wrapped in a braided rug that was also taken.

Mrs. O'Connell said the number of visitors to the houses is running just about the same as last year when 9,300 tourists were entertained but well behind the banner Bicentennial year crowds of 18,000 in 1976.

MONEY TALKS
Surprising facts on who are buying homes these days
By Philip J. Lawrence, President
Colonial Federal Savings
and Loan Association
of Quincy, Holbrook & Wareham
8-6 Weekdays 8-7:30 Thursdays

The most detailed profile of home buyers ever compiled by a non-government agency lives the lie to the widespread notion that the dream of home ownership is getting out of the reach of most Americans.

To learn who bought single-family homes in 1977, the U.S. League of Savings Associations surveyed over 8,500 mortgage borrowers at nearly 200 savings associations around the country. The findings indicate that people of all ages and income levels are still satisfying their desires for a home of their own.

Here are a few of the interesting discoveries from a 176-page report, "Home Ownership: Realizing the American Dream."

More than a third of all home buyers in 1977 were under 30 years old, and 12% were under 24. The largest age group purchasing homes was between 25 and 29, accounting for 25% of the total. In fact, 71% of the study's respondents were under 40 years of age.

Despite the cover story in a national magazine last fall headlining "Housing: It's Outasight -- Sales surge but prices endanger a durable dream," the U.S. League survey reveals that almost two of every three homes were purchased in 1977 for under $50,000. The largest number of homes [22.2%] was acquired in the $30,000-39,999 range and 21.6% in the $40,000-49,999 range.

Half of the homes were purchased with family income under $22,400. Half of the home buyers had a net worth of less than $32,000.

Supporting population trends, the survey noted that home-buying families tend to be small, with three-or-four-member households very common. In fact, households of one or two persons constituted 45% of all the families studied. Single purchasers accounted for 17% of these home buyers.

Almost half of all families that purchased homes had more than one wage earner. In 56% of the purchases, the second earner contributed less than 19% of the total family income. In 15% of the purchases, the secondary income ranged from 40 up to 50% of the family total.

"People who buy homes," the U.S. League study concludes, "come from every social niche in every part of the country, thus rendering the phrase 'typical home buyer' meaningless. And while home prices certainly have shot up, it is misleading to use these prices as the single justification for the statement, 'Nobody can afford to buy a home anymore.'"

Renee Willard Winner Miss Quincy Junior Crown

Renee Willard, 11, representing the Wollaston Playground, was chosen winner of the Miss Quincy Junior Recreation Pageant held at Faxon Park under sponsorship of the Quincy Park-Recreation Board.

Maryann Picardi and Leann Pasquale, were coordinators for the pageant. Brian Buckley was master of ceremonies.

Judges were, Betty Campbell, Leslie Vinson, Bob Colman of Colman's Sporting Goods; Bernard Reisberg of Bernie's Formal Wear, and William Simon.

BANK AWARD -- The South Shore Women's Political Caucus Business Award for 1978 was presented Quincy Savings Bank at a recent dinner at Furnace Brook Golf Club. The bank was selected because of its grant to the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women, enabling the commission to start its Talent Bank. The bank is a source of women for consideration for politically appointed jobs. Charles A. Pearce, president of Quincy Savings Bank, accepts the citation presented by Jane B. Ford, past chairwoman of the caucus, and Patricia Baker, incoming chairwoman.

Harold Proposes Minimum Mandatory Sentences For Felonies

Minimum mandatory sentences for felonies should be established in Massachusetts to deter crime and insure consistency in sentencing, says State Senate candidate Paul D. Harold of Quincy.

Harold said the legislature should rewrite the state's felony laws to offset the trend toward excessive judicial leniency and give criminals a certainty of punishment.

"Justice demands that we have consistency in our sentencing procedures, so that similar crimes are similarly punished, and sentencing is no longer dependent on who the judge is," he said.

He said some judges give very light sentences for the same crimes which other judges punish harshly, and criminals are willing to take their chances with lenient judges.

Under proposed legislation, judges would be required to sentence offenders to prescribed jail terms, unless the judge puts in writing the reasons he was imposing a less-severe sentence.

"This kind of system would put the onus on judges to tell us why they are so lenient in some cases, while the certainty of punishment under a mandatory sentencing system would help deter crime," Harold said.

"It does nothing for our crime problems to allow criminals to receive light sentences, and then serve only a fraction of the sentence imposed."

McCarthy Wants To Serve On House Public Works Committee

Atty. Patrick H. McCarthy of Randolph says that if he is successful in his bid for Congress from the 11th District he wants to serve on the House Public Works and Transportation Committee.

McCarthy told picnic guests at the home of Ralph Ames, 67 Mayflower Rd, Squantum, that most congressional decisions regarding job-related economic development funds are made in that "nuts and bolts" committee.

"Not long ago," he said, "for every dollar we gave Washington, we received back 95 cents in Massachusetts. Now we get back $1.02 for every dollar we give Washington.

"But while most of our federal money goes to welfare, unemployment compensation and other social services, the South and Southwest received back most of their federal money in job-related funds and economic development."

Bike-A-Thon Held For Sheets

"This was not your typical congressional fund-raiser," said City Councillor-Rep. James A. Sheets [D-Quincy] – and indeed it was not.

The Sheets for Congress Committee conducted a "bike-a-thon" over a 10-mile course through Quincy and Braintree Sunday and enlisted the support of some 550 people for the Sheets campaign.

Following the bike-a-thon, the riders were entertained at a cookout at Sheets headquarters on School St., Quincy.

Dolores Nourse Reception Aug. 25

Dancing and entertainment will be featured until midnight.

All Quincy and Weymouth residents are invited to participate.

Tickets may be obtained from Don Carlson, 19 Hunt St., Mike Barsch, 12 Glendale St., and Frank McDonough, 764 Pleasant St., Weymouth.

Reception Aug. 31 For Avi Nelson

The Friends of Avi Nelson will hold a reception for Nelson, candidate for the U.S. Senate, on Aug. 31, at 8:30 p.m. at the Wollaston Golf Club. Local coordinators are Agnes Costello of Quincy; John Corbett, Braintree; Richard Cropas, Weymouth and Robert Carroll, Milton. Elizabeth Carroll is treasurer. Donations may be made at the door. For more information, call 698-2741.

Fund-Raiser Aug. 28 For Edward F. King

Edward F. King, the candidate for governor who was endorsed by the Republican convention, will be honored at a fund-raising party Monday, Aug. 28, from 8 p.m. to 10 p.m. at Sons of Italy Hall, 120 Quarry St., West Quincy.

Tickets for the party may be purchased from Kathy Roberts at 479-8280 or at the door.

King, who is the founder of Citizens for Limited Taxation and the man who devised the King Tax Limitation Amendment, will speak on high taxes and the cost of government.

Brett Supports Donnelly

Former Rep. Joseph E. Brett [D-Quincy] announces his support of Brian Donnelly to succeed Cong. James A. Burke [D-Milton] in the 11th Congressional District.

Brett, who served nine terms in the State House, called Donnelly [D-Boston] "a young, capable and hard-working legislator who is vitally concerned with the problems and welfare of all of the citizens in the district."

Morrisette Host Team

Legion Northeastern Regional Tourney Opens At Adams Field

By TOM SULLIVAN

For the second time in three years Morrisette Legion's baseball team is hosting the Northeastern Regional Tournament this week at Adams Field.

The tournament started yesterday [Wednesday] with four games, continues today [Thursday] with four and will conclude on Sunday. The winner of the double elimination tournament will play in the Legion World Series in Yakima, Wash.

Competing with Morrisette are the six New England state champions, East Springfield, Mass.; Old Town, Me.; Manchester, N.H.; Cranston, R.I.; Waterbury, Conn.; Rutland, Vt., and the New York state champ, Rome.

In 1975 Morrisette hosted the tournament and, after winning the state title for the first time, won the regionals and played in the World Series in Rapid City, South Dakota, where it dropped two run-one decisions.

In Wednesday's opening games Vermont met Maine and New Hampshire faced Connecticut in a doubleheader starting at 10 o'clock and E. Springfield played New York and Morrisette took on Rhode Island in another twin bill at 5:30.

Today [Thursday] the Vermont-Maine loser meets the Mass.-New York loser at 10 immediately followed by the Vermont-Maine winner vs. the Mass.-New York winner. The Connecticut-New Hampshire loser will meet the Morrisette-Rhode Island loser at 5:30, immediately followed by the Connecticut-New Hampshire winner vs. the Morrisette-Rhode Island winner.

Friday there will be a game at noon and a doubleheader starting at 5:30. Saturday the games will be at 1:30 and 7:30 with a game at 1:30 Sunday, and if necessary, the final game at 7:30.

Although Morrisette failed to win its 22nd Zone 6 crown this season, finishing a close second to Weymouth, Ray Cattaneo's team had another outstanding season and looms as a solid contender for the regional title. Morrisette was 14-6 in zone play, 19-7 overall and finished up with three straight wins, including one over Zone 6-A champ Braintree.

Morrisette has a solid hitting team led by Mike McCormack, .439; Steve Cook, .370; Mark Giordani, .346; Bill Deitsch, .345; Dave King, .329; Sal Coscia, .364, and Bob Biagini, .387.

Deitsch leads in runs batted in with 20, followed by McCormack with 18.

McCormack leads in home runs with three, Cook has the most triples, two, and the most doubles, five.

Deitsch has scored 19 runs to lead in that department, with Cook scoring 18 and Fran Donovan 17. Deitsch also leads with 30 hits, followed by McCormack with 28, Cook with 27 and King with 23.

Cook and Deitsch are the only players to play in every one of the team's 26 games.

Gary Earle leads a strong pitching corps with an 8-4 record, 80 strikeouts and 22 walks. John Wilkinson is 5-2 with 64 strikeouts and 40 walks, Ron Donovan is 3-1 with 17 strikeouts and 12 walks, Dave Austin is 2-0 with eight strikeouts and nine walks and Paul O'Toole is 1-0 with 19 strikeouts and the same number of walks.

ST. JOSEPH'S CYO GIRLS Cadet softball team, sponsored by State Rep. Robert Cerasoli, won the league title and now plays in the regional tournament. Front, left to right, Coach Joseph Kinnally, Laura McLean, Laure Overby, Leigh Ann LaFleur, Margaret McBride and Cerasoli. Second row, Joyce McLaughlin, Michelle Biggi, Janine LaFleur, Linda Whyte, Janice Glavin and Tricia Travers. Third row, Mary Thibideau, Annette Gallagher, Lisa Whyte, Mary Travers, Mary McBride and Jackie Glavin.

At Stadium Saturday

Track Club Hosts Frank Kelly Meet

The Quincy Track Club will host the third annual Frank Kelly Memorial Meet Saturday at 10 a.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium. Entry fee is $1.

More than 300 youngsters from 6 to 18 participated last year and at least this many are expected Saturday. The age groups are Squirts [born in 1970-71], Bantams [born in 68-69], Midgets [born in 66-67], Youths [born in 64-65] and Seniors [born 1960-63].

The top three in each event will receive medals.

The Quincy TC girls faced some of the stiffest competition of the season and came out with several excellent performances in the first Kendall Women's Classic at Boston University's Nickerson Field.

In the 10-11 division Maureen Roche and Kristine Picarski put on quite a show as they battled to a photo finish in the 100. Roche was given the win in 12.7, which ties her club record. Picarski came back to win the long jump with Bernadette Murphy second. Georgia Traficante was second in the 200 meters with a fine 31.3 effort.

Denise Santo and Margaret Osterman starred in the 12-13 division. Santo won the 100 and took second in the 200, while Osterman ran a tremendous 60.8 to win the 400 meters and leaped 16-3½ to win the long jump. Both were her personal bests. Debbie Hastings was third in the long jump.

Karen McCarthy won two medals in the 14-15 group, taking third in the 100 and second in the long jump. Mary Crehan met a club record and all-age record with a 5:29.2 enroute to a third in the mile.

Quincy Junior All-Stars Win 5 In Row But Eliminated

Quincy's Junior League all-stars, facing elimination after splitting their first two games, went on to win five games in a row in the Stoughton Invitational Baseball Tournament but were finally eliminated Sunday when they bowed to Whitman, 7-4, in the semifinals.

Quincy had remained in the running with a 4-3 win over Holbrook, scoring the winning run in the last inning. Scott Mele pitched a three-hitter while walking only one and striking out four or five innings. Steve Hogan relieved in the sixth to strike out the side and got the win. Mele beat out a bunt in the final inning, stole second and Frank Reynolds hit a two-out double to drive in the winning run.

Quincy then pounded Norwood Police, 9-1. Mark Hubbard led off the game with a home run and Mike Miller followed immediately with the first of his two homers and Quincy had little trouble the rest of the way. Joe Conti pitched his fourth straight win of the tournament.

The end came for Quincy Sunday when a powerful hitting Whitman team won, 7-4. Quincy left eight baserunners.

Hubbard received a trophy for being the tournament's top hitter with a .588 average. Miller batted .480, Reynolds .429 and Hogan .360. Conti received a trophy for being named one of the tourney's top pitchers.

Quincy was invited back next year for its outstanding play and outstanding sportsmanship.

Softball Doubleheader Raises $1,000 For Jerry's Kids

Tobin; Henry Bosworth, publisher of The Quincy Sun; and Herb Fontaine, news director of WJDA. Media won, 20-18.

MARK BURNS of The Quincy Sun steams home with the winning run for the Media as The Patriot Ledger's Fred Turner urges him to take it easy and Rep. Mike Morrissey, catcher for the City Officials, waits for throw that never came. Dick Gilmore is the umpire.

JOHN QUINN of the City Officials team congratulates umpire John Gillis for confusing balls and strikes while Media catcher Tom Henshaw of The Quincy Sun looks on askance.

MEDIA CATCHER Tom Henshaw protests futilely a call of umpire John Gillis who walks away from him.

PAUL GORHAM of The Quincy Sun offers his glasses to umpire John Gillis following a series of calls by the city clerk. Catcher Rep. Mike Morrissey chuckles.

NANCY NOBLE belts out a hit for the City Officials team as Jay Toland waits to run for her. Media pitcher is George Davis of the South Shore News, catcher Rick Sawler of The Quincy Sun and umpire Dick Gilmore.

PAT TOLAND of the School Committee takes a healthy cut at the ball but whether or not she made connections is left up to the discretion of the viewer.

FALSE ALARM FOR RUNNER

You are an executive and in order to stay fit you run your six miles every morning before going to work. You have just taken your annual company physical and were about to gloat about how young you feel - but a preliminary result from the medical lab has thrown you for a loss. A small amount of blood or protein was found in your urine.

While these are often indicative of kidney disease, they are also the common result of strenuous exercise, according to an article in Runners World.

The prolonged stress of any vigorous exercise can produce this passing condition, called "athletic pseudonephritis, but running particularly over 6 miles per hour - and swimming are most likely to sound the false alarm. Two days of rest will usually bring everything back to normal and, as far as doctors know, there are no lasting after effects. So, do not ignore a suspicious urine test, but make sure your doctor knows that your normal activities such as strenuous running or swimming may be the culprit.

Fitzgerald In Debut

Quincy, North Start Football Practice Aug. 28

By TOM SULLIVAN

The start of practice for the Quincy and North Quincy high school football teams next Monday will have a special meaning for Tom Fitzgerald.

On that day Tom makes his official bow as Quincy's head coach after nine years as assistant at his alma mater, North Quincy. Tom has been coaching schoolboy sports for 27 years but eagerly looks forward to the new challenge of being a head coach in his native city.

Both Fitzgerald and North Coach Dave Burke will be calling their squads out Monday morning to start preparations for the season's openers on Sept. 16.

Each has a new assistant this fall. Fitzgerald has all of Hank Conroy's aides back with the exception of John Bogan. He is replaced by Joe Goguen, a former Quincy player and the Presidents' track coach.

With the exception of Fitzie, Burke has all his assistants returning and George Liset, a former Weymouth North player who is an assistant track coach at North, succeeds Fitzgerald.

Returning at Quincy are aides Bill Maver, Mark Conroy and Peter Chella.

Back at their old posts at North are Ken McPhee, Jack Raymer and "the old master," Ted Sadowski, starting his 21st year as a North aide.

Fitzgerald will call his first Quincy squad out at 8:30 Monday and will work out until 10:30. After a break for lunch and blackboard drills, the Presidents will drill from 1 to 3. The same schedule will be followed all week. All workouts will be at Faxon Field. Saturday, Sept. 2, Quincy will scrimmage Everett.

Burke will have his squad out also at 8:30 at Pageant Field and will work out until 10:30. The Raiders will break for lunch until 11:30, will have blackboard drills until noon and will work out again from 12:15 to 1:45. This will be the schedule all week.

North will again be forced to dress at Veterans Memorial Stadium. This will be the last year of this inconvenience, as the new North gym and lockerrooms are expected to be ready by January.

Quincy will open on Sept. 16, at Cambridge Rindge and Latin in a Suburban League game, while North will host old rival Milton in a non-league game.

North plays Catholic Memorial for the first time on Nov. 11. The Raiders have scrimmaged Memorial for a number of years.

North also has one Sunday game at Brookline on Oct. 29. Brookline uses Northeastern University's field and the Huskies have a game scheduled on the 28th.

Naborhood Bows In Playoffs

The Naborhood Pharmacy softball team, runnerup in the Over-the-Hill League, was eliminated in two straight games by defending champion CBM in the playoffs last weekend.

After jumping off to a 3-1 first inning lead, Naborhood was defeated, 6-5, when CBM scored twice in the seventh inning.

A three-run homer by Jim Cocce gave Naborhood its early 3-0 lead in the top of the first. CBM scored once in the bottom of the first. Naborhood made it 4-1 in the second on Paul Erler's single and Pete Frederickson's double but CBM countered with two in its half. Naborhood made it 5-3 with a run in the fourth on Bob Conley's RBI single but again CBM came back with a run. It then scored twice in the seventh to win it.

Paul Erler pitched the complete game for Naborhood but was the victim of some poor support and bad base running. Doug MacLean made two fine catches in left to field for Naborhood.

In the second game Naborhood played its poorest game of the season and was bombed, 19-8.

This was the first time Naborhood had made the playoffs and it was a disappointing way to end a fine season.

Gary Flood Real Estate Finance School Graduate

Gary Flood, assistant vice president of South Shore Bank, recently graduated from the National School of Real Estate Finance sponsored by the American Bankers Association [ABA] and Ohio State University, at Columbus, O.

Flood completed two, one-week resident sessions at the Ohio State campus. In addition, he completed extension work geared to the actual operation of a mortgage department.

Flood, who has been with South Shore Bank for 10 years, received advanced training in both residential and construction lending, in a curriculum designed to instruct students in the sound and profitable operation of a mortgage lending department.

Before you make a deal...this deal or any other deal... investigate it thoroughly. Find out everything.

What is a 7-ELEVEN store?
Will it offer you and your family a fair chance at making a good living?
What is the company like that's behind the deal?

7-Eleven stores started popping up around Dallas, Texas in 1927. Today that are over five thousand of them doing business from coast to coast. Each one is a smaller-than-supermarket sized convenience food store. The product mix and merchandising plan appeal to customers of all ages and all income levels. The 7-Eleven store was the beginning of the convenience food store industry because of the 7 a.m. until 11 p.m. 7 day a week shopping concept. Nowadays, that convenience concept has been taken a step further since the majority of 7-Eleven stores across the country are open 24 hours a day 7 days a week.

If you should elect to invest your time and money in one of these stores, over a half century of 7-Eleven store experience will select a site for your store, will design, build, and equip it. Your bookkeeping will be done for you. You'll benefit from several national advertising programs.

A specialized training probram will teach you how to merchandise and operate the store and how to handle the public. That half century of experience is called The Southland Corporation, and those people are just as interested in your success as you are.

If you think this thumbnail sketch of a 7-Eleven store way of life deserves your further investigation, call or write using the coupon below.

PRICING FOR BEST PROFIT

Without any doubt, the most important element of selling a home is placing the right value on it. When you get right down to it, it's the price, more than anything else, which will dictate how fast [or slow]; how profitably [or unprofitably] it will sell.

What is the best selling price? National experience has proven conclusively that if your property is priced at inception within 5% above fair market value range, the chance of making a clean, top dollar sale during the early stages is TEN TIMES greater than otherwise.

Buyers buy by comparison. Properties not competing favorably do not sell. Overpricing at inception causes properties to become shopworn: valuable time and buyers are lost forever. Ultimately, all properties sell for their true value by comparison - or less if exposed initially at an inflated price. How do you arrive at this "5% plus" key value? Drop into our office if you're thinking of selling your home and we'll show you.

Whether buying or selling, turn to Realty World - President Real Estate for all your real estate needs.

Sun Jerry Lewis Telethon Pledge Center

The Quincy Sun for the second year will be the Quincy-South Shore Pledge Center for the Jerry Lewis Muscular Dystrophy telethon this Labor Day weekend.

Mayor Arthur Tobin has proclaimed Sept. 3-4 'Jerry Lewis-Quincy Sun Muscular Dystrophy Telethon Weekend.'

Thirty telephones will be installed in The Sun office, 1372 Hancock St., Quincy Sq. to handle donation pledges from the Quincy-South Shore area.

The special telephone number to call to make a pledge is: 328-4030.

Some 200 volunteers will man the phones on various shifts over the Labor Day weekend.

This year's telethon--the 13th annual--will originate from the Hotel Sahara in Las Vegas for the sixth consecutive year. The show begins Sunday, Sept. 3 at 9 p.m. and runs non-stop for 21 1/2 hours until Monday, Sept. 4 at 6:30 p.m.

Locally, Quincy station WJDA [1300] will air progress reports live every half-hour from The Sun pledge center on Labor Day and will carry interviews from there, too.

A "fish bowl" will also be set up at The Sun into which passersby may drop HONORED FOR FIND -- Robert Kilnapp, 9, [left] and Jonathan Brooks, 8, with Mayor Arthur H. Tobin, who presented them with citations as offical thanks from the city for discovery of artifacts stolen Aug. 13 from the John Quincy Adams Birthplaces. The boys discovered John Adams' wedding vest and other historic objects in a field near their homes on Independence Ave. on Sunday.

John Adams' Stolen Wedding Vest Found Slightly Damaged

John Adams' stolen wedding vest has come home but Mrs. Margaret O'Connell, its custodian, isn't sure what to do with it.

The vest, created by John Adams' mother in 1764 especially for his wedding to Abigail Smith, is currently under lock and key and burglar alarm at the Quincy Historical Society.

"If we get a burglar alarm from the city for the Birthplaces then I wouldn't be afraid of keeping it at the house," said Mrs. O'Connell. "Right now I'm not quite sure."

The vest was slightly damaged during its two-week odyssey from the time it was stolen Sunday morning, Aug. 13, to the time it was found by two boys Sunday morning, Aug. 27.

"One large piece of the silk in the vest is missing on the side," reported Mrs. O'Connell. "It probably just disintegrated and fell off because it is so fragile.

"The vest is all original now and I don't know whether or not we will try to restore it. We'll have to sit down and get information on textiles before we do anything.

"I'd almost rather keep it the way it is because it is all original. But the main thing is that we have them back. It's a miracle."

The vest and other stolen articles were found by Jonathan Brooks, 8, and his cousin, Robert Kilnapp, 9, both of 43 Independence Ave., South Quincy.

Coming out of their house to play, the youngsters came upon a rolled up rug behind the Alpine Cafe, unrolled it and out came the articles stolen from the John Quincy Adams birthplace.

In addition to the vest, there were three sabres and three swords, all of the Civil War period, and a musket, powder horn and bayonet that date from the War of 1812.

All were in good condition, said Mrs. O'Connell, except for the vest and the powder horn, which had a little break at one end "but it isn't something we can't fix."

The vest was found rolled up and tucked into a hat from the Napoleonic era, which apparently was also taken from the Birthplace but not noticed during a post-burlary inventory.

Mrs. O'Connell said detectives told her that the rug and its contents probably had been placed in the spot, some 300 yards from the Birthplaces, since they were dry and it rained the night before.

Historic Commission To Consider Adams Birthplaces Burglar Alarm

The Quincy Historic District Commission will meet Monday, Sept. 11 at 7:30 p.m. at the Public Works Department Building, 55 Sea St.

The meeting has been called to discuss installation of an intrusion alarm system at the Adams Birthplaces; hear a final presentation of guidelines by a consultant and discuss zoning changes.

CAAN May Seek Davis Ouster Over Jet Noise

By TOM HENSHAW

Members of the Committee Against Airport Noise [CAAN] are prepared to demand the resignation of David Davis as executive director of Massport in their dispute over airplane noise from Logan Airport.

"The idea is under discussion," said CAAN chairman Bernice Mader following a two-hour meeting with Frederick Ford, aviation director of Massport, that Miss Mader said left the group "not satisfied."

"I would say we have it [the resignation demand] ready, pending what Gov. Dukakis has to say to us on Sept. 9 or soon thereafter. A lot will hinge on what is done, if anything, on that day."

Miss Mader said Davis violated at least six Massport policies as stated in the Logan Airport master plan in dealings with Quincy.

"I would consider that a very serious thing," she said. "If you want to draw an analogy to the Judge Bonin case I'd consider it along very similar lines."

One of the policies cited by Miss Mader is one that states: "No changes [in runway use priorities] will be undertaken unless approved by the communities affected."

Quincy, she said, was not even consulted by Massport when takeoffs from Runway 22 at Logan were shifted from 210 degrees to 195 degrees and later to 180 degrees.

Another policy violation, she said, is one that says Massport "will develop and effectively enforce all noise abatement programs under its control."

"The only enforcement they have over the airlines is to hit them with fines," she said. "TWA was once fined $250. The rest of those fined were Evergreen Airlines, Seaboard, Capitol and Flying Tiger. They haven't gone after a biggie."

To Be Announced Next Week

Tax Rate Looks Like Good News

Gov. Michael S. Dukakis will be on hand next week for the announcement of the Quincy tax rate for fiscal 1979 -- all of which bodes well for the taxpayers of Quincy.

Would the governor, in a re-election year, go out of his way to endorse a substantial hike in the tax rate?

Indeed, Mayor Tobin said he asked the governor, who has visited Quincy a lot in recent weeks, to be present "when Quincy taxpayers get the good news about the tax rate."

Predictions are that the 1978-79 tax rate will be under $2.80, perhaps even $0.00. The 1977-78 rate was $197.20, the highest in the city's history.

Tobin said Dukakis has a task force maintaining daily contact with the state's larger cities to make sure they are applying new state aid formulas to the local property tax rate.

"I told him we are directly applying this money to the reduction of the property taxes," said the Mayor, "and he told me he was pleased that Quincy was living up to the intent of the increase in local aid."

The last major roadblock to fixing the tax rate was settled last week when Norfolk County agreed that it owed the city $201,000 in settlement of an old assessment error.

The $201,000 amounts to slightly less than $1 on the tax rate.

"We're checking some minor errors on the cherry sheet with the Department of Taxation and Corporations and we're checking to make sure that certain things we want to do will be allowed," said Tobin.

City Receives 5.3% Interest Rate On Equipment Bonds Sale

Mayor Tobin announces that Quincy has received a favorable interest rate of 5.3 per cent on the sale of $1,125,000 in three-year departmental equipment bonds.

Quincy has also sold $5,040,000 worth of school bonds for North Quincy High School at the favorable interest rate of 6.1 per cent for 18 years.

The bonds were purchased by the E. F. Hutton Inc. & Associates and will be distributed through their brokerage houses in many of the nation's major cities. Five major buying groups bid on the bonds.

The Mayor said the City of Quincy has again received an A-1 rating from Moody's Investors Service, Inc. of New York, the leading appraisers of municipal bonds.

School Committee Action Allows Polish Visitor To Complete High School

By PETER BARNICLE

Bozena Brodzik, 16-year-old visitor from Poland, will remain in the United States to finish her high school education, thanks to action taken by the Quincy School Committee.

Bozena, presently visiting her aunt, Mrs. Jadwga Osmak, 169 Marlboro St., Wollaston, will attend the Abraham Lincoln School in Boston, which has a program for non-English speaking students.

Miss Stella Krupka, a friend of the family and a retired Broad Meadows Junior High School teacher, appeared before the committee to plead the petition.

She explained that the Osmaks have been in the country for 10 years, are U.S. citizens and own their home in Quincy. She said they are willing to meet any costs involved in the girl's education.

However, the girl must present the immigration department with a properly executed I-20 Form to enable her to change her visa from a "visitor" to a "student" classification. This can only be done by the school authorites in the community where she is residing.

In a bookkeeping transaction the Abraham Lincoln School will assess the Quincy school department for the girl's tuition. In turn the Osmaks will reimburse the city.

"Officials in Boston have informed me they are willing to accept Bozena if she can satisfy the immigration authorities of her status," Miss Krupka said.

School Committeeman Frank Anselmo raised the question of the girl's status if she transfers to North Quincy High Schoool in Sept. 1979. He said he wanted to be assured that her tuition in that year would be paid to Quincy.

The committee approved a motion calling for a review of the girl's status before she is admitted to the Quincy Schools, if she chooses to make that move.

Miss Krupka expressed confidence that Bozena will compete successfully in the American school system once she has mastered the language.

Following the vote Miss Brodzik was congratulated by members of the committee.

Help Families, Too

Stress Program To Aid Quincy Police Officers

The Quincy Police Department has introduced a Stress Program designed to help police officers and their families in identifying stresses of the job and ways to deal with them effectively.

Police Chief Francis X. Finn said the new program is modeled after the Boston Police Department Stress Program and is geared to meet the needs of the Quincy police force.

Finn emphasized that the program is strictly voluntary and completely confidential. It will operate autonomously and will be physically isolated from the department.

In a memorandum announcing the program Chief Finn noted that many officers are reluctant to talk about their work with outsiders and reject "professional" help, either because they have no confidence in such help or "because it seems to demeaning for a policeman to admit he's human and needs help."

That leaves only other police officers as the only people from whom they will accept advice or assistance, Finn said.

Officer David P. Doherty has been named director of the new program. He has recently completed an extensive counseling course at Rutgers University and additional training with the staff of the Boston Police Department Stress Program.

The program will be staffed entirely by Quincy police officers who will receive special training in counseling techniques and who have personally experienced the kinds of problems the program addresses.

"While informal aid for officers with alcoholic problems has sometimes been available," Finn said, "stress problems appearing in other forms such as family troubles, repeated excessive use of force, ulcers, severe depression, or extreme nervousness have been left to the individual to handle."

Contact can be made with the unit's office, weekdays from 9 - 5 at 298-5026 or by use of its 24 hour answering service seven days a week at 479-3534.

Plans are being developed to hold an open house at the unit's office for officers and their families. Information regarding the program can be obtained by telephoning Officer Doherty at the Stress Program office.

DIABETES ON THE INCREASE

Currently diabetes is the number 3 killer disease [behind heart disease and cancer] and the leading cause of blindness in the nation. Some 10 million Americans are afflicted with this incurable disease, more than a million of them children.

Women, non-whites and overweight people are the most likely candidates. Women, for example, are 50% more likely to contract the disease than men, while non-whites are 20% more likely to become diabetics than whites. In the weight category, the chance of developing diabetes doubles with every 20% of excess weight.

Experts predict that by 1986, diabetes will afflict 1 in 5 Americans. In children though, the onset of diabetes can be particularly swift and severe. Presently, one-half of child diabetics die from kidney disease within an average of 25 years following the diagnosis.

People with maturity-type diabetes can do extremely well if they adhere to a proper diet and maintain an ideal body weight.

Perry Como Sings For Italian Home For Children

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

A third of the sell-out audience at one of Perry Como's recent performances at South Shore Music Circus, Cohasset, not only enjoyed the popular entertainer's show but also helped support the Italian Home for Children, 1125 Centre St., Jamaica Plain, at the same time.

The Music Circus, along with Como, allotted the fund raising guild of the home 1,000 of its 3,200 tickets for a Saturday dinner hour show. Over $6,000 was raised from ticket sales and donations.

The guild, and several of its supporters, met the 66 year-old singer before the performance. Jean Matarazzo, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Matarazzo, chairmen of the benefit, presented Como with a gift on behalf of the children of the home, a shirt and tie, donated by Mr. Di's Clothing Store, Quincy.

As part of the show Como led the audience in a sing-a-long, during which he cracked, "Welcome to the Italian Hour". Several standing ovations punctuated the evening.

The fund-raiser was one of several held by the guild this year to help support the home which was begun 50 years ago for Italian orphans of the flu epidemic. Staffed by Franciscan nuns, it now serves as a home for children of all nationalities, ranging in age from 3 to 14, who have been abused by their parents.

In all, $25,000 has been raised in 1978 and a check in that amount will be presented by the guild to the home at a Communion breakfast on Oct. 1, at the Colonnade Hotel, Boston.

Pat McCarthy faces the issues.

Retirement Years

"The retirement years aren't what they used to be. It's the same everywhere. The problem is money. Congress must assure that when social security benefits go up, widows pensions, veterans pensions, rental assistance and other benefits stay the same - instead of going down. Congress must also expand Medicare to cover hearing aids, eyeglasses, dentures, insulin needles and prescription drugs. I know a wonderful 68 year old lady who skipped lunch for a year to pay for a desperately needed hearing aid. In a country as great as America, I think it's a crime that any person should choose between food or medicine."

Jewels & Gems

by Stan Manin

Many people believe that fashion trends are cyclical, that if you wait long enough, your old clothes and jewelry will be in fashion again. But, more and more fashion and jewelry consultants believe that, though certain things stay popular for a long time, and certain trends constantly reappear, styles rarely actually repeat. There are resemblances but certainly no duplications. It is better to look at new social trends and new materials to forecast the fashion trends.

Many people enjoy shopping with us at GRONO & CHRISTIE, INC., 536 Adams St., East Milton, 696-1490 because of friendly assistance and complete selection of the latest jewelry fashions. If you have an old piece of jewelry you would like remounted, come in and see our experienced craftsmen. We handle the custom designing and work right here on our own premises. Hours: 9 a.m. - 5 p.m., Mon. thru Sat.

HELPFUL HINT:
Leather and padded shoulders are part of the new look. Be prepared with jewelry that matches.

CAAN May Demand Davis Resignation Over Jet Noise

came on the day that Massport officially opened Logan's Runway 15R, which had been closed while a $1.5 million improvement project was underway, 12 days ahead of schedule.

Announcement of the early reopening said it "has potential benefit for noise-affected communities because it provides a capability for over-water takeoffs and landings."

As it turned out, the statement was not wholly accurate.

Ford showed CAAN's executive board that planes do indeed take off from 15R over water but, in order to join the New England flight pattern, they turn right over Quincy at an altitude of 2,000 feet.

Charles Schaab, an aide to Sen. Arthur H. Tobin, noted that reopening of 15R had been touted as the saviour of Quincy's ear drums from aircraft noise.

"It was mentioned to us that we would no longer have to worry about the use or non-use of Runway 22R and the use or non-use of the corkscrew turn because 15R would be in use," he said.

"I think it is not turning out to be the saviour that it was claimed it was going to be."

"If those planes are coming over us from 15R," said Bernice Mader, "then here we go again."

Ford gave CAAN an evaluation of the first two weeks of experimenting with the so-called "corkscrew" turn from 22R, in which aircraft turn left after taking off and turn over Boston.

"When Runway 22 is in use we are reasonably confident we can use the left hand turn, the corkscrew, approximately 85 per cent of the time," he said.

"About 50 percent of the remaining 15 per cent will be either international or northbound flights which will turn north over the North Shore.

"The remaining 50 per cent of the 15 per cent, in all honesty, there is no conclusion yet."

Ford indicated that the newly opened 15R may be closed again next summer, and possibly the summer after that, for the installation of new and more sophisticated landing instruments.

He also made these points, none of which wholly satisfied the CAAN board:

- "If it turns out that the corkscrew is a better noise abatement procedure than using the 15R departure then the corkscrew will become primary."
- "There is a good chance of getting a turn radius within the harbor area made permanent. But if that adversely impacts other communities then you may end up back on the 210 departure.

"If we can get that turn made and they don't come back over the North Shore then that solves the problem for a lot of people. I think there is a 50-50 chance of it being successful."

- "I think that what will take place is that the corkscrew, the 180 and the 210 will be considered by the Authority and one of the three will be recommended to the FAA.

"Two of them [the corkscrew and the 180] require an environmental impact statement. I personally think 180 is out. There is still some hope for this one [the corkscrew]. The other option is 210."

State Representative

BOB CERASOLI'S been working: just look around and see.

PROBLEM?

For many years, Mound Street Beach [also known as Sandy Beach] was scarred and blighted by the adjacent Bruton property littered with old wooden pier pilings, rotted hulks of barges, and boats. A lot of people complained, but no politicians could or would get anything done.

BOB CERASOLI TAKES ACTION!

In August of 1975, Rep. Cerasoli filed a complaint with the Massachusetts Division of Waterways. After many hours of research and numerous meetings with the Chief Engineer, the Division of Waterways issued an order to Bruton Development Corporation to remove the tons of debris scattered along the beach and in the water.

BOB CERASOLI GETS RESULTS!

"As President of the Ward 2 Civic Association, I would like to convey to you our deepest appreciation for the results of your relentless efforts in cleaning up the property next to Mound Street Beach...it will enhance the waterfront immensely. This project could never have been realized without your relentless perserverance."

Ted DeCristofaro, President
Ward 2 Civic Association
[Excerpt from letter dated 7/18/76]

PROBLEM?

Washington Street in Quincy Point is a heavily travelled bus route used by many residents in the area. There was never any shelter from the weather for people who have to depend on public transportation each day.

BOB CERASOLI TAKES ACTION

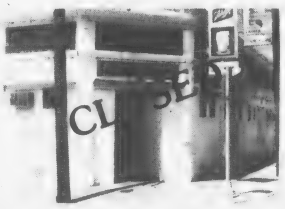
Rep. Cerasoli had the MBTA install two plexi-glass bus shelters along Washington Street in Quincy Point. One adjacent to Pagnano Towers and one adjacent to the Quincy Point Congregational Church.

BOB CERASOLI GETS RESULTS!!

"For the third year in a row I have stood at the Washington Street - Point Congregational MBTA bus stop daily; Freezing, exposed to the elements, sometimes soaking wet and sometimes hot. It is a very depressing way to start the day. With pleasure I look forward to the bus shelter you are having placed there. Thank you for caring!"

Theresa Lomanno, Student
Quincy Point [Letter dated 10/19/77]

"The members of the Pagnano Towers Tenant Association sincerely thank you for your efforts on their behalf in obtaining the bus shelter on the Washington Street side of our building. We are very happy to accept the kindness of fine young elected officials, like yourself, and if we can serve you or help you in any way we hope you will feel free to call on us."



Frank O'Brien, President
Pagnano Towers Tenant Association [Excerpt from letter dated 1/14/77]

PROBLEM?

Certain drinking establishments along Washington Street in Quincy Point were creating severe problems for the residents of the area.

BOB CERASOLI TAKES ACTION!

In 1974-75 Rep. Cerasoli started speaking out before the Quincy Licensing Board against these establishments. And on numerous occasions, took the people's case to the state Alcoholic Beverages Control Commission resulting in the Closing of two problem drinking establishments on Washington Street.

BOB CERASOLI GETS RESULTS!!!

"On behalf of the Parish Council of St. Joseph's Church in Quincy, I have been requested to write thanking you for your efforts in regard to the closing of certain drinking establishments in the Quincy Point area. We are very grateful for all that you are doing to make our section of this city a more desirable neighborhood."

Mary M. Murphy, Secretary
St. Joseph's Parish Council [Excerpt from letter dated 1/16/78]

He worked hard. He got results. He'll do it again.

City Receives $4,000 For Historic Properties Survey

The city of Quincy has received a $4,000 grant from the Massachusetts Historical Commission to help complete the third phase of a survey of historic properties in the city.

State Secretary Paul Guzzi, commission chairman, made the award to Mayor Arthur H. Tobin during ceremonies at City Hall.

The first and now completed phase of the Quincy survey was an inventory of all sites, buildings, and structures located within the city's two historic districts. The second phase involved a cataloguing of known historic sites.

Phase three will be a city-wide survey of all buildings having structural, historical, and/or cultural significance.

At the presentation of the grant Guzzi noted that several of the nation's most prominent public figures were born and raised in Quincy.

He praised the Mayor and the Planning and Development Commission for taking an active role in the preservation effort.

"They feel as I do that restoration and maintenance of old properties makes good economic and historical sense," Guzzi said.

SUNBEAMS

By Henry Bosworth

Jerry Lewis . . . What Kind Of A Guy Is He Really?

"Have you ever met Jerry Lewis: what kind of a guy is he really?"

That question is often asked me this time of year because of my personal and The Quincy Sun's involvement in the Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon for Muscular Dystrophy.

Yes, I've met Jerry Lewis. I've been with him twice. And, long before that, I saw him do something for a lonely, little boy I'll never forget.

What kind of a guy is he? Well, let me tell you a few things I know about him and let you answer that question yourself.

The first part of the story, which goes back 21 years, I've told before. The second part happened more recently.

But the first part is appropriate for re-telling with this year's telethon just a few days away.

As a staff reporter with The Boston Traveler in October, 1957, I was sent to the Lakeville Sanatarium [now hospital] along with the late photographer Frank Kelly of Wollaston to check on a little boy there.

A nurse [Doris Reynolds] had written us a letter about the boy. He was lonely because no one came to visit him. He was going to be nine on Oct. 8. Could The Traveler help him receive a few birthday cards to cheer him up?

Kelly and I met a handsome youngster with one of the biggest smiles in the world. But not quite big enough to hide the heartache of thinking no one wanted him.

Kindly Dr. Kurt Jellinek, who died a few months ago, filled us in on the tragic background. The boy's mother was dead and his father imprisoned for her death.

If that wasn't bad enough, the boy had incurable muscular dystrophy.

What did he want for his birthday?

"Four or six cards," he replied. "Funny cards."

And, maybe a toy airplane because when he grew up, he wanted to "fly up to the sky."

Dr. Jellinek consented to letting me do a story, and Kelly taking a photo. Because of the circumstances we agreed not to use the boy's full name. So we referred to him in the story as "Francis X". [Francis was his real first name] and as "Little Boy Blue".

Kelly took a photo of Francis seated in his wheel chair--back to camera--looking for the visitors who never came.

The Traveler carried the story and photo on Page 1 Oct. 3 – five days before his birthday. And we soon learned there were still a lot of nice people around.

By weekend, the Middleboro post office was snowed under with letters, cards, packages. Thirty extra workers had to be hired to keep up with the avalanche.

The Traveler story was picked up by the Associated Press and United Press and soon most of the world knew about Francis. Before it was over, there would be a half-million pieces of mail, $12,000 in coins and dollar bills and three huge rooms full of toys and other presents.

For months, the toys were shared with youngsters in other hospitals on their birthdays and at Christmas. The money was set up in a trust fund for Francis.

It was really something. But the most touching part of all happened the night of Francis' ninth birthday. Jerry Lewis [he was MDA national chairman even then] read the story and wanted to do something special.

A VERY SERIOUS Jerry Lewis pauses at dedication of Muscular Dystrophy Clinic at Children's Hospital, to re-read story of little "Francis X" written by Quincy Sun Publisher Henry Bosworth [right]. As a result of the story, Lewis staged a closed circuit birthday show for boy in 1957 that was the forerunner of today's Jerry Lewis Telethon.

[John Gilhooly Photo]

He got NBC to hook up a closed TV circuit from Burbank, Calif., to the little town of Lakeville, Mass., 3,000 miles away. At the time, it was estimated it took some $350,000 and 9,000 technicians, engineers and others to complete the hook-up.

All of this for a lonely little boy.

This was the forerunner of the Muscular Dystrophy telethon as we know it today. Last year's telethon spectacular raised nearly $27 million and was seen by a near 100 million viewers.

But the sole purpose of the closed circuit show 21 years ago was to make a lonely little boy happy on his birthday. And the only thing it raised was hope in a little boy's heart.

By telecast time, however, the audience had grown. Joining Francis in front of TV receivers in the hospital recreation hall were other young patients in wheel chairs, beds and on crutches. Nurses, doctors, parents and newsmen were there, too.

Then, the announcer was saying:

"This program is an NBC closed circuit broadcast for Francis in Lakeville Sanatarium direct from Hollywood--a command performance!"

Francis smiled, laughed and slapped the side of his wheel chair as Jerry Lewis mugged, clowned, sang and spoke directly to him.

And for the next 75 minutes or so on camera stepped Eddie Cantor, Dinah Shore, Eddie Fisher, George Gobel, Hugh O'Brien, Jimmy Dodd and the Mouseketeers, Mary Costa, The Skylarks and others. Each with a special personal message for Francis and all performing free of charge to make a little boy happy.

It was an emotional evening. Most of the adults in the audience at Lakeville managed to hold back the tears when Lewis and The Skylarks sang a parody to "There's No Business Like Show Business" entitled "There's No Francis Like Our Francis".

But the tears won out when Dinah Shore serenaded Francis with "You Made Me Love You" and he happily waved back to her.

The story doesn't have a happy ending, though, because there is no cure for muscular dystrophy. Francis died in November, 1966, a few weeks after his 18th birthday. Ironically, that was the year of the first public Jerry Lewis Telethon that is raising the necessary money to find that cure.

The mail never really stopped until sometime after Francis' death. He was remembered by many with cards every birthday and Christmas for 10 years.

The night Jerry Lewis put on his first telecast for Francis and Muscular Dystrophy was for us, who were there, a night to remember.

Jerry was at his best. It was an Emmy performance--from the heart. To me, it was one of TV's finest hours.

It wasn't until January, 1977--nearly 20 years later--that Jerry Lewis and I first met. It was at Children's Hospital, Boston, where he had come to dedicate a Muscular Dystrophy Clinic.

The MDA invited me to be among those present. On my way into Boston I wondered if Jerry Lewis remembered Francis.

I decided to bring along a copy of Francis' story the MDA Southern Massachusetts Chapter had asked me to do for its newsletter a few years ago.

I had it in my pocket when I was introduced to Lewis. I told myself I would show it to him only if he remembered Francis.

He's been a busy man since 1957 and maybe he might have forgotten that little lonely boy he made happy one night.

"You know," I said to him, "you and I shared in a story about a little boy 20 years ago, down in Lakeville. His name was Francis and...."

But before I could finish, Jerry said: "Yes, I remember. That was Little Boy Blue. But hardly any one remembers that today."

The fact he remembered Francis' other name--Little Boy Blue--really impressed me. I took out the newsletter and handed it to him.

The room was full of people and photographers waiting to get pictures of other things. But Jerry Lewis stopped everything and with the most serious look on his face I have ever seen, read the article, word for word.

"Can I have this?" he asked, when he finished.

"Sure," I said, "providing you autograph another copy for me."

While we were talking, an aide came up and took the copy of the newsletter I had just given Jerry and walked away with it, as though to get it out of his way.

Lewis looked at the aide, walked over to him and said: "Give that to me," as though to say, "I don't want you to lose it."

He then folded it carefully, and put it in his suit jacket pocket.

Jerry did autograph a copy for me and it hangs framed in my office today. It says: "Thank you, Henry. Jerry Lewis."

What kind of a guy is Jerry Lewis?

Whether you like or don't like Jerry Lewis, the clown, you've got to like Jerry Lewis, the man. Because of him and the millions of dollars he has raised, some day another little Francis will grow up and live a long, normal life.

And that will really be the happy ending to a story that started in Lakeville in 1957.

donations.

Anyone donating $1 or more to the fish bowl at The Sun office over the Labor Day weekend will be eligible to win a $270 counter Sharp Microwave oven being donated by John Poreca, president of Vesco Inc., 273 Copeland St., Quincy.

In addition to that the first 500 persons donating $1 or more to the fish bowl will receive a handsome color photo poster of the Tall Ships that visited Boston in 1976.

Last year $63,638 was raised in the Quincy-South Shore area at the Quincy Sun pledge center and through pre-telethon events sponsored by the Quincy-South Shore Jerry Lewis Telethon Committee.

Of this figure, $34,497 came from pledges, $3,935 from the "fish bowl" at The Sun and $25,201 from pre-telethon activities.

Henry Bosworth, publisher of The Quincy Sun and Richard J. Koch, executive secretary of the Quincy Park-Recreation Board are co-chairmen of the Quincy-South Shore Committee.

This year's pre-telethon events are expected to surpass last year's in money raised.

The star-studded spectacular will be aired by more than 200 stations throughout the U.S. and Canada. Local outlet is WCVB [Ch. 5] in Boston.

More than 100,000 volunteers will work at nearly 1,200 pledge centers such as the one at The Sun.

Pledges made to The Quincy Sun center will be relayed to New England headquarters at New England Life Hall and sent on from there to the national center at the Hotel Sahara.

The telethon does not start until 9 p.m. from Las Vegas, but Ch. 5 will be on the air an hour earlier with a special show "Countdown For Love."

The show will feature highlights from previous telethons and a look at how Boston area contributions have been used to fight muscular dystrophy.

Cheryl Ladd, Tony Bennett, Vikki Carr, David Hartman and Sammy Davis Jr., will be among the many big name stars appearing with Lewis on the telethon. Ed McMahon will again assist him during the 21 1/2 hour show.

Chet Curtis and Natalie Jacobson will co-host the Boston proceedings which will feature local celebrities, community leaders and other Ch. 5 personalities with appearances by a number of residents from the Quincy-South Shore area who have played key-roles in pre-telethon activities here and others who will be working at The Sun pledge center.

The Ch. 5 segments will originate from New England Life Hall with remotes from Copley Sq., Boston. WHDH will also be broadcasting live from Copley Sq.

The telethon raised nearly $27 million in 1977–$1,151,405 of which was from the Boston [including Quincy-South Shore] area.

The money pledged in the Boston area was more than what was raised in the entire country in 1967. Eighty-three per cent of the money goes for program services, including research and medical services, all dedicated to help find the cure for muscular dystrophy.

Remember, if you would like to donate to help the fight against muscular dystrophy, the Quincy Sun Pledge Center number is: 328-4030.

Wigglesworth Wins Nomination

The Quincy delegation threw its support to Richard B Wigglesworth on the third ballot and the Milton man received the Republican nomination for Congress from the 14th district in convention at Dedham.

But one delegate, George Taylor, was not happy about the way in which City Council President Thomas S. Burgin rose to withdraw the name of favorite son Russell A. Sears and endorse Wigglesworth.

"It was a bombshell for some of us," he said. "for we did not consider anyone in our delegation had the right to sell us. It turned a fair fight into an unAmerican one."

It's Time to Fight Back!

DOLORES NOURSE believes that the recently announced state local aid program is one of the worst ripoffs ever perpetrated on the taxpayers of Quincy and Weymouth. In a formula designed to penalize Quincy and Weymouth the 14 largest cities with only 32% of the population get 54% of the increase.

THE BARE FACTS
* NEW 1979 INCREASED AID FORMULA

	POPULATION	ACTUAL $ INCREASE	INCREASE PER PERSON
Wellesley	26,000	1,034,000	$ 39
WEYMOUTH	57,000	1,019,000	$ 18
QUINCY	91,500	2,711,000	$ 30
Brockton	96,000	6,363,000	$ 66
Fall River	100,000	11,614,000	$ 116
Boston	638,000	62,233,000	$ 98

DOLORES NOURSE believes that when WELLESLEY, one of the richest towns in Massachusetts with less than half the population of WEYMOUTH gets more than WEYMOUTH it's time to fight back.

DOLORES NOURSE believes that when FALL RIVER gets over 4 times as much as QUINCY and BROCKTON gets 2 1/2 times as much as QUINCY it's time to fight back.

DOLORES NOURSE believes there is no justification or excuse for this extreme formula.

DOLORES NOURSE will fight and work to change this legislature-mandated formula to get back QUINCY and WEYMOUTH'S fair share.

TOURING CITY HALL -- City Councillor Paul D. Harold explains points of interest to a group of foreign students touring the city under a program sponsored by the South Shore Chamber of Commerce. Foreign Students Get A Look At Quincy

A group of foreign students interested in law and politics got a day-long look at Quincy recently with the help of City Councillor Paul D. Harold.

The students, all studying English at Harvard University for the summer, came to Quincy as part of a program sponsored by the South Shore Chamber of Commerce.

The Chamber asked community leaders to show the students around, and Harold volunteered to spend the day showing them Quincy's high points, and explaining historic aspects of the City of Presidents.

Besides a look at City Hall, the Quincy police station, the downtown shopping district, and the planned Red Line extension, the students learned about the Adams presidencies and saw the city's historic sites.

"They seemed most interested in different types of housing around the city, and the problems of urban planning," Harold said, after showing them the downtown Quincy area and, South Shore Plaza, as well as single and multiple-family housing areas.

If You Want A Fulltime Mayor, Elect A Fulltime State Senator

PAUL D. HAROLD

"So now that we have a full-time mayor, it's up to us to keep it that way.

Quincy Sun Editorial, July 6, 1972

The Quincy Sun said that in an editorial July 6, 1972, when then-Mayor Walter Hannon announced he would give up his seat in the Massachusetts legislature in order to serve fulltime as Quincy's mayor.

After him, Joseph LaRaia took a leave of absence from his job so he could also serve fulltime.

Since Quincy had its last part-time mayor in 1971, the city budget has doubled. Since then, the face of our city has changed dramatically, with complex growing pains, expanding population, and competing demands for city services.

Our last three mayoral office holders have been fulltime. Now, Arthur Tobin wants to be parttime, so that he can turn a fulltime Mayor's job and a fulltime Senator's job into two parttime jobs.

Quincy has had a fulltime mayor since 1972. As the Quincy Sun said, it's up to us to keep it that way.

N.Y. Splits With 2 Quincy Teams

Several Quincy organizations and families were hosts to the ACTION baseball team of 13-15 year old boys from New York City, managed by Sam Magual and Julio Huerta, last weekend.

Arrangements for the trip were made by Miss Ann Yeomans, director of the New York team's recreation program, and Mrs. Clara Yeomans, of Quincy, executive secretary of the Quincy Conservation Commission.

Upon arrival last Friday evening, the boys met host families at a supper provided by the prayer groups of Sacred Heart Church, North Quincy, and Star of the Sea Church of Squantum at the home of Mrs. Alice Solari.

Saturday morning at O'Rourke Field, Quincy's Golden Print team nipped New York, 3-2, in extra innings. The visitors then attended the Red Sox-California Angels game at Fenway Park and later enjoyed a trip to Paragon Park.

Sunday morning the New York visitors walloped Quincy's Local 1139 team, 13-6, in a nine-inning game. The New Yorkers and their host families enjoyed a pool party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Vallier and concluded the weekend at a cookout at Faxon Park hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Richard Koch and sponsored by the Quincy City Club.

Families who accomodated the New York boys and their families in their homes were Mr. and Mrs. William Delahunt, Mr. and Mrs. Peter O'Connell, Mrs. Vicki Carolan, Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Sullivan, Mrs. Alice Solari, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Blakeley, Mr. and Mrs Peter Dindy, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Yeomans.

Swim-a-thon Raises $6,512 In Pledges For Jerry's Kids

YOUNGSTERS SIGN IN with Lucille Rusconi of the Quincy Recreation Department for the first Quincy Swim-a-thon For Muscular Dystrophy held at the Lincoln Hancock Community School Pool. The event was co-sponsored by the Quincy-South Shore Jerry Lewis Telethon Committee and the Lincoln Hancock Community School Council with the cooperation of the Quincy Recreation Department. Over 100 swimmers raised over $6,000 in pledges.

VICTORY CELEBRATION CAME early as pledges in swim-a-thon reached the $2,122 mark. By the end of the swim-a-thon the pledges had swelled to $6,512 most of which, it is hoped, will be collected. Posting the early figure at the blackboard is Lucille Rusconi. At right are Terri McElaney and Kathy Mann, Miss Quincy Bay of 1977 and 1978 respectively, who served as co-chairmen of the event.

A FEW WORDS of encouragement are offered Debbie Stohlberg, 9, by her Nickerson Beach swimming instructor, Joanne Kerwin. Debbie didn't really need the encouragement though, as she swam 40 25-yard laps. If she collects all her sponsor pledges, it will mean $620 more with which to fight the battle against muscular dystrophy.

THREE MISS QUINCY Bay queens, Kathy Mann [1978], Jeanne Rathgeb [1976] and Terri McElaney [1977] make a pretty picture at Quincy Swim-a-thon For Muscular Dystrophy. Kathy and Terri were co-chairmen and Jeanne served as a lifeguard. Youngsters in pool are Kelly McCall, 8, Kathy O'Brien, 9, Arthur Brown, 10, and Jill Dooley, 10.

TWO OF THE TOP swimmers, Sheryl Brunstrum, 9, and Bobby Grant, 7, congratulate one another after swimming 22 and 32 laps respectively. They are flanked by Sheryl's aunt, Anne Marie Caruso of Bourne and Bobby's mother, Marion, as lifeguard Eileen Greenan smiles down. Bobby's per lap pledges amounted to $228 and Sheryl's to $194.

CHECKING REGISTRATIONS ARE School Committeewoman Joan Picard, Mary Jo Riley, community school coordinator; Ron Iacobucci, president of the Lincoln Hancock School Community Council, City Recreation Director Charles Alongi and Assistant Director Barry Welch.

READY TO HIT the pool for Jerry's Kids are, from left, Kathleen George, 13, Bob Grant Jr., 7, Jana Johnson, 10, Cheryl McCall, 13, Sharyn DeAngelis, 12 and Kelly McCall, 8.

Wilkinson Loss Hurts Morrisette

East Springfield Wins Northeast Regional Legion Crown

There were plenty of hits and runs during last week's American Legion Northeast Regional baseball tournament hosted by Morrisette Post at Adams Field as East Springfield, the Massachusetts state champion, walloped Waterbury, Conn., 13-3, in the 15th and deciding game Sunday night to qualify for the Legion World Series in Yakima, Wash., which began yesterday (Wednesday).

Morrisette, the host team, which finished second in Zone 6 this season, made an excellent showing but bowed out when it dropped two in a row after winning its first game.

Morrisette Coach Ray Cattaneo received a tough break when his number two pitcher, John Wilkinson, was lost to the team as he had to report to the Mass. Maritime Academy.

Morrisette outlasted Cranston, R.I., 10-8, in its first game in the double elimination event. Gary Earle went the route for the Quincy team, which in 1975 won the Northeast Regionals in Quincy and played in the World Series. He weakened in the last two innings but displayed courage as he held on to win. Morrisette hadn't played more than seven innings during the season and the tournament games went nine innings.

Don Perdios had three hits for Morrisette, Mike McCormack and Dave King had two apiece and Fran Donovan, Mark Giordani, Bill Deitsch and Earle one each.

Ron Donovan pitched a four-hitter in Morrisette's second game but dropped a 4-0 decision to Waterbury. All four runs were unearned.

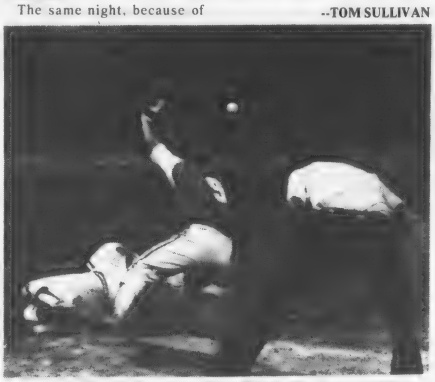
The same night, because of rain the day before, Morrisette faced Rome, N.Y., and, after leading, 4-1, after six innings, lost, 7-5. Cattaneo was forced to start young Paul O'Toole, who had pitched only a few innings during the season, and he was superb for six innings.

He weakened in the seventh and Donovan took over and was the victim of a couple of handle hits. Earle gave up the winning runs in the ninth.

King had two hits and Deitsch, Steve Cook, McCormack, Perdios and Pete Niosi one each.

"O'Toole did a great job and he will be one of our key pitchers next year," Cattaneo said. "The whole team performed well in the tournament and, with a little luck, we might have gone farther. It was rough losing Wilkinson and Billy Deitsch came up with a sore arm which limited his throwing. All in all, I was pleased with the team's performance. We all wish East Springfield, our state champion, the best of luck in the World Series."

The tournament went the full 15 games to decide the title. Other scores: Rutland, Vt., 3, Old Town, Me., 2; Waterbury 2, Manchester, N.H., 1; Springfield 17, Rome, N.Y., 2; Rome 2, Old Town 1; Manchester 16, Cranston, R.I., 5; Manchester 15, Rutland 8; E. Springfield 15, Waterbury 10; Waterbury 4, Rome 2; Manchester 5, E. Springfield 4; Waterbury 7, Manchester 4.



Legion officials expressed their thanks to the Morrisette group for the excellent tournament and for the fine condition of Adams Field.

Paul Gay To Head Discussion On New Domestic Violence Law

Norfolk County Register of Probate Paul C. Gay, will host representatives of various county and local agencies to discuss the implementation of a new state law regarding domestic violence.

The meeting is scheduled for Aug. 30, at Norfolk Probate Court, Dedham. Attending will be:

John P. Concannon, clerk, Norfolk Superior Court; District Atty. William F. Delahunt; John M. Devine Jr., clerk, Dedham District Court; Edward R. Fahey, clerk, Brookline District Court; Quincy Police Chief Francis X. Finn; Bernard S. Fleming, Acting Chief, Brookline police; Dedham Police Chief William C. Kardas and Dennis F. Ryan, clerk, Quincy District Court.

The new law, which only recently became effective, provides a simple procedure by which an abused individual may obtain relief at either a district, probate, or superior court, and extends the relief to members of a household and to blood relatives.

The most unique feature of the law, said Gay, is it's provisions to strengthen the authority of local police in responding to situations involving domestic violence by providing criminal penalties which could impose fines up to $5,000 and jail sentences up to 2 1/2 years in the House of Correction.

Sheets Calls For Balanced Federal Budget

Rep. James A. Sheets [D-Quincy] has called for a balanced federal budget "very soon" and development of new energy sources "in order to avoid serious problems in the 1980's."

Sheets, who is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Congress from the 12th District, spoke to a gathering at the home of Helen Grazioso of 140 Warren Ave., Wollaston.

He called inflation "the most serious problem facing the nation."

"Its principal causes," he said, "are excessive expenditures by all levels of government and heavy reliance on foreign petroleum and other imported products."

Sheets also noted that "we must create a pro-business climate in our nation, especially in the northeast, because the key to lasting employment is the private sector of our economy."

Nourse Proposes Signs On FR Bridge Openings

Dolores E. Nourse, Democratic candidate for state representative in the new Quincy-Weymouth district, has recommended the placing of permanent signs on the northerly and southerly sides of the center span of Fore River Bridge to inform commuters of the next scheduled approximate bridge opening.

In a letter to State DPW Commissioner John J. Carroll, Mrs. Nourse said such signs would alert people using the bridge so they could schedule alternate times or routes to avoid the traffic jams created by an opening. The signs would augment any notice in the press or radio.

MOMENT OF TRUTH

The situation is this. Husband is transferred to a new job a great distance away. The family decided to sell their home. If it is not sold prior to the husband's departure, should the wife and children remain behind or accompany him to the new location and try to sell an empty house?

Speaking as a REALTOR - not a marriage counselor - I must advise that the choice will be a matter of finance versus emotions. Why?

Experience shows that an empty house is tougher to sell and brings less money. A house devoid of furniture loses its charm and appearance of livability. Scars and blemishes show up. Empty rooms look smaller without furniture.

On the average, an empty house will bring about 5 to 6 percent less. In some cases, discounts of up to 10 percent are not unusual. Also, selling time is longer for an empty house despite the paradox that the buyer can move in almost immediately.

Whether buying or selling, turn to Realty World - President Real Estate for all your real estate needs.

City Tax Rate DOWN 60 Cents

By TOM HENSHAW

Mayor Tobin announces a $196.60 tax rate for 1978-79 – a decrease of 60 cents over the previous year.

It was Quincy's first tax cut since 1973-74 when the rate was trimmed $1.10 over an 18-month budget and only the fourth time the tax rate has gone down in the past 35 years.

The 1978-79 decrease was attributed largely to a $2.5 million increase in state aid and a $7 million bond issue to cover a 1977-78 budget deficit.

"This isn't a one shot deal," said Tobin. "We are setting our financial plans in movement so we can talk to developers and broaden the tax base and bring in new revenue.

"We feel that we are in reasonably good shape going into next year. In fact, we're even looking forward to next year.

The bond issue, he said, "spread the cost of the financial mess we inherited over a five-year period rather than hit the taxpayers all in one year. We could have been talking $30 on the tax rate.

"We feel that because of the economy and because of stabilizing things, we'll be able to absorb the bond issue with a lot less impact than if we didn't do it."

Tobin said there are "absolutely no manipulations in the estimated receipts and assessments" that are used to offset expenditures in setting the tax rate.

"The estimated receipts are the most conservative and realistic used in this city in years," he said.

"We even put additional money in the overlay accounts to cover statutory exemptions and we expect fewer people filing for hardship abatements because we have held the line."

Tobin indicated that there is a possibility that he might have to file a supplementary budget to cover unforeseen expenses.

"We have several large law suits pending against the city," he said. "I do not have a crystal ball to tell me how the court will rule."

Also, he said, some contracts with city employees have been reopened for wage negotiations that have been going on since the beginning of the year.

"I have given strict orders," he said, "to the city auditor and department heads that they are to live within their allocated personal services and expense accounts.

"I've already been requested twice for a supplementary department request and I've said 'No', both times. I never realized I could say 'No,' so many times as I have since I've been mayor."

Tobin, who is in the midst of a re-election campaign for state senator, said his "dual capacity" as a state and city official was helpful in keeping the tax rate down.

"It required a special legislative package for which I cut through the red tape to extend the time of bonding from two to five years," he said.

"I dealt closely with the

Creedon Stresses Basics

Quincy Schools Accent 'Design For Learning'

By PETER BARNICLE

A learner-responsive school system developed to meet the learning style of each individual student is the key to the quality of Quincy schools, School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon, told more than 1,000 administrators and teachers at a pre-school opening meeting Tuesday.

Speaking at the Quincy Vocational Technical School, the superintendent, who is in his ninth year with the schools, said that over the past decade the city's public schools have been in the forefront in developing innovative programs.

He cited one of the critical current issues as the demand that schools get "back to the basics".

"Teaching of the basics is a bread and butter issue, if educators cannot do a good job there, then there is no logical reason why the community should assume that its public educator's can go beyond them," he said.

"Real learning begins when the basics have been mastered. This school system is committed to doing a good job in teaching the basics. They come first," he said.

He reminded the teachers that all too quickly a concern for the basics becomes synonymous with quality education.

In Quincy, he said, quality education is most adequately defined in the eleven behavioral projections cited in the school system's "Design for Learning".

He noted the spiraling cost of education and pointed out that approximately 50 percent of the cost of local government is used to maintain the school system.

"Every dollar spent in the pursuit of quality education must be justified and if it cannot be then I, as superintendent of schools, should not recommend its authorization and the school committee should not vote for it," Creedon declared.

"We must be mindful of the fact that 85 percent of our total school budget is expended for the salaries of the close to 2,000 people in the employ of this school system.

"Public education is a labor intense industry. The community pays for our professional skills and we must guarantee through performance that the cost is justified. We must demonstrate excellence in our teaching arts," the superintendent said.

Creedon called attention to the declining enrollment in schools across the nation and

CAAN To Meet With Massport Representative Sept. 11

The Committee Against Airplane Noise [CAAN] will have another go-round with Massport Monday, Sept. 11, at 7:30 p.m. in the Quincy High School Method Center.

An as yet unidentified representative of Massport will be on hand for the meeting, which has been described as crucial since Massport's self-imposed one month deadline for its experiment with the corkscrew turn is up Sept. 9.

CAAN has warned that if a solution to the airport noise problem is not found by Sept. 11, the group is prepared to demand the resignation of Massport Executive Director David Davis.

CAAN has also asked the Mayor and the City Council to appropriate money for the hire of an expert attorney to handle any legal action that may be taken against Massport.

Hearing Thursday On Proposed Downtown Parking Garage

The Quincy Planning Department will hold the second in a series of public hearings on a proposed application for a federal distressed cities grant tonight [Thursday] at 7:30 p.m. in City Hall.

The Urban Development Action Grant is a new federal program aimed at providing assistance to distressed cities to revitalize local economies and reclaim deteriorated neighborhoods.

The purpose of the second public hearing is to discuss the merits of Quincy's proposal that a 680-space parking garage be built over the depressed MBTA tracks in Quincy Center.

The garage would serve tenants and visitors for a proposed office and commercial complex to be constructed at the Della Chiesa parking lot, as well as the general public.

Sheets To Meet With Residents On Filling Badger's Quarry

City Councillor James A. Sheets will hold a public meeting with residents of Ward 4 Monday, Sept. 11, at 8 p.m. in the Council Chambers at City Hall to discuss the filling of Badger's Quarry.

The quarry in West Quincy is owned by the city and has been the focus of recent attention due to increasing vandalism and disturbances by those who use it for swimming.

"I have been working with the residents for some three years to have Badger's Quarry filled and it has been an extremely frustrating problem," said Sheets.

"I am hopeful that on Sept. 11 the residents will be able to agree on the best method of fill and that we can proceed quickly with the filling."

Licensing Board Approves Parrot Expansion, Blazing Salads Move

Blazing Salads Restaurant, 1388 Hancock St., Quincy Sq., has been granted permission to move its operation to 1360 Hancock St., with the proviso that certified plans for alterations be submitted to the Quincy Licensing Board for approval.

At the same meeting the board granted Maxwell's Parrot, 6-8 Maple St., permission to expand its restaurant into the premises being vacated by Blazing Salads. The license was granted subject to several restrictions calling on the owners to make architectural changes.

Charles F. Grein, manager of the restaurant was also given a 2 a.m. license on a 3-2 vote of the board. Fire Chief Edward Barry and Building Inspector Allan F. MacDonald opposed issuance of the extended time. Prior to the vote Atty. Neil Kerstein told the board that four churches in the area had been informed of the request and none voiced objection.

Virginia Thomas, representing Blazing Salads, told the board she had been informed on July 28, that she would have to vacate the premises at Hancock and Maples Sts., by Sept. 1.

She told the board she has leased the property at 1360 Hancock St., subject to obtaining a common victualer's license.

She said that the board's joint inspection team had seen the premises and that she is willing to make the changes they recommended as a requirement for issuance of the license.

Party Switching

Voter Registration Down But Slightly

Voter registration is down in Quincy for the Sept. 19 primary with so-called Independent voters benefiting in numbers at the expense of both Democrats and Republicans.

An unusually large number of party switches were reported by Assistant City Clerk Thomas Burke, possibly occasioned by the torrid senatorial fight between Republicans Edward W. Brooke and Avi Nelson.

Burke reported the total registered vote in Quincy at 48,504, a dozen less than the number registered for the 1976 primary when the figure was 48,516.

The registrations by party:

Democrats, 28,722, down 71.

Republicans, 6,805, down 825.

American, 80, up 36.

Independent, 12,907, up 1,858.

Party switches include:

Democrat to Independent, 393.

Democrat to Republican, 53.

Republican to Independent, 76.

Republican to Democrat, 85.

Independent to Democrat, 3.

Independent to Republican, 6.

$1.3 Million In Construction During July

A total of 124 permits were issued by the Quincy Building Department during July for work costing an estimated $1,369,590, according to Building Inspector Allan F. MacDonald.

This compares with 105 permits for an estimated $448,648 in work issued during the same period a year ago.

The department issued three permits for mercantile buildings to cost an estimated $590,000. Ninety-one permits were issued for alterations of residential properties at an estimated cost of $215,329 and 10 permits for other alterations to cost an estimated $513,287.

During the month four permits were approved for removals at an estimated cost of $3,600; three permits for signs costing $1,475 and 13 permits for miscellaneous work costing an estimated $45,899.

Receipts of $3,272 were taken in by the department during July and receipts for public safety inspections totaled $724.

Golden Bowl 2 A.M. License Request Continued

The Quincy Licensing Board has continued until Sept. 26 a hearing on the request of the Golden Bowl Restaurant, 83-89 Franklin St., Quincy, for 2 a.m. closing permission.

The restaurant is now operating under a temporary 2 a.m. license issued last month to permit Atty. George Burke, representing the restaurant, to complete negotiations on four parcels of property adjoining the restaurant parking lot.

Burke told the board that Fred Padula, owner of three parcels of the property involved has not completed the sale. The board was also informed that Louis Padula, a brother and owner of the fourth dwelling, is reluctant to sell.

The attorney assured the board that if given more time the parties could reach an agreement. The land is sought to enlarge the parking facilities. It would also eliminate any dwellings in the immediate area of the restaurant. The property owners have complained of noise from late departing patrons of the Golden Bowl.

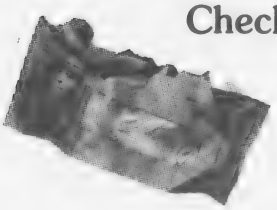
Jewels & Gems



by Stan Manin

Often, jewelry and social or political interests go hand in hand. For instance, in the 1920's, when King Tutankhamun's Tomb and its treasures were discovered, jewelry took on an Egyptian look. More recently, the space age interests of the early sixties were reflected in the gaudy, large, colorful, plastic jewelry of the day. Then came psychedelia and colorful beads, imaginative earrings, rings and bracelets became popular. Then came the interest in ethnicity, especially black ethnicity, and Moroccan jewelry, or other African looks, became popular.
We're interested in you, and in seeing that you find the right piece of jewelry for your needs. Come to us at GRONO & CHRISTIE, INC., 536 Adams St., East Milton, 696-1490 the next time you are looking for jewelry. We have a large inventory of gold chains to go along with your new back-to-school wardrobe. Ask us about our back-to-school specials. We also have a fine antique and estate jewelry department, and provide appraisals for attorneys, banks and private individuals.

A Lot Of Real Nice People

We've said it before. We'll say it again.

There are still a lot of nice people in this old world. We saw them -- a couple thousand of them at least -- coming through the door at The Quincy Sun over the Labor Day weekend to fill the fishbowl with $7,474.15 [official tally] for Jerry's Kids. During most of Monday, The Sun lobby looked like an MBTA station at rush hour.

And we heard them--another 4,500 or so who telephoned to pledge $38,731 to help continue the battle against cruel muscular dystrophy.

And the near 200 volunteers who gave up a good hunk of their holiday weekend to take the calls on a battery of telephones and to process the pledges and fishbowl donations.

The pledges and fish bowl added up to $46,205 -- in just one weekend. Put that with $28,832 raised in a number of special pre-telethon events and it totals $75,037 from the Quincy-South Shore area. That's $11,399 more than last year. [Our two-year total: $178,675. And we still have a possible $4,000 more coming.]

It was a community team effort. No generation communication gap. Children and adults all working together with a common goal: DEFEAT MUSCULAR DYSTROPHY.

We'll never be able to mention all the names. They would fill a whole newspaper. But we know who they are and what they did. What they did was magnificent.

People like:

Dick Koch, Ken Runge, Peter and Norma Gacicia, Agnes Costello, Norm Forde, the old faithfuls who give their all...Myra Kelly of Hollis Ave., North Quincy who couldn't get here over the weekend but came in Monday with a $1,000 check! George Parker, owner of the Yellow Cab Co. who walked in with two checks--his personal for $100 and his company for $300.

There were several $200 pledges like the ones from Jeanne White of Wollaston... and Kathleen McLarnon of North Weymouth... A number of $100's, $50's, $25's--all the way down. Every penny counted and it put us well over our goal of $35,000. Former Mayor Thomas Burgin called in a $50 pledge and said, please no publicity. Sorry Tom...Richard Aitken of Flynt St., North Quincy, a 100 percent disabled veteran, pledged two per cent of his monthly check which amounts to $17 and challenged every disabled veteran to match it. "I know why I'm disabled," he said. "We've got to find out why these children are and do something about it." ... And who can forget 17-year-old Richard O'Brien of Germantown, who made four trips to the office to bring in $217 collected in a cannister...Wallace Johnson of Wollaston who pledged $100 in gratitude for the wheel chair the MDA provided him with last year...Mrs. Richard Peterson of South Weymouth who pledged $10 and asked us to try to get Jerry Lewis to stop smoking. "He smokes too much!"...The customers at The Paddock Cafe who chipped in $60...Quincy Hospital Volunteers Laura Papile, 16, Karen Erikson, 15, Maria Riccio, 15, and Michelle Kerr, 15, who collected $77 in cannisters...Chris, 6, and Robby Beatrice, 5, of South Quincy who cleaned their yard to earn $7 for the fishbowl...Vern and Elsie Whitman, celebrating their 25th wedding anniversary, put $25 into the fishbowl...Teresa Dunn of Quincy, who has one youngster with cerebral palsy donated $1 and challenged other Moms to match it...Patrick Lynch, 13, of Marshfield donated $2 and challenged all 13-year olds to meet it...Tom Tartarella of Wells Grille, Wollaston matched the $105 his patrons donated for a total $210...Roberto, 7, and Janet DiTullio, 5, Vincent, 8, Chris, 5, and John Digiacomo, 3, and Ann, 11 and Christine Carroll, 6, staged a backyard show to raise $5...Maria Carlucci, 14, and Jeannine Ricks, 7, collected $158 along Southern Artery...Margaret Keaney, 86 years young brought in a coffee can with $9 in pennies...George Tobin, father of Mayor Arthur Tobin, came in with loads of pennies he had saved...Marci McNicol, 12, and Jim Nicholson, 10, of North Weymouth staged a show that raised $170...Mrs. Judith Greenberg of Hull, who has two healthy children, pledged $10 and challenged parents of other healthy children to match it...State Treasurer Robert Crane, manned a phone and then entertained the crowd outside with a few songs...The Ricca-Tones--Paul and Joe Ricca, Joe Contrino and Wally Farrell--who played in front of The Sun most of Labor Day afternoon... "One of the best groups I ever sang with," said Crane...Joanne Runge and Debbie McGovern of Wollaston dressed up as Mickey Mouse and Donald Duck to raise $165 in front of the office...George White of The Patriot Ledger, let us use the costumes...Police Sgt. Mike Barry, Bob Colman of Colman's, the Koch Club, Simon Fireman, all among the many $100 donors...Bill Calapa of Joseph's Catering, Ken Runge and Steve Richmond of Pizza Chef of Braintree and Quincy, Daisy and Al Zero of Gina's Sub Shop brought in enough food to keep an Army moving. We must have been the best fed pledge center in the country...Arthur and Shirley Tobin for spending most of their 23rd wedding anniversary working at the center...

The Quincy-Recreation Board for the tables and chairs and the "tote" board, too....Tom McDonald, Joseph and Vera Sullivan and Rita Kelleher, all of the Bryan VFW Post and John MacPherson, Ross Clarke and Leo Nunnari of the Quincy Elks, keeping the outgoing pledge envelopes moving...Fire Chief Ed Barry, Mary Collins, Clifford Marshall, Paul Harold, Jim Sheets, Mike Morrissey, Pat Toland, Joan Picard, Alicia Coletti, Charlie Alongi, Rocky Roccuzzo, Frank McCauley, Joan and John Poreca and the great gang from the Quincy Sons of Italy: Rocco Buonvicino, Mario Salvatore, Eddie Pellegrini, Jack Brown, Sabastian Papagno, Jim Mastriano and all of whom pitched in to give us a real big helping hand...And Beverly Reinhardt, Marilyn Nestor and the Koch Family... Kathy Mann, Terri McElaney, etc., etc.

And how about our good friends Win Bettinson and Roy Lind and the whole gang at WJDA who covered the pledge center at The Sun live all day Labor Day giving progress reports and interviewing the volunteers working here. This sure helped keep the pledges and the fishbowl donations coming all day.

To all of them--and to all of YOU--a sincere thank you.

Together, team, we did it!

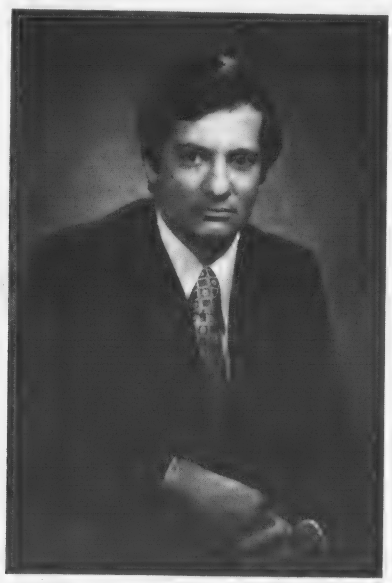
BOB CERASOLI'S been working: just look around and see.



FULL TIME REPRESENTATIVE

BOB CERASOLI made a commitment to his constituents that once elected he would serve them on a FULL TIME BASIS. He has kept that commitment. Bob works over 80 hours a week drafting, filing and lobbying for legislation as well as working to solve many constituent problems that are brought to his office daily.

ROLL CALL ATTENDANCE 99.29%

BOB CERASOLI entered the legislature in January of 1975. Since that time there have been 2,107 roll calls on issues before the House of Representatives. Bob Cerasoli has voted on over 2,092 of those roll calls for a 99.29% roll call attendance record.

LANDMARK ETHICS LEGISLATION

BOB CERASOLI co-authored and co-sponsored with Common Cause of Massachusetts one of the strongest statewide ethics laws ever enacted in the United States.

The law sets up an independent state ethics commission to take over enforcement of the state's conflict of interest law. It also empowers the commission to require public financial disclosure statements from all elected and appointed state and county officials. All disclosure statements must show earned and unearned income, investments, securities, property, gifts and debts. Officials must disclose both sources of income and categories of amount; spouses must disclose sources also.

At a time when people have become frustrated with the political system and its leaders, it becomes imperative that we elect a State Representative who will forcefully pursue reform that will ensure integrity and accountability throughout our state government. BOB CERASOLI is that State Representative.

QUOTE PATRIOT LEDGER, 6/2/78

The legislation is largely a result of a two-year effort by Cerasoli and Common Cause, with Cerasoli suggesting they use the initiative petition process to prod the legislature into adopting a statewide ethics code. The Quincy Point Democrat was one of the first ten signers on the petition that would have put the question on the ballot had the legislature not acted as it did this week.

The new law will not be as strict as Common Cause originally sought, but it is stronger than it would have been had Cerasoli not been on the House-Senate Conference Committee that negotiated the compromise bill, one neutral observer said.

Cerasoli was the hard-liner on the conference committee, arguing public officials be required to disclose as much as possible. By contrast, the Senate committee members were consistently seeking to limit the amount of disclosure to specific areas of potential conflict of interest of public concern, the observer continued.

THE NEWS MEDIA RECOGNIZES BOB CERASOLI

Bob has appeared as a guest on the following TV and Radio Shows fighting and speaking for Stronger Ethics Laws and more open government.

Pursue your own interests.

Put $500 aside for the new camera you want. You could earn enough money for an accessory bag.

Everyone needs a hobby, they say. If your interest is an expensive camera, it doesn't take too many paydays to save up for one. By putting aside about $40 a month for a year, you can pay cash (which means you actually pay less for more camera). And with the added interest, you may even have enough extra to buy yourself an accessory bag. Which makes pursuing your own interests very worthwhile.

Money aside, a savings account still makes sense.

The Good Will Performers Getting Ready For Another Big Season

By PETER BARNICLE

The Good Will Performers whose cabaret-style revues have entertained more than 10,000 senior citizens in Quincy over the past 18 months, are now in rehearsal for the opening of their new season in September.

Edward Bennett of Taber St., South Quincy, producer-director of the group, is holding rehearsals every Wednesday evening at the Drop-In Center on High School Ave. Bennett, himself a veteran song and dance man and the legitimate theater, hopes to be presenting his group at senior citizen housing projects once or twice a week throughout the year.

EDWARD BENNETT

"We have 87 in the company now and more than 100 on a waiting list," Bennett says. "They all receive professional training before appearing on stage.

The group includes singers, dancers, comedians and novelty acts.

"The music includes the popular songs of the '30's, '40's and '50's. The music the senior citizens remember best," Bennett said.

In organizing the troupe Bennett had the blessing of the Quincy School Department. He talked with drama coaches, music teachers and bandmasters, and through them formed the nucleus of the Good Will Performers.

The Royal Troubadors band is the basic group. Most, but not all the members, are high school students.

Mrs. Edna Solander, mother of two, is assistant to the director; and Diane Houston, a public health nurse, is pianist. John Muise, 67, plays rhythm guitar and James Sumner, 64, is a violinist.

Other members of the Royal Troubadors include:

Arthur Johnson, assistant to the director, bass guitar; Ralph Paul, coronet; Peggy Burchill, a dancer, plays saxaphone and flute; Debra Sanderson, saxaphone and flute; Polly Albrecht, clarinet; James McHugh, lead guitar; Cathy Clancy, drums and piano; David Leone, clarinet; Paul Anastos, trumpet; Linda Caldarone, violin; Patty Maddalena, singer; Amie Dollie, singer; Maureen MacKay, singer, and Kathy Given, singer.

Peggy Parker and Frances Osborne are choreographers.

Bennett has recently incorporated the Good Will Performers to enable them to seek contributions from private sources.

The producer director said that although all members of the group perform without pay there are expenses for musical arrangements, costumes and transportation which must be met.

He said that the troupe hopes to expand its shows to include hospitals and nursing homes.

For Children--And Parents

It's 'Back-To-School-Blues' Time

It's the back to school season again for thousands of young people in the Quincy area.

And with this particular time of year comes the excitement and anticipation of a whole new routine -- new teachers and new classmates, new clothes and school supplies, fresh ideas from new books and course materials -- as the hectic re-entry into the school year begins.

But the early weeks of school may also be a time of occasional stress for both students and parents. It's a temporary condition that some experts refer to as the "back-to-school blues".

The ailment is quite normal, according to one local psychotherapist, who advises parents to be on the lookout for a few anxious periods in the family through the first four to six weeks of school.

"Most people feel some amount of anxiety whenever there is change in their lives," said Archie C. Zarkadas, a clinical social worker for more than 25 years. Zarkadas is the clinical director of Family Counseling and Guidance Centers, Inc., a network of five outpatient mental health clinics in Eastern Massachusetts which operates an office at 40 Independence Ave., in Braintree.

"It's no different for school children. The first several weeks of school are full of changes which can leave them feeling a bit uncertain, a bit anxious."

Zarkadas said the most common symptoms that will appear in children experiencing back-to-school blues include a temporary loss of appetite or difficulty with sleeping, a mild upset stomach or similar body ache complaint. Occasional feelings of sadness that the child is unable to explain other than he "feels like crying" may surface.

Parents are also bound to feel the effects of the separation that occurs when their child goes off to school, even though many parents say that getting the kids back into the school year routine is a welcome relief from a long, hectic summer vacation period.

Because the family represents a system of living to which each member is accustomed, the departure of any one person from the family unit leaves the system temporarily out of balance. This change inevitably has an effect on every family member.

Zarkadas points out that feelings of anxiety associated with the beginning of school are not unique to any age group. Elementary school children experience them. Students in the secondary grade levels have them, especially when their schools are a good distance from home. The young person entering college for the first time is the prime example for back-to-school blues.

"When students decide to go away to a college or university, it marks an enormous change for them. Whether it's a school down the street or across the country, the student is forced to separate a bit more from the family, and the family from him, which causes stress for everyone."

A college student's discomfort with the process of separation often takes on the form of a mild depression commonly referred to as "home-sickness." During the first month or so, he may call home frequently, feel a bit shy about meeting new people or may have trouble concentrating on his studies. "These feelings are normal and not a cause for alarm," says Zarkadas.

It is when the symptoms continue for an unusually long period of time or become particularly severe that the student and his family should consider seeking help.

Most colleges offer counseling services on campus as a regular part of student support programs. Generally, a few sessions of supportive counseling are enough to help the student through the "homesick" period. In addition, every college dormitory is staffed by one or more advisors-in-residence who are trained to assist their residents in a variety of situations and in many cases are available on a 24-hour basis.

Zarkadas emphasized though that distress arising from a school-induced separation is temporary. He suggests that parents can be most helpful to their children by giving them extra amounts of attention during the first few weeks. This will reassure the young person of his continued importance to the entire family and help him better cope with the beginning or re-entry into the school year routine.

The South Area branch of Family Counseling and Guidance Centers in Braintree is open from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday, and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Friday. Therapeutic services are available by appointment by calling 848-7840.

Caring Is Not Enough!

Action Is More Important

DOLORES NOURSE has worked for an alternate use for the now closed Edison's Edgar Station. The May 1st closing will soon cost WEYMOUTH $$ on the tax rate and 120 permanent jobs. DOLORES was the first community leader to take positive action by proposing an emergency task force to the Selectmen to find solutions to the problem. That task force is becoming a reality thanks to her efforts and the Board of Selectmen.

DOLORES has conducted an in-depth study of the state 1979 local increased aid and found flaws in the program that reward WELLESLEY and BROCKTON at the expense of WEYMOUTH and QUINCY. This extreme formula is costing district taxpayers hundreds of thousands of dollars. Dolores will fight to get back our fair share.

DOLORES calls for a limit on state and local spending like Proposition 2½ that really puts the lid on.

DOLORES opposes state-funded abortions.

DOLORES has proposed to John Carroll, State DPW Commissioner, that permanent signs be installed on each side of the Fore River Bridge posting the next approximate bridge opening. This would save thousands of gallons of gasoline and hours of frustration to the many commuters using the bridge daily.

"My years of activity as a State House observer and watchdog for the LWV will serve me well as your representative. As a businesswoman and mother for over 25 years, I know what a balanced budget means."

"Does it really matter who the Register of Probate is anyway?"

It sure does.

Probate Court is the "family court." Adoption of children, child custody, disposition of wills, separation, divorce . . . all these go through Probate Court.

So it matters very much who the Register of Probate is. His practical experience in administering the Court can speed the legal process and shorten the anxious hours of waiting.

That's what Paul C. Gay, your present Register of Probate in Norfolk County, has done over the past six years.

He's instituted seminars for legal secretaries to make lawyer's time more efficient. He's computerized Court procedures, put Court records on microfilm for rapid research, and cut down Court paperwork.

Register Paul C. Gay is not a politician looking for a job. He's a dedicated, experienced public servant.

If you care about efficiency in public service . . . if you ever expect to be in Probate Court . . . vote to keep Paul C. Gay as Register of Probate on September 19.

3rd Successful Saturday

Craft Market Drawing Good Crowds

The Quincy Craft Market on Cottage Ave., at Hancock St., in downtown Quincy, enjoyed its third successful Saturday with crowds far outnumbering those of previous weeks.

Most dealers are reported enthusiastic over the crowds and sales and have indicated they will participate in the markets to be held Sept. 9, 16, 23 and 30.

"This is a fantastic innovation and has been extremely well received," according to Richard Barker, president of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association.

The QCBPA is working in conjunction with the South Shore Chamber of Commerce and the Quincy Planning Department in promoting the Craft Market to attract more shoppers to the area.

"This is the first of a series of promotional programs the QCBPA is planning," Barker said. His group is working with Jane Morovich of the Chamber of Commerce, and Robert Luongo of the Planning Department, to insure a strong community involvement in the projects, he said.

The sponsors are hoping more farmers will bring their produce to the market.

Those interested in participating may call Mrs. Diane Nee at the QCBPA office, 471-3232, or Robert Luongo at the Planning Department, 773-1380, Ext. 361, Monday through Friday, 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. On evenings and weekends calls will be taken by Stephanie Faulkner, 837-3732.

Flavell Sisters Art Exhibit At Main Library

Constance Flavell Pratt and her sister, Jane Flavell Collins will exhibit their work in the Main Hall Gallery of the Thomas Crane Public Library beginning Friday, Sept. 8, and continuing through the month.

Mrs. Pratt, who lives in Norwell, does pastel portraits. She was among the 90 finalists in the First National Art Competition of the American Artist Magazine. Her work was selected from 5,000 entries. Mrs. Pratt is a graduate of Massachusetts College of Art, and also studied privately with Rutledge Bate. She specializes in pastel portraits and has exhibited throughout the Northeast both in one woman shows and in group exhibits.

The work of Jane Flavell Collins of Duxbury completes the exhibit. Her dramatic pastel drawings of courtroom scenes are often seen on WCVB-TV, Ch. 5 newscasts. Mrs. Collins says she enjoys the courtroom work tremendously.

"I can participate in the experience on many levels at the same time," she says.

Like her sister, she has specialized in pastel portraiture. A graduate of Massachusetts College of Art with a master's degree earned in Florence, Italy, Jane spent five years teaching Art in the Rockland and Hingham public schools, and taught also at Kents Hill School in Maine. She has been affiliated with the Arts and Science Center in Nashua, N.H., and is currently a member of the South Shore Art Center in Cohasset and the Duxbury Art Association. Mrs. Collins also exhibits her work every summer in Pemaquid, Maine.

pointed out that in the Quincy public schools enrollment has dropped by over 3,000 students in six years "and it will continue to decline until the mid 1980's."

"Obviously," he continued, "this means that fewer of us will be needed in order to serve the educational needs of young people who are entrusted to our care.

"As the result of loss in enrollment our teaching and administrative staff has already been reduced by approximately 50 in the past few years. Certainly we are justified in expressing every human emotion over job security but we should not follow the labor industry route of feather-bedding," he cautioned.

He called on the teachers to demonstrate that with fewer students a competent professional staff can pursue more earnestly the goals of quality education for all.

He outlined the development of the Design for Learning program through the Student Centered Learning System. He explained that the SCLS is a set of checkpoints against which any proposed learning experience can be measured.

"It is," he said, "a framework for incorporating the many diverse needs and skills of self-actualizing teachers and students."

Step by step Dr. Creedon spelled out the program that has been developed over the past nine years and the techniques employed to implement it. He pointed out the plans for developing the program for learner responsive education in the year ahead and asked all the teachers to cooperate.

Merchants Motorcade For Parking Areas

Sept. 7-13
1957
21 Years Ago
This Week

A 75-car motorcade of Wollaston, North Quincy and Norfolk Downs merchants and businessmen descended upon a City Council hearing to plead for their share of city-financed off-street parking.

"Parking is the life blood of retail business," said Frank Remick of Remick's of Quincy, who attended with William A. O'Connell of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce and George A. Yarrington of the Quincy Taxpayers Association.

No opposition was registered to the taking of land off Chapman St., Wollaston, for parking purposes but there were mild protests to similar landtaking off Vane St., Norfolk Downs.

"What does the city do for homeowners?" asked Edward F. Hayes of 19 Vane St. "Are we going to become a city of parking spaces and no dwellers?"

ONE JOB FOR DELLA CHIESA

Plan E Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa, seeking election under the new Plan A charter, promised that if elected he would serve the remaining year of his term as State Rep and not seek re-election.

But he reaffirmed his belief that his service as a state legislator for the past four years while also holding jobs as city councillor and mayor enabled him to render more efficient service to Quincy.

One of his three opponents in the Oct. 8 preliminary election, Laurence J. Curtin, said he doubted if anyone can "properly serve his city and his state simultaneously in two different major offices."

Meanwhile, Frank H. Foy, a third mayoral candidate, told a Germantown gathering that he favored a second road to Germantown to take some of the load off Palmer St., its only access to the rest of the city.

MANETS WIN OPENER

A penalty placed the ball on the three-yard line and John O'Brien bucked over in the third period to give the Quincy Manets a season-opening 6-0 victory over the Murphy Club of New Bedford.

Additional backfield strength was obtained from Mike Angelis, John O'Brien, John Farrell and Dick Pakalnis.

A cost of thousands.

Money aside, a savings account still makes sense.

Put $5,000 aside for a year of tuition. You could earn almost enough money for the second year.

Education costs thousands of dollars today. Tomorrow it will cost even more. So producing tuition money when you need it requires planning ahead. And if you'll start while your child is still young, Quincy Savings Bank can play an important role. Because, with a Certificate of Deposit, the money you put aside may be worth almost twice as much in less than 10 years. Which is a pretty dramatic example of the value of a savings plan.

MONEY TALKS
You got yourselves a good deal, Mr. and Mrs. Homeowner!
By Philip J. Lawrence, President
Colonial Federal Savings
and Loan Association of Quincy, Holbrook & Wareham
8-6 Weekdays 8-7:30 Thursdays

Do you, Mr. and Mrs. Home Owner, feel a mite guilty about that dwelling you have acquired with a fixed mortgage rate? You should, according to a study by economists of the U.S. League of Savings Associations.

You have one of the best financial arrangements available in American society, they say. "The benefits flowing in an inflationary economy would have made a J. P. Morgan blush and awakened the envy of a robber baron," they report in a recent issue of the Savings and Loan News.

They take an illustrative case, that of the hourly rated wage earner who purchased an $18,000 home at year-end 1967 with an average $13,800 30-year mortgage loan at 6.7%. Principal and interest payment: $89.04 per month.

This worker, earning an average $3.05 per hour, had to work 29 hours in 1968, three and one-half days, to meet the monthly payment. Ten years later in 1978, his hourly rate, on the national average, had risen to $5.63 per hour. He now had to put in only 15.8 hours, about two days of work, to make his monthly payment.

To show the return on a single-family home down payment, the economists take the actual case of a house purchased for $20,000 in 1968 and resold in 1978 for $42,900. The difference of $22,800 represented a compound rate of appreciation of 7.9% [considerably below the average for our area].

With a balance due on the loan of $12,654, the sale of the house for $42,900 realized cash in the amount of $30,246. The down payment of $4,600 showed, therefore, a compound rate of return of 20.7%.

With the same $20,100 home reflecting a 10% inflation rate, the return on the down payment would be 24%. With a higher priced home, acquired for $48,800 in 1968 and sold in 1978 for $126,600, it would be 27.6%.

"Perhaps only an OPEC oil baron with a Harvard degree could have swung a better deal," say the economists.

The North Quincy students, all excellent German speakers, are: Alicia Burns, 33 Buckingham Rd, Richard Davis, 46 Randlett St., and Michael Maginnis, 12 Eddie St., all of Wollaston.

Host families for the German students will be Mr. and Mrs. David Tenney, 55 Albion Rd, Wollaston; Mr. and Mrs. Ted Poutree, 140 Hollis Ave., Norfolk Downs, and Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Conroy, 272 Billings St., Atlantic.

The exchange project was suggested by Mrs. Alberta Murray, head of the English department at North Quincy. She told the School Committee the idea came to her after spending part of her sabbatical leave two years ago in Germany.

After considerable correspondence, she was able to make arrangements to have three top level Mannheim teenagers come to Quincy.

She explained there will be no cost to the city. The students will all pay their own air fares and insurance and the host families will provide food and lodging.

She also said that it was hoped that the plan could be expanded in future years through a growing awareness of the value of such exchanges.

School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon, commended Mrs. Murray and remarked that this project was one of the benefits of granting sabbaticals.

Harold Urges Expanded Seniors Home Care Services

State Senate candidate Paul D. Harold has called for expanded home care services for senior citizens who live alone.

Speaking at a coffee hour at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Conroy of 43 North Central Ave., Wollaston, Harold said many senior citizens need only minimal or occasional assistance, but are forced to go to nursing homes because they cannot get the help they need.

Harold said anyone who wants to stay in their own home, and does not really require fulltime or extended care, should be afforded the opportunity to do so by giving them the help they do need at home.

"In the nursing home industry's drive to get senior citizens into their facilities, we have failed to provide adequate home care services to allow those who want to live at home the dignity of doing so," Harold said.

He said that in his door-to-door campaign throughout the Norfolk Senatorial District, the greatest complaint by senior citizens is that they are not allowed to live as they wish in their later years.

"These people work all of their lives, and contribute to society, and yet when they reach 65, we fail to provide them with adequate retirement benefits, and even strip them of their dignity and privacy by forcing them to go into institutions when they do not need or want to go," Harold said.

Quincy Cyclist Completes Goal

3 Years Later, He Finishes 4,100 Mile Trip

By PETER BARNICLE

Vancouver, British Columbia, to Quincy is a long haul, no matter how you look at it.

On a bicycle, through the forests of the Northwest, across the Rockies and then The Plains, only the spirit of adventure could keep the wheels turning.

David D'Olimpio, 25, of 70 South Walnut St., Quincy Point, made it. It took him three years, but he made it.

Admittedly there was a long hiatus while David pursued his studies at St. John's Seminary after completing all but 300 of the 4,100 mile journey.

David, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carmine D'Olimpio, got as far as Scranton, Pa., during the summer of 1975 and decided that he had done enough for one year. Even as he loaded his bike onto a bus for Quincy he resolved that one day he would return to the Pennsylvania mountains and finish the trip on a bicycle.

A 1971 graduate of Quincy High School, he received his bachelor's degree in business administration from Lowell University in 1975. His father is a Quincy labor leader.

"There were no travel agents involved," he said. "During my senior year at Lowell I took an atlas and traced a route I thought would give me a broad view of America."

"Actually, a lot of the towns I marked were unknown to me. They sounded interesting that's all," he said.

He left Quincy on July 1, 1975 and cycled through the Bay State and up along Route 100 in Vermont to the Canadian border and then on to Montreal.

That was just a test run. From Montreal he took the train to Canada's west coast and began the real trek from Vancouver down through the state of Washington.

"I usually got up about six a.m. and after having breakfast and breaking camp I would be on the road by eight. I took a mid-morning break, stopped for lunch and took a break in the middle of the afternoon. I usually called it a day about five," he recalled.

Maintaining this schedule he was able to make 80 to 100 miles a day on his 10-speed Corraro bicycle. After passing through parts of Idaho, Montana and Wyoming he took on the challenge of the Rockies.

"Actually, they weren't too difficult," he said. "The roads were built with trucks in mind and so the grades were not that steep," according to David.

At one time he crossed Trail Ridge Pass - 12,000 feet above sea-level - in Colorado. From there he headed towards Nebraska to visit an uncle, Bud Crocker, his mother's brother, in Grand Island, Neb.

"All the way across the country I tried to avoid the big cities. I wanted to see the farms, the small towns and the people," he said.

END OF THE ROAD – David D'Olimpio of Quincy Point, pulls up out side office of The Quincy Sun after completing 4,100 mile bicycle trip from Vancouver, B.C. Dave started in July, 1975 and got as far as Scranton, Pa. This summer he finished trip from Pennsylvania in three days.

He recalls that he met a lot of people who had the same idea. They were crossing the country by bicycle. At one point he met a family of four, mother, father and two children, heading west while he was coming east.

"It was exciting from the first day. At one time I would be riding through dense forests and then I would be out on a road flanked by fields of golden wheat. The scenery changed from hour to hour and from day to day," he enthused.

The weather was excellent until he reached Pennsylvania. Then it began to rain; four days of it. The Appalachians lay ahead and summer was fading. He decided that enough was enough, at least for the time being.

He returned to Quincy and entered St. John's Seminary, but the idea of completing the trip remained in his mind. Summers he worked with a musical group on week-ends at St. Francis Parish in Medford, singing at the folk Masses.

This summer he spent considerable time at St. John Chrysostom's, West Roxbury, doing parish work in the housing projects.

In mid-August he took to the road again. He flew to Scranton and after visiting some friends he took off from nearby Carbondale for the last leg of his transcontinental trip.

He left at 9 a.m. on Sept. 1 and pedaled through the coal mining country and then into the lush New York State farm lands.

After crossing the Hudson River he moved into the Berkshires of western Massachusetts.

"They were tough. The grades were steep, but I made it and got to Great Barrington. On his second night he stayed with friends in Springfield and pedaled down Route 9 to Worcester and then on home.

He arrived outside The Quincy Sun about 6 p.m. on Sunday, just as things were getting underway for the Jerry Lewis Muscular Dystrophy Telethon.

Dave paused to offer assistance to a man struggling with a television set and asked if he could help.

The fellow lugging the TV turned out to be Henry Bosworth, editor-publisher of The Sun and key figure in the Telethon in this area.

So - after pedaling 298 miles in three days, Dave found himself toting heavy cartons for Muscular Dystrophy.

"I don't think I'll make any more long trips. But I made a lot of friends. People whom I met at campsites along the way, and some whom I met at rest-stops. I have a lot of names and I plan to keep in touch with them.

"It's a great way to see the country. I certainly recommend it," he said.

Now its back to the seminary and the life of a student.

Fitzgerald Pleased With Presidents' Attitude

By TOM SULLIVAN

If attitude counts for anything, Tom Fitzgerald seems to be off to a good start as Quincy's new head football coach.

The former North Quincy assistant, who has been coaching schoolboy sports for 27 years, made his official bow as the Presidents' coach last week when workouts began for the Sept. 16 opener at Cambridge and he couldn't be more pleased with the attitude of everyone.

"The attitude of the players and my assistants, three of whom were Hank Conroy's assistants, has been wonderful," Tom said. "I am delighted with the way the players have accepted me and the coaches have been just tremendous and are making things much easier for me. The boys all reported in great shape and are showing a real desire to play."

Fitzie was greeted by 110 candidates, including all of last year's undefeated sophomores, and he expected a few more to report when school opened.

"We have a wonderful junior crop which we will be building around," Fitzgerald said. "They had an outstanding sophomore team last year and I think all of them are back. We also have a good nucleus of veterans and I am very pleased with the progress of both the offensive and defensive units."

The former North Quincy all-scholastic who was an assistant at his alma mater the last nine years, feels his backfield is just about set but is still working hard with the line.

Dave Austin, who quarterbacked the sophomores last fall, has this position nailed down with Charlie McCall backing him up. The new coach admits he is seeking a third quarterback for depth.

"Austin did a bangup job for the sophs and I think he can do it all," Fitzgerald lauded. "And we have some fine running backs to complement him."

Among the backs being counted on are Ralph Pickering, who did some excellent running for the varsity last year; Scott Richardson, Dan Goldrick, Peter Griffin, an outstanding runner; Billy Flynn, Fran Donovan and Tom Brennan.

At this writing Fitzie hadn't decided upon any punters or place kickers, weeding out a large group of hopefuls in both categories.

Vin "Bunky" Harte, excellent last year; Paul Bandera, John Cahill, Glen Lydon and Fran Barry head a promising group of ends.

Geoff Caflisch, Howie Chadbourne and Bob Burns head up the tackles, George McCarron, who played regularly a year ago; Ronnie Cross, Jim McLaughlin and Dave Burke are the top guards, and Bob Ciardi, Russ DiPietro, Lou Matthews and Jeff Heath are the leading hopes at center.

There are some fine veterans to lead the defense and among those sure to see action defensively are Pickering, linebacker, John Nichols, Harte and Tony Akoury, tackles; Steve Cacciatore, who played on all the special teams last year and will play just about anywhere; Don Murray, out for the first time, linebacker, and ends Tony Grasselli, John Griffiths and Caflisch.

Also, Goldrick, linebacker; Steve Venturelli, linebacker and cornerback; Dean Prescott and John Kavanaugh, safeties; Jeff Giordani and Charles Darcy, backs, and McCall, cornerback.

Akoury, out for the first time, and Venturelli, were standouts on Quincy's wrestling team, which had the school's best record a year ago.

There are about 40 candidates for the sophomore team.

"I can't ask any more from anyone, players or coaches," Fitzgerald said. "I'm using a different offense than they are used to but am using the same numbering system to make things easier. On defense I'm using both five-man and four-man lines to give us more movement and the boys are catching on fast. We will have a medium-sized team with no particularly big player. I'm more intcrested in speed than size and I feel we will have that. If we can get by the first couple of games, gain experience and escape injury, I will be optimistic about the coming season."

Fitzgerald, who is overseeing the entire operation, will handle the offensive backfield. Peter Cella, last year's soph coach, will handle the offensive line. Bill Maver will be the defensive coordinator and will handle the linemen and linebackers, and Joe Goguen will handle the defensive backs. Mark Conroy will be in charge of the sophs as well as working with the varsity. Fitzgerald will let each of the coaches take turns with the junior varsity.

S.S. Hockey League Holding Tryouts

The South Shore Hockey League, expanding every season, is holding tryouts this week for its sixth year, which will begin early this month.

This year the league will use the two rinks at the Pilgrim Arena in Hingham and may find the need to utilize a third rink due to expansion.

"Our purpose, as an athletic organization, is to fill a void in hockey where there is much need -- junior hockey," said Scott McCleary, public relations director of the league. "Many potential players seem to slow down and quit after midgets, high school and even college.

"A great many of these players bursting with talent, let it go to the wayside without giving it a chance to develop through a set program. A valuable career loses the chance to develop. This is the void the South Shore Hockey League has been filling for six years, from 17 years of age and up.

"We advise high school players not to join and college players to use us as a supplement to their college program. The basic program is three years, although there are no contracts and a player is not obligated to a three-year program."

McCleary explained that teams get better as the players develop and coaches get better with experience. The league has three classifications, Junior C for the developing player, Junior B for the advanced player and Junior A for the excellent talent which may some day join the pros. The Junior A games present real class hockey.

Players are not required to leave after three years and some have been with the league since 1972, developing with the program and are now captains, managers or coaches.

"The league hopes to get involved in interstate and international competition this year and will be incorporated for that purpose," McCleary said. More than 16 teams involving more than 400 players will be entered this year."

Last year the Quincy Flyers made the playoff finals for the first time but lost to the dominating Ashmont-Dorchester club in the Greater Boston Division. The coveted South Shore Hockey Cup is again up for grabs.

Further information can be had by writing to the South Shore Hockey League, 287 Washington St., Quincy, or by calling league headquarters at 471-0865.

INSIGHT TO INSOMNIA

Modern Americans seem to be the worst sleepers on earth [insomnia claims every other adult].

Doctors say a chief cause of insomnia is the fear of insomnia. People worry about the sleep they're losing, which keeps them wakeful. Next time you board this treadmill, consider that you get 80% as much rest by relaxing completely with your eyes closed as you'd get sound asleep. Other experienced-tested sleep suggestions are as follows:

Don't dwell on petty problems. If you can't sleep because of small worries, banish them from your mind until morning. Play it cool. Fresh currents of cool air have been shown to increase the depth of sleep. Most people sleep best at bedroom temperature of 54-57 degrees. Try the tonic of a bath. Soak for 20-25 minutes and you may feel your tensions draining away.

If you still can't sleep, just lie still, and get 80% of a good nights sleep anyway.

Offense Experienced But--

Raiders Looking To Beef Defense

If it is true that the best offense is a good defense, the North Quincy football coaches face a big job as they prepare for the season's opener Sept. 16 against Milton at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

The Raiders were stripped of just about their entire defensive unit with only two returnees and Dave Burke and his aides face a much bigger task developing a strong defense than they do with the offense.

"We have a big job ahead of us, but we have a fine squad of cager players and I think they will come along," Burke said. "Ken McPhee and Jack Raymer are doing a good job with them and they are coming along well."

On offense there is a good deal more experience and Burke, who is handling the backs as well as overseeing the entire operation, and new assistant George Liset, who is in charge of the offensive line, are pleased with the progress of the offense.

"We will have good speed which should make up for a lack of size," Liset said. "Several of the boys are experienced and the offense has been showing a lot of promise."

At present Dan McIntyre, Jack O'Leary and Tim O'Neil have the inside track at end, Brian McGilvray and Paul White at tackle, Mike Spinale and John McNamara at guard and Pat McKenna, a regular starter last year, at center.

Kevin Cobban is back at quarterback with Tom Quinn and Jim Holleran at halfback and John Conley at fullback. Conley was expected to be a top runner last year, but missed most of the season with an injury.

Others who will see action in the line are Joe Mullen, Brian Downing, Jim Dodd, Ed Miller, Steve O'Donnell and Bob Gordon.

Rick Anderson is the backup quarterback and other backs are Joe Crifo, Pat Carroll, Tim McCormick, Kevin Durkin and John Cavanaugh.

Jackie Leone, a sophomore, could make the varsity and looks like a fine prospect. He is an excellent kicker.

The defensive picture is much more cloudy with only Paul McNamara and Pat Ennis back from the 1977 defensive unit. McNamara is a tackle and Ennis a halfback.

Other leading defensive hopefuls include Joe Venezia, Glen Ross, Tom Molloy, Pat Molloy, McKenna and Paul White, tackles; Rich Schaetzel, Santo Stefano, Larry Cretian, Chris Petrillo, Danny Cronin, Dave Howley and sophomore Bob McCormick, linebackers.

Among the ends are John White, Matt Hemphill, Glen Healy, John Hernon, Joe Cremin, John Gorczyca, Kevin Doherty, and Brian Eaton.

Cornerbacks include Brian Hewitt, John Lothrop, Benny King, Tom Mulvey, McIntyre, Steve Mastorelli and O'Neil.

Ennis, Pete Doherty, Larry Baker and Jim Kenney will be playing at defensive halfback with Leo Graham, last year's sophomore standout; Tony Camillo and Frank Strauss will be the safeties.

Burke had an excellent turnout of 110 and hopes to develop some depth from the large group as he strives to improve upon last year's 5-4 record.

"If the defense comes along we should do all right," Dave said. "I think we will be able to move the ball well. But we all have a lot of work to do."

The venerable Ted Sadowski, starting his 21st year as a North aide, has one of his largest turnouts for the sophomore team.

"I have the quantity, all right, and I just hope we will have the quality," he said.

Track Club Edged In R.I. Meet

The Quincy Track Club wrapped up its summer season last Saturday when it was nipped by the Cooper Striders, 182-178, in the first Westerly age group meet in Rhode Island.

The QTC, however, set many club records, personal records and took home four trophies for outstanding athletes.

Trophies were won by Tommy Walsh and Janice Libby in the 9-under group, George Hartford and Maureen Roche in the 10-11 age group.

Walsh won the 50 and 100 in boys 9-under, with Jamie McArdle second in both events. The relay team of Walsh, Tommy Leonard, Harry Morash and McArdle also won.

In girls 9-under, Janice Libby won the 100 and took second in the 50, Clare Murphy was second in the 100 and third in the 50, and Kathy Shea took third in the 100. Lorrie McNeill set a club record in the long jump, the eight-year older doing 11-2 to finish second to Libby's 11-8, while Murphy placed third.

The relay team of Shea, McNeill, Murphy and Libby stole the show. Having no girls' teams to run against, they ran with the boys' teams and led all the way until Jamie McArdle nipped Janice Libby at the tape.

In boys' 10-11 action, George Hartford won the 100, 220 and took third in the long jump. Chris Veneto was second in the 100 and third in the 220. McArdle moved up an age bracket and won the long jump at 13-1, a 9-under club record.

Maureen Roche set club records of 12.3 in the 100 and 14-4 in the long jump. Georgia Traficante took third in the 220 and jumped 13-11½ in the long jump good for third.

The "A" relay team of Mary Shea, Geraldine Murphy, Traficante and Roche won in 61.0, while the "B" team of Gina Coletti, Patti Leonard, Diane Lindenfelzer and Beth Veneto placed second.

In girls' 12-13 action, Penny Sawyer set a club record of 11.8 in winning the 100 and took second in the shot put.

Debbie Hastings won the long jump and took thirds in the 220 and shot put. Eileen Crehan took thirds in the 880, mile and high jump. Elaine Santo won the high jump and the relay team of Christine Picarski, Liz Wiot, Penny Sawyer and Debbie Hastings placed second.

In boys' events, Brad Kenyon won the long jump and 880, Chris McCray won the 100 and took second in the long jump, Mike Ross took third in the 220 and Harry Morash, only 9, placed third in the mile.

In girls' 14-15 events, Denise Santo tied Janice Kelly's long standing record in the 100 with an 11.4 but finished only fourth. Karen Lindenfelzer was third in the 440, Margaret Osterman set a club record of 2:28.6 in the 880 and took third in the long jump with her best jump, 16-7¼. Mary Crehan took second in the mile, Kara Crehan won the high jump and Michelle Millane closed out an undefeated season with a record 36-3 in the shot put and she also won the discus. The medley relay team of Karen McCarthy, Santo, Lindenfelzer and Osterman placed second.

In boys' action, Dave Church had his best day ever, placing second in the 100 at 11.6 and taking third in the long jump at 16-6¾. Kevin Wood won the 440 and high jump and Chris McCray won the shot with Wood second.

In girls 16-17 action, Marie Voelkel won the discus setting a club record of 104-10.

The club finished its season dominating nearly every meet this summer, winning four team championships and sending 16 members to the nationals. Of 115 members, 77 boys and girls received some kind of an award this year.

St. Ann's Hockey, Skating Registration Sept. 13

Registration for all boys and girls interested in becoming new members of St. Ann's youth hockey and figure skating program will be held next Wednesday, Sept. 13, from 6 to 9 p.m. at St. Ann's Youth Center adjacent to the school.

All registration forms sent out to last season's members should be returned at this time. Failure to return them by this time will indicate more openings for new registrations.

St. Ann's is looking for figure skating instructors to work with the girls.

A charge of $2 will be required for all registrations along with the following yearly payment: Beginners, up to seven years, $27; girls, all ages, $27; Pee Wee, 8-11 years, $27, and Bantams, 12-16, $33.

Track Club X-Country Registration Saturday

The Quincy Track Club will hold registration for its fall cross country program Saturday from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. at Pageant Field.

The club will host five development meets on Saturdays during the fall and will also host the New England Junior Olympics. Last fall the club won three New England age group titles with its girls' team and three members won medals at the nationals in New York.

The club will again sponsor a bus trip to New York City's Van Cortland Park for 44 eligible youngsters from the club.

Electric Scoreboard At Adams Field

A new electric scoreboard has been installed at Adams Field in Merrymount Park as a cooperative effort between the School and Park Departments, it was announced by Mayor Tobin.

The School Department purchased the aluminum scoreboard which measures 18 feet long and 6½ feet wide at a cost of $2,249.

The Park Department acquired the two steel H-beams for $220 to support the scoreboard.

The School Department's electrician installed the underground cable and provided the necessary electrical service.

Park Department personnel prepared the site for installation and refurbished the grounds following completion.

Adams Field was constructed using the dimensions of the old Braves Field in Boston and was built in 1939 with WPA funds from the federal government.

The 100-lamp lighting installation was erected in 1973 at a cost of $81,000. Recent estimates are that the same installation today would cost from $130,000 to $150,000.

Adams Field is the home of the Quincy and North Quincy High School baseball teams. The Morrisette, Quincy and Wollaston Legion teams also use it each season, and it will be the site of the upcoming state legion playoffs.

Quincy Senior and Junior Babe Ruth teams also schedule the majority of league games at Adams Field. In all, more than 150 games are played at Adams Field each season, double the number before the installation of the existing lighting system.

The men's and women's bowling leagues of the Koch Club will begin their seasons today (Thursday) and Sept. 12, respectively.

Happiness, Meaning With Peace Corps In Philippines

(Special to The Quincy Sun)

Peace Corps volunteer David Charles of Wollaston took a break in his work at an agricultural experiment station in Iloilo City in the Philippines to talk of his life before and since he entered the Peace Corps two years ago.

He spoke of his boyhood in the Ohio town of Xenia; his leaving high school to join the Army; his work as a truck driver off and on for seven years, and the various trades he has learned in his 31 years.

"I was a rebel," he said. "At home I was a trouble-maker. I was considered lazy and no good. I came from a poor family, and I felt I had 30 strikes against me. I was a hooligan, and then I became a hippie. I hated the world for a long time."

He credits the beginnings of change in his life to Kathleen Howe, his wife, who now serves with him as a Peace Corps volunteer in the Philippines. A former VISTA volunteer on an Indian reservation in Montana, it was she who suggested they join the Peace Corps in 1976.

"I always thought the Peace Corps was for super-intellectuals," he said of his initial reservations. "I didn't think much of it.

"Now that I'm in it, I think it's one of the greatest things that's ever happened to me.

"It's taught me things that I never learned before -- patience, respect for people and respect for myself. I've learned responsibility. I still don't like responsibility too much, but I have learned it.

"I'm learning how to work with people and organizations. Before, I was completely an outsider to everything. The Peace Corps has given me a direction and a purpose. It's made me part of something.

"This is the first time in my life I've ever really worked toward something. It's the finest thing that ever happened to me. I finally feel I have a place in the world. I feel good about myself and good about what's going on," he concluded quietly.

The work that gives Charles such satisfaction is as a supervisory mechanic at the Bureau of Plant Industry's Visayas Rich Experiment Station in Jaro, a neighborhood on the outskirts of large, bustling Iloilo City.

Working with the station's one regular and four occasional mechanics, he helps to maintain and repair the station's agricultural equipment, including trucks, small tractors, jeeps, a bulldozer, water pumps, rice milling machines and dryers.

KATHLEEN HOWE and her husband, David Charles of Wollaston [right], Peace Corps volunteers, discuss operations of first aid center for day laborers that she set up in the Philippines.

The most important aspect of his work, he said, has been convincing the mechanics of the need for regular preventive maintenance of the machinery.

"When I came, they didn't even check the oil," he said. "They would put oil in every now and then. I've got them so they'll check the water and oil before starting a motor now. I have them checking for loose bolts -- they never did that before.

"I think a volunteer fits in as a driving force. My boss says we're here to be an inspiration, because the Filipinos have such a high regard for Americans."

As for the local mechanics, "most of them are really happy that things are being done," Charles said.

Miss Howe, 28, who kept her maiden name when she married Charles shortly before they joined the Peace Corps, is a former nursing assistant at St. Elizabeth's Hospital in Brighton, and the John Scott Nursing Home in Braintree. She has set up a first aid center for the station's day laborers and their families.

The couple's home is at 249 Arlington St., Wollaston.

Charles worked as a machine operator at Milton Academy and as a self-employed carpenter before coming to the Philippines. He has used his carpentry skills to build most of the furniture in their modes house in Jaro.

Skilled in mechanics, welding, farm labor, carpentry, plumbing and painting, Charles calls himself a "jack of all trades." He earned a high school diploma in the Army and studied mechanics and welding at Santa Monica City College in California, but formal classroom learning had little appeal for him.

"Some of the people I work with here are surprised that I don't have a degree -- they think everybody in America has one," he said. "I don't think it's really necessary as long as you have a good background. To me, experience is more important than school degrees."

Charles and Miss Howe will complete their two-year assignments in August. Their future plans are indefinite, but Charles already sees one result of their Peace Corps experience. "There are so many possibilities," he said, "that I never saw before."

DAVID CHARLES [left], a Peace Corps volunteer from Wollaston, shows a Filipino co-worker how a piece of farm equipment can be repaired at a rice experiment station in the Philippines.

Only TWO Massachusetts Counties are rated "AAA" in financial circles.

Jim Collins made sure your county was one of them.

The toughest judges of all, the bond-raters of Wall Street, have given Norfolk County Bonds a triple "AAA" rating — the highest awarded. In Massachusetts only 8 out of 375 communities have been given this prestigious rating. This rating saves the county many thousands of dollars in interest cost every year!

Jim Collins earned that "AAA" rating by getting the county's books certified for the first time in years.

He modernized and computerized accounting methods to make the Norfolk County Treasurer's Office the best in the state!

VACATION HOME AND TAXES

If you build or buy a vacation home, you can let it help your annual tax bill and still enjoy it for your family's pleasure. However, with the 1976 tax reform bill, [effective 1/1/77] there have been changes restricting some of the deductions under certain conditions.

For starters - whether you use it for yourself or not, there are always the usual deductions for mortgage interest and property taxes. The interest deduction can be considerable during the early years of the loan.

There are other deductions that also may be taken - just as you would if you owned an apartment house for an investment: depreciation, maintenance, utilities, insurance, etc. In order to take these deductions the total cannot exceed the amount of rental income [less taxes and interest] and the home cannot be occupied by the owner for more than two weeks or 10% of the rental use. However, rents are not taxable if the house is rented less than 15 days.

Whether buying or selling, turn to Realty World - President Real Estate for all your real estate needs.

50% Voter Turnout Forecast Tuesday

The biggest primary voter turnout in Quincy in recent years, sparked by exciting races for Congress, governor and the U.S. Senate, is forecast for Tuesday, Sept. 19, by City Clerk John Gillis.

"We should get a turnout of about 50 per cent, which is a good vote for a primary," said Gillis. "There is a lot of interest in the contests for Congress, governor and both sides of the Senate race."

Sharing the local spotlight with those contests for voter interest is the state senatorial battle between incumbent Arthur Tobin, Quincy mayor, and challenger Paul Harold, city councillor.

Another attraction is the fight between incumbent Robert Cerasoli of Quincy and Weymouth's Dolores Nourse for the Democratic nomination in the Third Norfolk state representative district.

And, for Quincy, this year's Fourth District Governor's Council race holds special interest. Quincy Atty. William Golden is taking on long-time incumbent Patrick [Sonny] McDonough in a sort of political David and Goliath battle.

The 1974 primary, the last in which statewide offices were involved, brought out 48.5 per cent of the voters and the 1970 intra-party contests attracted 33 per cent.

"It's the top dogs that bring them out, not the local races," said Gillis.

The top dogs this time around are [1] the six-candidate fight for Congress on the Democratic side, [2] the three-candidate battle for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination and [3] U.S. Senate contests that have six Democrats and two Republicans fighting for two spots on the Nov. 7 general election ballot.

Democratic contests generally attract more attention in Quincy since Democrats outnumber Republicans 28,722 to 6,805 among the 48,504 registered voters. There are 12,907 Independents and 80 members of the American party, whose ballot contains no names, only write-in spaces.

The six candidates seeking the 11th District seat in Congress being vacated by

'Should Have Been $7.30 Increase'

McCauley Takes Issue With Tobin On 60 Cent Tax Rate Cut

City Councillor Francis X. McCauley has issued a statement mildly critical of Mayor Tobin's announced tax rate of $196.60, a decrease of 60 cents over the previous year.

McCauley said his review of the figures used to compute the tax rate for fiscal 1978-79 indicates that "a tax increase of at least $7.30 was in order."

He called the 60 cent decrease "another election year tax rate."

McCauley was critical of Tobin's estimated $35.2 million in expected receipts and also the fact that no provision was made for city employee wage increases and a possible hospital deficit.

"Estimated receipts of $35.2 million from city sources other than real and personal property taxes are up $5.8 million over the actual 1978 figures," said McCauley.

"A review of the prior year's collections indicates this figure to be on the high side. A figure of $33 million would be more realistic. Had the latter figure been used it would have meant an increase of $7.30.

"While the $94 million appropriation was billed as a fully funded budget, no provision was made for employee salary increases although a number of union contracts expired on June 30.

"City Hospital Director Anthony P. DeFalco complained to the City Council during budget sessions that a bottom line cut by Mayor Tobin would make it difficult for the hospital to operate without additional funds later in the year."

[Tobin said his estimated receipts are the "most conservative estimated receipts ever used by any administration in Quincy."

["Contrary to what happened in previous years," he said, "when the estimated receipts were based on an increase over the estimated receipts of the previous year, we computed ours over the actual receipts.

["We went back several years and figured out that the actual

The clinic will be open from 2 to 4 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 26. It will be held thereafter on the second and fourth Tuesday of every month.

Noise Battle At Stalemate

Jet Pattern Experiment To Continue Until Jan. 15

The 90 calibres from Massport and the FAA fought a successful delaying action with the Committee Against Airport Noise [CAAN] Monday night but, as a parting shot, CAAN Chairwoman Bernice Mader warned:

"If another spring begins like this one, we promise a class action suit and individual suits. We promise to ask for resignations of certain people and impeachments of others. We promise you we will follow every single legal route open to us. You will hear from us again."

Otherwise, the battle against airplane noise, which began last May when Massport switched takeoffs from 210 degrees [over South Boston] to 195 and 180 degrees [over Quincy], appeared to have reached a stalemate, at least until Jan. 15.

For the past month, Massport and the FAA have been conducting a 30-day experiment with planes taking off on the usual Runway 22R and making a corkscrew turn full circle to the left before reaching Quincy.

Massport gave CAAN a preliminary evaluation of the test, noting that "the procedure has excellent noise abatement results for impacted communities" but

$737,780 In Wiring During August

The Quincy Department of Wire Inspection during August issued 109 permits for wiring estimated to cost $737,780, according to William H. Pitts, inspector of wires.

Major wiring projects for the month were a new building for South Boston Savings Bank, 690 Adams St.; a new garage for Quincy Point Congregational Church Homes, 1000 Southern Artery, and a new 270 unit apartment building at 125 Granite St.

During the month 72 certificates of approval were issued to Massachusetts Electric and one to a nursing home. The department collected $5,779.50 in fees.

A total of 214 inspections were made and eight defects were noted. There were also 12 re-inspections.

Would Pay 90% Of Cost

Chamber Campaigns For New FR Bridge Legislation

The South ShoreChamber of Commerce is mounting a campaign urging support for federal legislation which would pay 90 percent of the estimated $60 million cost of replacing the Fore River Bridge.

Gerald T. Reilly, president of the Chamber, has called on businessmen and officials in the area to inundate Congress with letters, telegrams and telephone calls to insure passage of House bill 11733, now before a joint Senate-House conference committee.

"Passage of this bill is vital to the economic health and well-being of General Dynamics which employs some 6,000 people in 159 of the state's cities and towns," Reilly said.

He pointed out that under the legislation now being considered the federal government would pay $54 million towards the construction of a new bridge. The state would be required to pay $6 million.

Reilly said every taxpayer, home owner, local school and town officials should contact their congressman and senator to voice support of the measure.

"Without a new bridge General Dynamics will not be able to maintain the competitive edge it needs to build the larger ships of the future that will simply be too big to pass through the present span," Reilly said.

The Chamber president said Congressman James A. Burke (D-Milton) has been assured by James Howard, chairman of the House Public Works and Transportation sub-committee on surface transportation, that Fore River Bridge would be eligible for funding under terms of the Surface Transportation Act of 1978.

It was pointed out that the present bridge clearance of 175 feet, horizontally, is barely enough to allow passage of the liquefied natural gas tankers now being built at the yard. Reilly noted that one of the tankers only recently scraped the bridge as it was passing through.

Burger King on Granite St., appeared before the board to obtain a license for a grand opening on Oct. 14. The petitioner was told a license would not be necessary for the champagne toast and the request was withdrawn.

McCauley Disagrees With Tobin On Tax Rate Cut

receipts increased each year by an average of about 13 percent. So we took 13 per cent of actual receipts, added it on and got estimated receipts.

["For instance, hospital receipts for 1977-78 were $21.8 million. We added a 10 per cent rate increase or $2.18 million, $300,000 in anticipated back collections, $400,000 in federal reimbursements for medicaid and came up with $24,680,000 in estimated receipts."

[Tobin also disputed McCauley's claim that money should have been in the budget to cover future employee wage increases, saying that such a practice is against the collective bargaining laws.

["You can't appropriate that kind of money ahead of time," he said. "How can you sit across the table in true collective bargaining negotiations and have already put the money aside?"]

McCauley's analysis of the tax rate did have some praise for the board of assessors, noting that they "adopted a realistic position in the two areas" of total valuation and overlay for abatements.

"Total real and personal property valuations increased by some $3,135,000 or 1.1 per cent over last year's valuations, the smallest increase in the last three years," he said.

"The amount set aside to cover tax abatements [the overlay] increased to $2,466,000 from $1,934,500 in 1978. This is 4.5 per cent of the total tax levy, up from 3.5 per cent a year earlier."

McCauley said that Quincy "fared poorly in the amount of increased state aid when compared with other cities in the Commonwealth. Quincy ranked 23rd out of 31 cities in a recent survey."

He criticized Gov. Michael S. Dukakis for his performance "as the alleged fiscal savior of the cities and towns of Massachusetts."

MAYOR TOBIN announces a 60-cent cut in the Quincy tax rate, from $197.20 to $196.60, while Gov. Michael S. Dukakis stands by to lend moral as well as fiscal support.

Dukakis was in Quincy last Wednesday, standing beside Tobin in the City Council chamber when the latter announced the new tax rate.

"The facts show," said McCauley, "that in fiscal 1975, the last year of the Frank Sargent administration, the cities and towns received 49 cents of every state tax dollar back for local aid purposes."

"After three years of Dukakis, this figure dipped to 35 cents on the dollar and despite the $300 million in new aid for 1979, only 42 cents of every dollar will be returned to the local communities next year.

"Gov. Dukakis has, in effect, straightened out the state's finances at the expense of the cities and towns."

The Quincy Taxpayers Association also had some criticism of Tobin's manner of handling the city's financial problems, if not the tax rate.

"We do not and we never have agreed to deficit spending," said the QTA in a statement.

The city finished some $7 million in the red during the 1977-78 fiscal year and Tobin's solution was to bond the deficit over a period of five years while fully funding the 1978-79 budget.

"The bond issue," said the QTA, "will cost the taxpayers of the city of Quincy well over a million dollars in interest during the next five years.

"It will be no saving to you as tax payers -- but if the city government will take advantage of this one time deficit to turn around the unnecessary spending and run the city as it should be run it may be worthwhile."

Postal Service Preparing Impact Statement On Proposed Mail Center

The Postal Service has decided to prepare a draft environmental impact statement covering the controversial $20 million incoming mail center in the area of Five Corners in Braintree.

The Post Office has invited all interested parties to submit comments on potential environmental impacts the center might have if constructed on the site off Granite St., adjacent to King's Department store shopping center.

Comments should be addressed to Theodore H. Widman, supervisor, design and construction, U.S. Postal Service, Northeast Region, New England Field Office, Box 324, Lexington, 02173. All communications should be sent before Oct. 12.

Statements will then be submitted to an independent contracting firm preparing the DEIS. No date has been given as to when the study will be completed.

The proposed facility was roundly denounced at a public hearing in the John F. Kennedy Health Center, Quincy, last January. Congressman James A. Burke [D-Milton] led opposition to the project and accused the Post Office officials of underhanded tactics in moving ahead without obtaining any input from the community.

Quincy officials were joined by those of Braintree, Weymouth and Milton in objecting to the proposal. They were particularly incensed by the suggestion that several post offices might be closed when the center opened.

Following the hearing Cong. Burke was assured by the Postmaster General that work on the project would be held up pending further study and a search for an alternate site.

Many at the jammed January hearing protested that placing the center in the Five Corners area would raise havoc with an already dangerous traffic situation.

VITAMIN C UP IN SMOKE

If you're one of the 49 million cigarette smokers in this country, you'll be interested in this medical finding: cigarette smokers need more vitamin C than the non-smoker in order to maintain comparable blood levels of this essential vitamin.

Blood serum vitamin C levels for smokers of 20 or more cigarettes daily are reduced as much as 40% compared to non-smokers. Comparing smokers with non-smokers of the same sex, age and dietary vitamin C intakes, the median blood serum of vitamin C levels of smokers were 30% lower than the non-smokers. The vitamin C level of the 40-64 year-old males were about 50% lower than the levels of non-smoking women of the same age.

These findings provide substantial evidence that smoking lowers blood levels of vitamin C and lowers the amount of vitamin C in mother's milk. If you MUST smoke, it would be advisable to increase daily dietary intake of vitamin C in order to maintain blood levels of this vitamin.

Money aside, a savings account still makes sense.

Read why.

Most of the people who write about money agree that a savings plan is as important today as ever. Along with some life insurance (low-cost Savings Bank Life Insurance, say), they'll tell you that a regular savings program still is an essential part of financial success. Why?

There are many reasons, of course. Some you've heard before and will again, because they're logical. For instance, who can disagree that it's very reassuring to have cash available whenever it's needed? In this age of go-now-pay-later, it's easy to overlook the fact that savings really make a difference when you go to spend them.

But think about the not-so-obvious reasons. Consider, for one, certainty of return on your money. Both for short and long-range goals, it's nice to know what to expect. Nice to know that the amount you're putting aside is earning more money, not fluctuating or even decreasing.

Particularly for such easy-to-predict expenses as education or a home (including condominiums and second homes), you're certain to have what you'll need, with a regular savings program. The money will be there when you want it. For sure.

Also think about this. Whenever you're able to buy something with cash, out of savings, you have greater purchasing power. When you go on a cash diet, here's what happens.

First, your savings may earn interest for you, at least 5.25% annually. Then, for every purchase you don't put on a charge card, you may save between 12 and 18% interest annually.

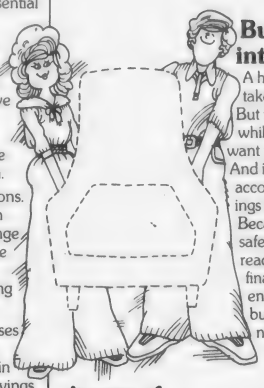
Keep that arithmetic in mind as you go on to these other reasons a savings account makes so much sense.



Pursue your own interests.

If your interest is an expensive new camera, it doesn't take too many pay-days to save for one.

By putting aside about $40 a month for a year, you can pay cash (which means you actually pay less for more camera). And with our added interest, you may have enough extra to buy yourself an accessory bag. Which makes pursuing your own interests very worthwhile.

Building with interest.

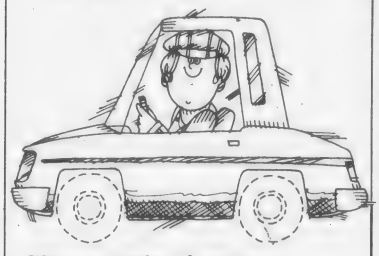
A home of your own takes a lot of money. But it's also a worthwhile goal. One you want to be sure you reach. And it's why a savings account at Quincy Savings Bank makes sense. Because it's still the safest, surest way to reach any important financial goal. With enough left over to buy yourself some new furniture.

Now you're getting somewhere.

If your travel plans don't quite seem to work out, maybe what you need first is a savings plan. A modest one will do, say a goal of $1000. Once you know where you're trying to go financially, you can get there by putting aside less than $100 a month.

You're sure to have the money that way. And equally sure to enjoy your next vacation much more, knowing it's paid for in advance. And your money may earn enough extra for a new suitcase.

A cost of thousands.



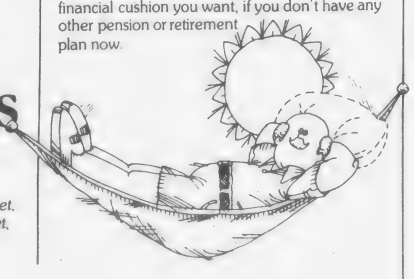
Education costs thousands of dollars today. Tomorrow it will cost even more. So producing tuition money when you need it requires planning ahead. And if you'll start while your child is still young, Quincy Savings Bank can play an important role. Because, with a Certificate of Deposit, the money you put aside may be worth almost twice as much in less than 10 years. That's a pretty dramatic example of the value of a savings plan.

Six for a dollar.

For your savings dollar, and many other bank services (including Pay-by-Phone), Quincy Savings Bank has six REDi-BANK™ offices thisclose to you.

Five of our six offices also have Plus/24 automatic teller machines, for 'round the clock banking convenience, with a REDi-CASH/VEC card.

People have always said that we're pretty close with a dollar. They're right. We are.



Moving right along now.

You have a lot of options with a savings account. One is some safety features, because your deposits are insured in full. Another is the ability to buy more car the next time. Because with cash you eliminate interest payments which cost you money you can use instead toward the purchase price. With a savings plan of less than $100 a month, in other words, you're sure to move toward your goal. Sure to have the money you want, as long as you keep going. With the added interest we'll show, you can also buy some extras like radials, too.

Save it for later.

An Individual Retirement Account at Quincy Savings Bank makes a lot of sense, too. Not only do you get a federal tax-exemption now; you get more money later. To supplement your Social Security. To make your retirement years more relaxing. If you qualify, you can put up to $1,500 a year in an IRA account and you may have the financial cushion you want, if you don't have any other pension or retirement plan now.

WAYS AND MEANS

Dear Fellow Citizens of Quincy

It has been my honor to represent you for the last 12 years.

As your Mayor and Senator, I have worked long hours to bring Quincy together again and to restore our sense of pride. I hope that I have succeeded.

Charges of corruption no longer abound.

Faced with the largest deficit in Quincy's history, I lowered our taxes. I could do so only because as State Senator, I was able to secure both significant new state aid and legislative approval of a sound financial tax plan for Quincy.

I am proud of my record. When you examine all of it, I believe that it will also make you proud.

I now ask you for your vote of confidence, so that we might continue to move Quincy forward.

I would deeply appreciate your support on September 19th.

Sincerely,

Arthur H. Tobin

A Respected State Senator.

"Your dual capacity as Senator-Mayor is an asset to your constituency as well as to the Massachusetts State Senate. I find it valuable to have in our midst a Senator who approaches the problems, so often local in nature, with the particular sensitivity so characteristic of you."

- SENATE PRESIDENT BILL BULGER

Arthur and Shirley and Family

"The citizens of his district are indeed fortunate to have Arthur Tobin as their State Senator, especially Senior Citizens for whom he has worked so hard and so effectively."

- CONGRESSMAN JAMES A. BURKE

"I feel that I can count on Senator Arthur Tobin to use his leadership position in the Senate to help me get my legislation through the upper branch. I believe that his constituents also can always count on his help."

- REPRESENTATIVE TOM BROWNELL

"I have watched Arthur Tobin over the years with a growing sense of respect for his hard work, maturity, and sympathy for people's needs."

BRIAN DONNELLY IS TOUGH ON THE ISSUES WHICH MAKES QUINCY'S CHOICE EASIER.

BRIAN DONNELLY has worked long and hard for the working people of the 11th congressional district. That is why he was the only candidate in the 11th congressional district endorsed by the Massachusetts State Labor Council which represents over 200,000 working people in the District.

BRIAN DONNELLY co-Sponsored in the Massachusetts Legislature the resolution calling for a 25% cut in Auto Insurance rates for the Elderly.

BRIAN DONNELLY voted against tough odds for the Local Aid Education Funds Formula which returned 3.4 million dollars to Brockton and ½ million dollars to Quincy in Local Aid Funds.

BRIAN DONNELLY has a proven record of accomplishment.

BRIAN DONNELLY: "As your Congressman I will work even harder to represent the great people of this District in Washington."

Jewels & Gems

by Stan Manin

Everyone these days is worried about inflation. Money put in the bank seems to lose value overnight. For years, people have been investing in jewelry and valuable gems as a hedge against inflation. Most keep climbing in value, even faster than the rate of inflation. You don't have to be wealthy to invest in jewelry. We will be glad to help you find gems that are a suitable investment for your particular financial requirements. And one of the nice things about investing in jewelry is that while earning money, you can also enjoy wearing the beautiful jewelry.

Whatever your reason for buying jewelry, we hope you'll stop by and see our fine selection at GRONO & CHRISTIE, INC., 536 Adams St., East Milton, 696-1490. We strive to make your visit with us a friendly and relaxing experience. Let us show you just some of the clocks we carry, like Bulova, Seth Thomas, Seiko, Chelsea, and many more. For your convenience we have a complete engraving facility on our premises. We have the capability to do all types of engraving work—flatware, silver, plates, etc.

HELPFUL HINT:
For a special occasion, have your jeweler engrave a meaningful inscription.

National Energy Policy A Must, Says Donnelly

A national energy policy is a must priority that could alleviate some of the problems facing this area, State Rep. Brian Donnelly, Democratic candidate for Congress to a recent fund raising reception at the Neghborhood Club, Glendale Rd, Quincy.

Donnelly, seeking the 11th District seat of retiring Congressman James A. Burke, told the Quincy residents that this area could use substantial help from the federal government to solve some of the current economic problems.

Donnelly is serving his third term in the state legislature. Prior to his election in 1972 he was a teacher in the Boston schools.

Tobin Favors Common Cause Strong Ethics, Disclosure Legislation

Sen. Arthur H. Tobin [D-Quincy], who is seeking re-election, says that he is in favor of the original strong ethics and disclosure legislation proposed by Common Cause.

Tobin told a coffee hour gathering at the home of Gloria and Ted George, 18 Mechanic St., Quincy Center, that other legislators wanted to water it down but he stayed with the original version.

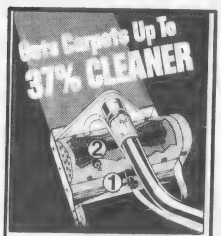
The legislation required all elected state officials and all policy-making appointees with salaries in excess of $20,000 to disclose all outside sources of income.

Sheets Asks Candidates To Remove Signs From Residential Areas

James A. Sheets has asked his fellow candidates for Congress to "respect the zoning laws of Quincy by removing their illegal signs which are currently erected in the city."

Sheets said his organization has scrupulously adhered to the letter of the law by placing his signs only on business-zoned property.

"We have received over 300 potential residential locations within the city," said Sheets, "but we have respectfully declined them because they would have violated the residential zoning restriction."



Sheets said the Quincy Building Department has filed complaints in Quincy District Court in an effort to have some illegal political signs removed from residential property.

He said that he and Arthur H. Tobin and Paul D. Harold, candidates for the State Senate, are observing the law but some candidates from outside the city are not.

Jet Pattern Experiment To Continue Until Jan. 15

recommending an extension of testing until Jan. 15.

Most CAAN members present disagreed that Quincy was less impacted by planes during the experimental period and most were against the January extension since they felt they had been promised relief after 30 days.

"Significant progress has been made since early August," State Transportation Secretary Frederick Salvucci pleaded with the group. "But it is not enough. The FAA must have time to look at other alternatives that will leave Quincy 100 per cent clean."

Massport Director David Davis and Robert Whittington regional director of the FAA, and a bevy of lesser experts from both organizations appeared at the meeting.

"We are close enough to a potential solution to all your problems," said Frederick Ford, director of aviation for Massport. "This is the first time any significant change has been tried in Boston. I appeal to you to let us continue with it."

Whittington listed the alternatives the FAA is looking at as: the 195-degree takeoff, the 180-degree takeoff, the corkscrew, a tighter corkscrew, and an over water route toward the Cape which doubles back over Hartford, Conn.

Salvucci said it would be to Quincy's advantage to give the FAA time to experiment with its alternatives since "the number of people impacted and the severity of the impact will be taken into consideration" when a permanent takeoff pattern is selected.

If a choice were forced now between 210 [South Boston] and 180 [Quincy], said Salvucci, "my judgement would be that the status quo [180] is less damaging."

"A third alternative gives Quincy a better shot," he said. "With a January starting date we'll have a third alternative which could give you what you want to hear.

"And the timetable we are talking about could settle the problem before next spring."

The Massport report on the corkscrew [or left loop] test offered these preliminary conclusions:

- "Although the left loop procedure involves some operational problems, the FAA has been able to conduct the procedure 70 percent of the time that 22R was in use."
- "The procedure results in almost total noise relief for South Shore communities. However, there is still some residual impact in areas of Squantum and Houghs Neck. In addition, certain other geographical areas have observed an increase in noise levels."
- "Additional work is required in order to correct the operational problems identified during the course of the evaluation."

When one CAAN member suggested a curfew at Logan Airport, Davis noted that a curfew had been considered in August, 1976, but rejected because it "would do great harm to jobs in Massachusetts. The economic problems would be too difficult."

"It's causing difficulties with my economy now," retorted one CAAN member. "Until May I lived in a quiet house. I enjoyed it. Tell me what is going to happen so I can sell my house before it loses value."

Jens Thornton, the Squantum fisherman, complained of the "arrogance of the pilots. I was on the beach in Squantum and few of the planes made a turn over Moon Island. Most of them deliberately came over the beach."

Whittington explained the difficulties of convincing pilots to make the tight turn required of the corkscrew but Thornton said he still thought the over-beach flight was deliberate, either on the part of the pilots or Massport.

"What we are watching tonight," said a CAAN member, "is the old shell game, Jan. 15 is the key. That is after the elections. All this window dressing is interesting but if you trust anyone up there you are foolish."

When the going got roughest, Massport and the FAA trotted out Ray Zazzetti, the deputy chief of the Logan Tower to explain the problems of the air traffic controllers.

There is an old story about the little girl in school who was assigned to write a report on a book about penguins. "This book," she wrote, "tells me more about penguins than I really want to know."

Zazzetti told CAAN more about takeoffs and flight patterns than they really wanted to know, and, after that, all that was left was for Bernice Mader to make promises about next spring.

QUINCY TAX RATE -- Arthur Tobin borrowed $7 million to set this election-year tax rate. According to the Quincy Taxpayers Association, this borrowing will cost the taxpayers over $1 million in interest payments alone.

HELPING HOLBROOK -- Tobin was absent on three separate occasions when the Holbrook water assessment bill was considered and he's a MEMBER of the committee that held the hearings. The Bill was defeated.

BRAINTREE DEMOCRATS -- This "endorsement" has been challenged by members of the Braintree Democratic Town Committee, who weren't notified that an endorsement meeting was being held.

QUINCY-BRAINTREE DAM AUTHORITY -- Tobin has never brought such a proposal before the City Council for approval. The only place this legislation has been filed is in the newspaper.

BRAINTREE RECREATION FACILITY -- These funds were cut out of the state budget the day after Tobin's press release. What's more, Arthur Tobin was absent for the key vote on this $162 million capital outlay budget.

TUITION RESOLUTION -- This resolution would have helped parents who send their children to private and parochial schools. But School Committee Chairman Tobin was absent on the vote to let parochial school students borrow books, vote failed 3 to 3.

BRAINTREE ELDERLY HOUSING -- This application was filed by the Braintree Housing Authority and has been pending for three years. Tobin didn't have a thing to do with it. What's more, he was absent from the Senate for the key vote on a statewide housing program for elderly and handicapped people.

Making headlines is one thing - doing the job is another.

Paul Harold's record on the City Council has been one of doing the job rather than grabbing the headlines.

He'll do the job in the Senate, too, by serving fulltime.

SUNBEAMS

By Henry Bosworth

The Money Is Still Coming In

The Jerry Lewis Telethon has been over more than a week now but not forgotten.

Money is still trickling in here at The Sun office, which of course, was the telethon pledge center for the Quincy-South Shore area for the second year.

We'd like to acknowledge a few of the post-telethon donors like:

Dave Leitch of Burgin Platner Insurance, Quincy, who came in with a $50 check from that company. Dave was at his Maine farm during the telethon. [Former Mayor Thomas Burgin, founder of the firm, had earlier personally pledged $50.]

The Altrusa Club of Quincy, who donated $50 in memory of the late Catherine Woodbury, the club's first president. Mary McGinty brought the check in and then added a $10 one of her own. And there was a $50 check from Diana Athenas of Bayview Ave.

There was also a $25 check from Mrs. Peter Mosillo of Willard St., $35 from Susan Bandera of Edison St., $5 from Vera Call of 1000 Southern Artery and $5 from Dorothy Anderson of South Weymouth, $5 from Herbert Beaumont and Susan McSavaney, both of Quincy.

This brings our total so far this year to $75,427.50 to help fight muscular dystrophy. That's $11,789.50 more than was raised here in 1977 when the Quincy-South Shore Jerry Lewis Telethon Committee was established.

The breakdown for the $75,427.50: Telephone pledges $38,731 -- up $4,234. Fishbowl receipts $7,696 -- up $3,761. Pre-telethon special events $28,970.50 -- up $3,769.50.

The pre-telethon events figure could increase. There are still pledges out there from the Quincy Swimathon held at the Lincoln Hancock Community School Pool. Youngsters who have not yet turned in their pledges may still do so at The Sun office.

Joan Branton of Brae Road turned in $56.50 this week. John and Greg McGlame of Harvard St., came in with $45 between them Saturday to put the Swimathon figure up to $2,278.85.

We acknowledged some of the nice people who worked here at The Sun pledge center during the telethon. Now we would like to thank a few more who manned the phones or worked in other categories processing the pledges. People like:

Bryant Carter, Roberta Caulfield, Esther Corbett, John Corbett, the Quincy Jaycees' Joseph DeRosa, Mary Lee Donoghue, Mary Ferrai, Maggie Gainey, Pam Gillis, Bonnie Hanlon, Patricia Kogut, Jack Madden, John Moran, Meredith Prosser, Maureen Russell, Cheryl Silvestro, Carmelina Spencer, John Spencer, Betty Swanton, Catherine Fleming, Angela Nicastro, Joyce Baker, Linda Bowes, Betty and Ted DeCristofaro, Sabina Dulevksis, Kathryn Fleury.

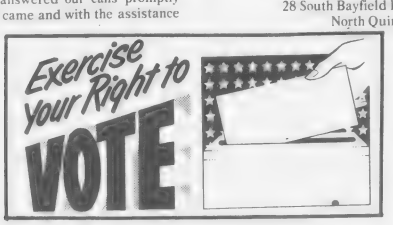
Shirley Gray, Kay Hurd, David Marotta, Mary Ann Morris, Linda Morrow, Pat Mullen, Mary Murphy, Margaret Shea, Carol Ann Tutela, James Ahola, Anne d'Entremont, Herbert d'Entremont, Josephine Fantucchio, Joan MacKenzie, Jacqueline and Bill Monahan, Carol Morris, Claire O'Rourke, Helen O'Rourke, Anthony Pelligrini, Kathy Picardi, Johnnie and Bob Bosworth, Nina Picardi, Deanna Pollara, JoAnn Ross, Maureen Russell, Diane Zagarella, Lee Zbrofsku, Joan Fantucchio, Bob Woods, Mary Lund, Rita Paul, etc., etc.

All of them gave up a good chunk of their holiday weekend to join the Quincy-South Shore team that is trying to do its part so that someday little kids who now don't have much of a chance against muscular dystrophy may yet grow up to live normal lives.

There is no cure for muscular dystrophy. But someday, working together, we're going to find one. And may that day be soon.

READER SPEAKS OUT

Seeks Home For Shepherd Dog



Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I and several of my neighbors had occasion to call the Dog Officer's office on Saturday, Sept. 9, since a stray, untagged white female shepherd dog had decided to make a neighbor's yard her new home. The dog appeared hungry, hurt and frightened, and after a day we felt that she would be better off if she were picked up.

The Dog Officer's assistant, Bruce, was most accommodating. He answered our calls promptly and came and with the assistance of his own dog managed to collar the stray with a minimum of fuss or unpleasantness. We hated to have to turn her in, but we all have dogs of our own and are not in a position to take in another.

If anyone wants to share their home with a pretty white shepherd, call the pound right away since they can keep the dog for only 10 days. In the meantime, many thanks to the Dog Officer's assistant for a job well done.

Congress, State Senate T

10-term Cong. James A. Burke [D-Milton] are:

● Patrick H. McCarthy, 32, the Randolph attorney, who lost a challenge to Burke in the 1976 primary by a margin of 39,872 to 29,722. His 43 per cent of the vote was considered very good against the long-entrenched Burke.

● James A. Sheets, 43, a city councillor and state rep from Quincy, who has been conducting a unique door-to-door campaign throughout the large district. His campaign has been characterized by its low publicity profile and little money.

● Brian J. Donnelly, 31, a three-term state rep from Boston's Dorchester section, nephew of former Lt. Gov. Francis E. Kelly, who has collected numerous campaign endorsements from State House colleagues and labor organizations.

● Patrick F. McDonough, 53, a Boston city councillor of more than 20 years standing, who has sought to picture himself as an elder statesman in the Jim Burke image in a field of much younger candidates. His ads emphasize age, experience.

● Margaret R. Dinneen, 27, a Milton attorney and first time candidate who once served as an aide in the office of Cong. Thomas P. O'Neill [D-Cambridge] and most recently as general counsel in the U.S. Department of Energy in Washington.

● Sabina Kavanagh, operator of a Quincy beauty parlor and school, who, as Sabina K. Stenberg, was unsuccessful in two bids for an at-large seat on the Quincy City Council. Her campaigning was limited when she was injured in an auto accident.

The district includes the cities of Quincy and Brockton, the towns of Abington, Avon, Braintree, Holbrook, Milton, Randolph, Stoughton and Whitman, and Wards 15, 16, 17 and 18 [Dorchester and Hyde Park] in Boston.

Democratic voter registration in the district is 140,000, with roughly 26 percent of the vote in the Boston wards, 21 per cent in Quincy, 17 per cent in Brockton and the rest scattered among the towns. A voter turnout of about 85,000 is anticipated.

There are 70,000 registered Independents and 28,000 Republicans in the 11th district.

Observers feel that the issue will be determined on the voting fields of Hyde Park, where a state rep fight between two incumbents, Rep. Michael Paul Feeney [D-Boston] and Rep. Angelo M. Scaccia [D-Boston], is expected to draw an extra heavy vote.

Key questions to be answered at the ballot box are these:

● How badly will Donnelly and McDonough cancel each other out in their hometown Boston wards? The importance of winning big in your own backyard is enhanced by a large field of candidates.

● How effective is the low key Sheets' door-to-toor campaign on a scale as large as a congressional district? It has never really been tried before by a major candidate for Congress.

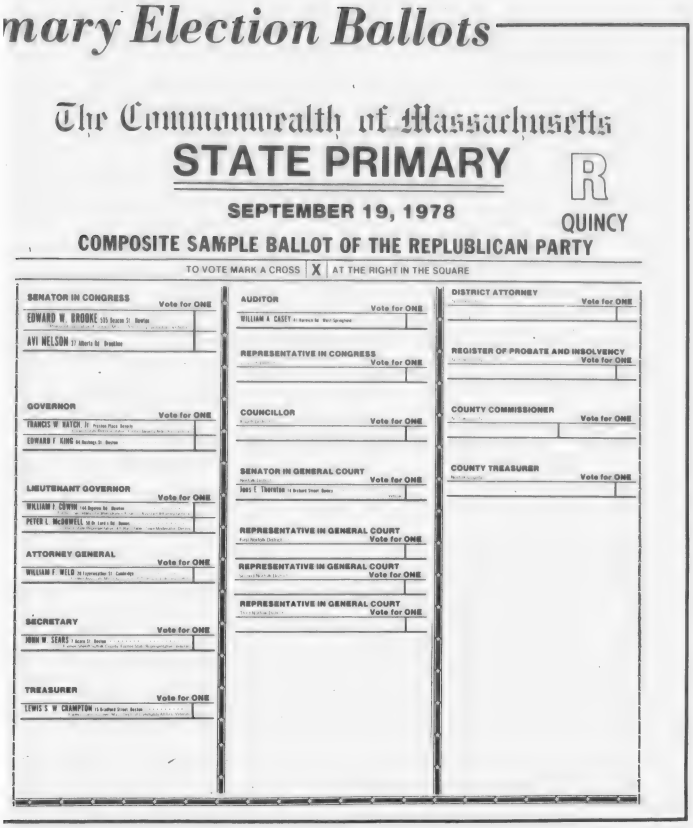
● How important are the endorsements from labor organizations and local political figures over which McCarthy and Donnelly have been fighting – and pretty much dividing?

The winner of the Democratic primary is all but guaranteed the congressional seat since there are no Republican candidates [and there hasn't been one since 1966]. The only opposition in November will be H. Graham Lowry of Boston, the minor U.S. Labor party candidate.

On a more local level, the big race pits Sen.-Mayor Arthur H Tobin against City Councillor Paul D. Harold for the Democratic nomination from the Norfolk Senatorial District, which includes Quincy, Braintree, Holbrook and Avon.

Victory in the Democratic primary is tantamount to election since a Republican has not represented the district since 1962. The lone name on the GOP primary ballot is Jens Thornton, a commercial fisherman from Squantum, who has run unsuccessfully for many state and local offices.

The Tobin-Harold campaign has been fought largely on one issue: Can a man serve either constituency well by holding two public offices? The Mayor in the State House has been a tradition in Quincy since the days of Amelio Della Chiesa 25 years ago.



Tobin, 48, a state senator since 1971 and mayor since last January, has claimed that his influence in the State House has made him an even more effective mayor in soliciting state aid for local projects.

Harold, who turned 30 on Sept. 5, has been a member of the City Council since 1976 and has promised to give up even that parttime seat if he is elected to the Senate. He practices law in Braintree.

The two-job issue surfaced in Tobin's 1977 campaign for mayor against the incumbent Joseph J. LaRaia. Tobin won handily after agreeing not to accept the mayor's $25,000 salary.

op Local Races Tuesday

House was cut to 180 members] have no opposition in the primary or the general elections

Rep. Michael W. Morrissey in the First Norfolk and Rep. Thomas F. Brownell in the Second Norfolk. Both are Democrats.

Rep. Robert A. Cerasoli of Quincy, who lost one Weymouth constituency and picked up another in the shuffle, is opposed on the Democratic ballot in the Third Norfolk by Dolores E. Nourse, a Weymouth photographer.

William B. Golden, a Quincy attorney, is challenging Patrick J. [Sonny] McDonough of Boston, Scituate and Marathon, Fla., for the Fourth District post on the Governor's Council. McDonough has held the job for the past 30 years.

Golden lost an appeal to the State Ballot Law Commission to have McDonough's name ruled off the ballot on grounds that he was a resident of Marathon and not 135 Granite Ave., Dorchester, as he claims. Golden says he is appealing the Commission decision to the people.

There are races on the Democratic ballot for three of the four county offices that are up for grabs. Only Dist. Atty. William D. Delahunt gets a free ride for re-election, with no Republican opposition in November either.

The open county commissioner's post is forbidden to Quincy residents since one commissioner, George B. McDonald, is already from Quincy, but there are two former Quincy men in the race, Harold R. Davis of Braintree and Edmund P. Harrington of Weymouth.

Davis is a former member of the Quincy school committee and Harrington polled a respectable total running for commissioner from Quincy against McDonald in 1976.

Other Democratic candidates for commissioner are incumbent David C. Ahearn of Norwood, who was appointed to fill the term of the late Thomas K. McManus; Francis W. O'Brien of Dedham; Paul G. Hartnett Jr. of Norwood; and Thomas F. Egan of Norwood.

Thomas Patrick Hughes of Quincy is challenging incumbent Paul C. Gay of Walpole for register of probate and county treasurer James M. Collins of Milton has opposition from Norman B. Cohen of Brookline. All are Democrats.

Locally, the most interesting statewide contest appears to be the race for U.S. senator on both party ballots.

Most of the 616 switches in party allegiance recorded in the Quincy election office are attributed to the Republican race for the Senate nomination between conservative Avi Nelson of Brookline and liberal incumbent Edward W. Brooke of Newton.

On the Democratic ballot there is State Secretary Paul Guzzi, of Newton; Cong. Paul E. Tsongas of Lowell; State Rep. Elaine Noble of Boston; Boston School Committeewoman Kathleen Sullivan Alioto; and Howard Philips of Boston.

The gubernatorial ballots feature two Edward Kings as possible rivals in November.

Edward J. King of Winthrop, former director of Massport, is challenging Gov. Michael S. Dukakis of Brookline on the Democratic ballot with Barbara Ackerman of Cambridge a third candidate.

Edward F. King of Boston, conservative founder of Citizens for Limited Taxation, is in the Republican contest against State Rep. Francis W. Hatch Jr. of Beverly.

Lt. Gov. Thomas P. O'Neill III of Boston stands unchallenged for renomination on the Democratic side while Peter L. McDowell of Dennis, the King man, and William L. Cowin of Newton, the Hatch supporter, are vying for the Republican nomination.

Atty. Gen. Francis X. Bellotti of Quincy is unopposed for renomination in the Democratic primary as is William F. Weld of Cambridge, his Republican opponent in November.

For the lesser state offices, Republican aspirants are unopposed -- John W. Sears of Boston for state secretary; Lewis S. W. Crampton of Boston for treasurer; and William A. Casey of Springfield for auditor.

But on the Democratic ballot, the same races are wild and wooly.

For secretary: Michael Joseph Connolly of Boston, David E. Crosby of Brockton, John Fulham of Fall River, William James Galvin Jr. of Boston, James W. Hennigan Jr. of Boston, Lois G. Pines of Newton, and Anthony J. Vigliotti of Worcester.

For treasurer: Incumbent Robert Q. Crane of Wellesley, Lawrence F. Blacke of Boston, Paul R. Cacchiotti of Everett, Lawrence S. DiCara of Boston, Thomas D. Lopes of New Bedford, and Dayce Philip Moore of Braintree.

For auditor: Incumbent Thaddeus Buczko of Salem and Peter G. Meade of Boston.

QUINCY'S YESTERDAYS By Tom Henshaw

War Time Voyage For 6 Residents

Six Quincy residents, returning from summer vacations in Scotland, described their two-week voyage across the Atlantic on the British steamer Cameronia, on the alert for German submarines.

Sept. 14-20, 1939 39 Years Ago This Week

The ship followed a zig zag course, said Mrs. Charles Tainsh, with portholes blacked out and each passenger keeping a life jacket at hand in case of emergency.

Once she said, they heard an SOS from a sinking vessel but Capt. B. G. Kelley refused to acknowledge it, suspecting a German trick. They were relieved when an American ship answered the distress call.

The passengers were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Tainsh, 86 Lawn Ave., Quincy Point; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Gilchrist, 97 Goddard St., South Quincy; Mrs. John Broadford, 81 Germain Ave., Quincy Point; and Mae Allen, 9, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Allen, 69 Faxon Rd, Atlantic.

The Cameronia sailed from Glasgow on Sept. 1, the day the German army invaded Poland to start World War II.

COUNCIL ASKS RENT PROBE

The City Council summoned City Engineer Gerhard F. Schafer, who was also the local WPA coordinator to explain a $6,500 increase in the yearly rent the city was paying for Hitchcock's Quarry.

The quarry, owned by the Quincy Quarries Co., was used by a WPA granite project.

"Members of the City Council should not be so gullible as to accept this," said Councillor Aldo Della Chiesa. "The Mayor should put his foot down and we should move if the rent is not reduced."

APPRENTICES TOP ALUMNI

Kaiser Oliverio scored one touchdown and Mike Franchuk passed to Bill Sullivan for another as the Fore River Apprentices opened the football season with a 14-0 victory over their alumni.

The starting lineups included:

APPRENTICES - Lennie Collins, Arthur Kelly, ends; Henry Barsella, Mike Della Barba, tackles; William Pray, Earl Christian, guards; Marty Glennon, center; Kaiser Oliverio, quarterback; Mike Franchuk, Dave Doucette, halfbacks; Dan Cingalone, fullback.

HALLORAN ELECTED

The election of Leo J. Halloran of Quincy as secretary to the Democratic State Committee was viewed as an indication of coming harmony among warring factions of the party.

Halloran, husband of District Court Judge Gertrude R. Halloran and a longtime supporter of former Gov. Charles Hurley, was elected by a group controlled by ex-Gov. James M. Curley, Hurley's rival.

Golden Criticizes McDonough On Absenteeism

The Governor's Council plays a critical role in the appointment of judges, says William B. Golden, and his opponent is not doing the job by missing 50 per cent of the Council's meetings.

Golden, a Quincy attorney, is campaigning for the Democratic nomination against Patrick J. (Sonny) McDonough, who has held the office for more than 30 years.

Golden unsuccessfully challenged McDonough's position on the Sept. 19 primary ballot claiming that he is not a legal resident of Massachusetts but lives in Marathon, Fla.

"I do not believe that the responsibility of approving over 50 new state judges under court reform should remain in the hands of a man who spends a major portion of his time 2,300 miles away," he said.

Golden spoke to some 250 supporters at a fund-raiser in the Ames-Webster Mansion in Boston.

It's Time For The Second American Revolution!!!

Our state leaders tell us "we're too intelligent to vote for Proposition 13."

Our liberal opponent tells us that a Proposition 2½ is not good for us by voting against this bill to limit state spending.

They're Not Listening !!!!!

That's why DOLORES NOURSE wants to be your State Representative.

She Listens And Learns !!!

* While her opponent was voting for a record $5 billion 1979 state budget, Dolores was studying the new increased 1979 local aid formula. Dolores was appalled to learn that Wellesley, one of the richest towns in the state, was getting a $40 per person increase, Quincy only $30 and Weymouth a paltry $18 per person with the new formula. Her opponent voted for this formula which helps Wellesley get richer while Quincy and Weymouth get poorer!!!!!
* Dolores' opponent voted for state-funded abortions. Dolores Nourse opposes this expensive program that again picks the pocket of the taxpayer.

You Can Trust Dolores Nourse to face up to the real issue, your taxes, and work to cut senseless programs, not expand them.

Let the first shot from the Second American Revolution be heard here in the new Quincy, Ward 2 - Weymouth District!!!!

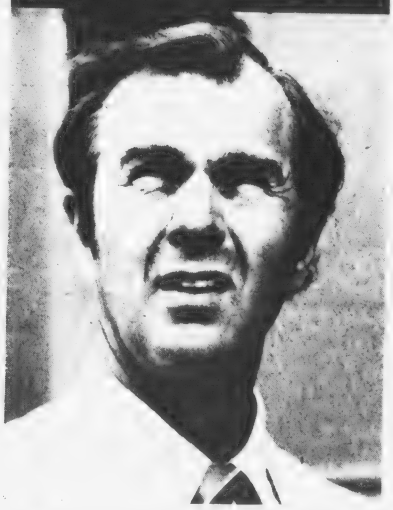
Delahunt said, "County books are certified, the County has a triple "AAA" rating, Collins earned $5,000,000 in interest, eliminated practices that wasted money, worked hard for necessary reforms and modernized the office to make it the best in the state."



"Jim Collins has earned the respect of everyone as treasurer and I'm very excited about endorsing his candidacy for re-election."

Some day it will matter to you who the Register of Probate is.

(How about Election Day?)

Some day your life will be affected by the Probate Court.

Because Probate Court is the "family court." Adoption of children, child custody, disposition of wills, separation, divorce ... these are the matters that crowd into Probate Court every day.

So it matters very much who the Register of Probate is.

You could vote for a man with no experience, no real court background, and no legal training.

Or you can vote for Paul C. Gay, present Register of Probate: a man with six years experience as First Assistant Register, six more as Register, and a lawyer and member of the Massachusetts Bar.

Paul C. Gay isn't an out-of-work politician looking for a job.

He's a dedicated, experienced public servant.

On Primary Day, Sept. 19, you have a choice as to who will administer Norfolk Probate Court for the next six years.

If Probate Court will ever matter to you ... let it matter on Election Day. Vote to keep Paul C. Gay as Register of Probate in Norfolk County.

Key Is Proper Sequence

In Probate Court, You Have To Know Where All The Documents Are

By PETER BARNICLE

Courts function in a world of paper and at Norfolk Probate Court in Dedham the paper has been accumulating since the county was established back in 1793.

Paul C. Gay, Register of Probate in Norfolk County for the past six years, is the man who must know where each paper, or document, is kept so he can retrieve it when the need arises.

"You might say the courts are involved in a paper chase," Gay said in a recent interview. "The key to the whole process is the presentation of papers in the proper sequence."

Because of the mountains of paper collected over nearly two centuries much of the older documentation has been micro-filmed. The micro-filmed duplicates are accepted by the court, but under the law the originals must be retained.

For example, the wills of both John Adams and John Quincy Adams, filed for probate in Norfolk County, are still available, and so are the wills of any other resident of the county.

Up until the advent of the typewriter, all documents were handwritten. However, even with the introduction of typewriters the courts were slow to accept them.

In its own good time the judicial system recognized the typewriter was here to stay. It was followed by the copier, Xerox, micro-film and now computers are moving in as the latest method of storing information and making it available for easy retrieval. In addition, the compactness of micro-film and the computer programs makes it possible to store the ever increasing piles of documents.

In the court system one document follows another through the process, according to Gay.

"When an event occurs we require that it be documented," he explained. "Each event we are involved with creates a social problem that the court is going to resolve."

Once the first papers in an action are received by the registry of probate they are checked for accuracy and for substance. The next step is to determine what is needed to move the document on towards a judicial order.

"Input documents are papers given to the court and output documents are those generated by the court," Gay said.

Input documents are divided into two categories. Pleadings, that is any paper which seeks, or objects to, the entry of a judicial order. Non-pleading documents attach themselves to a pleading in order to move a case forward.

In each case the exact sequence must be followed in order for a judge to make a proper judicial order resolving the case.

In a divorce action a person enters a pleading requesting termination of a marriage. The court then asks if the other partner has given assent to the action. If the person initiating the action cannot obtain assent then the court requires an affadavit stating the attempt has been made and the other partner has been informed.

Each document is attached to the case as it moves forwards in the court. Other supporting documents, such as a marriage certificate may be required.

Maintaining all these papers requires a highly complex system of reproduction and filing.

In an effort to handle the prodigious amount of paper that flows through the registry of probate Gay has developed a color coded system in which specific jurisdictional problems are categorized.

Basically cases moving through the probate court come under four categories: marital, equity, identity and fiduciary. The marital cases deal with divorce, separate support, annulment and most recently abuse.

Equity cases deal with failure to complete a contract and lack of performance, adjudication of sanity and partition, where a property settlement is sought.

Identity cases cover adoptions, change of name, and fiduciary actions deal with guardianships, conservators, trustees, administrators and such.

These are the essential areas in which the probate courts are called on to operate. To keep the system moving each and every document must be recorded, stored and available to the court at any time.

Record Shows Tobin Supported Tax Limitation Amendment 100%, And Voted For It!

HAROLD REQUIRED TO ALTER ADVERTISEMENT

On Friday, Sept. 8, in a paid political advertisement, Paul Harold accused Senator Tobin of sabotaging the Tax Limitation Amendment.

Less than 24 hours later Harold repeated his advertisement with changes required by The Patriot Ledger advertising policy in the interest of "Clarification to lessen the possibility of misinterpretation by readers."

Now lets look at what really happened. Senator Tobin voted in favor of the Tax Limitation Amendment on all occasions*. All changes made in the Amendment by the Committee on Bills in Third Reading were technical in nature, as required by law. The lawyer for the tax group participated in and approved all changes made. He commended the staff of the Committee on Bills in Third Reading in writing for their "total impartiality" and thanked them for their "help and guidance." The House and Senate, by a roll call vote of 222-23, then passed the Amendment with our entire delegation voting for it.

Now, You Know the facts. Did Paul Harold deliberately misrepresent the truth, or is he the victim of his own inexperience? Either way, is he the kind of person you want representing you on Beacon Hill?

QUINCY PUBLIC SCHOOLS NOTICE

The Quincy Public Schools today announced a free milk and free meal and reduced price meal policy for school children unable to pay the full price of milk and meals served in schools under the National School Lunch, School Breakfast Program and Special Milk Program. Local school officials have adopted the following family size-income criteria for use in determining eligibility.

INCOME ELIGIBILITY CRITERIA
FAMILY SIZE AND GROSS INCOME SCALES

Family Size [All members of household]	Maximum Gross Income For Free Milk and Free Meals	Maximum Gross Income For Reduced Price Meals
One	$0 to $ 4,190	$ 4,191 to $ 6,530
Two	0 to 5,500	5,501 to 8,580
Three	0 to 6,810	6,811 to 10,630
Four	0 to 8,110	8,111 to 12,660
Five	0 to 9,310	9,311 to 14,530
Six	0 to 10,510	10,511 to 16,400
Seven	0 to 11,600	11,601 to 18,100
Eight	0 to 12,690	12,691 to 19,790
Nine	0 to 13,680	13,681 to 21,330
Ten	0 to 14,660	14,661 to 22,870
Eleven	0 to 15,640	15,641 to 24,390
Twelve	0 to 16,610	16,611 to 25,910
Each Additional Family Member	970	1,520

Children from families whose income is at or below those shown are eligible for milk and meals free or at reduced prices. In addition, families not meeting this criteria but with other special hardship conditions due to unusually high medical expenses, shelter costs in excess of 30 percent of income, special education expenses due to the mental or physical condition of a child, and disaster or casualty losses are urged to apply. Further, children having parents or guardians who become unemployed are eligible for free or reduced price meals or for free milk during the period of unemployment, provided that the loss of income causes the family income during the period of unemployment to be within the eligibility criteria. Should your income or family size change, contact the approving official.

To discourage the possibility of misrepresentation, the following statement is placed just above the parents' or guardians' signature on the application; "I certify that the above information I have given is true and correct, that the application is being made in connection with the receipt of State and Federal Funds, that school officials may for cause: [1] request an informal conference with the parents to substantiate the information on the application [or if requested by either party the Fair Hearing Procedure may be used]; [2] verify the information on the application, and that deliberate misrepresentation of the information may subject the applicant to prosecution under applicable State and Federal criminal statutes."

Parents should clearly understand that every meal served in schools is subsidized to a greater or lesser degree by State-Federal reimbursements. Those lunches served at full price are subsidized as well as those served free or reduced. Therefore, there should be no reluctance to apply for either a free or reduced price meal. If your family size, and gross income is within the "Income Eligibility Criteria" for free or reduced price meals, we urge you and all eligible parents to fill out the application. The intent of these programs is to improve the nutrition of all children.

They may do so by filling in the application forms sent home with a letter to parents. The information provided on the application will be confidential and will be used only for the purpose of determining eligibility. Applications may be submitted any time during the school year. In certain cases foster children are eligible for free milk and free meals or reduced price meals regardless of your family income. If you have such children living with you and wish to apply for such milks and meals for them, please file a separate application for each child, and indicate amount of State support only as income.

Under the provision of the policy the Principal in each school will review all applications and determine eligibility. If a parent is dissatisfied with the ruling of the official, he may wish to discuss the decision with the approving official on an informal basis or make a request either orally or in writing for a hearing to appeal the decision to Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon, Superintendent, Quincy Public Schools, Quincy, MA 02169, 471-0100.

Hearing procedures are outlined in the policy and a complete copy of the policy is on file in the office of the superintendent of schools where it may be reviewed by any interested party.

The policy also provides that there will be no overt identification and/or discrimination against any child because of his race, sex, color, national origin, in the operation of the child feeding programs.

Application forms for the Free or Reduced Price Meals have been sent home to all the parents of children in the city or they may be obtained from the following agencies:

Board Approves License Transfer Of Karl's Auto Body Shop

The Quincy License Board Tuesday approved transfer of an auto repair license at Karl's Auto Body Shop, 65 Holbrook Rd, Wollaston, to Michael McGann, 35 Brewster Rd, Hingham, with the proviso that all work be confined within the building.

McGann assured the board he has already started work on clearing the premises of debris and old auto parts. Board member Allan F. MacDonald noted that a number of complaints had been received concerning conditions at the shop under the previous owner, Karl Karjalainen.

The new owner said he is black-topping a section outside the building and will paint the building and otherwise eliminate any cause for complaints.

The board continued until Sept. 26 a hearing on a request of Daniel N. Antonelli, 1769 Liberty St., Braintree, for an auto body repair shop license at Highway Auto Body, 481 Quincy Ave.

Atty. George G. Burke was informed that a special permit is needed and that an application must be filed with the zoning board of appeals before the license board can act on the petition. Burke explained that the petitioner is fencing in the property.

Proposition 13 Represents America's Mood, Says Guzzi

California's famed or notorious Proposition 13, more than anything else, represents a mood in America, says State Secretary Paul Guzzi, who is seeking election to the U.S. Senate.

"It does not necessarily mean that people want government to do less," said Guzzi on a visit to The Quincy Sun Tuesday. "I don't think the people of this state in particular want across the board cuts.

"But they want effective and more accountable government. It's a healthy thing if it forces everybody in government to become more accountable and cost conscious.

"That's the message of Proposition 13, effectiveness, not simply cutting for the sake of cutting."

"One of the major thrusts that I bring to this campaign," he said, "is a concern for oversight on the part of a U.S. senator, a control on government spending."

Guzzi said he sees next Tuesday's primary as a fight between himself, Cong. Paul Tsongas and Boston School Committeewoman Kathleen Sullivan Alioto.

Register Of Probate Important Elective Office Says Paul Gay

"The office of Register of Probate is one of the least visible and most important elective offices in county government," according to Paul C. Gay, Register of Probate in Norfolk County.

Gay is campaigning for his second term in the six-year post.

"Probate Court is the family court," Gay said in an announcement reporting to voters on his first six-year term.

"Probate Court affects almost everyone, because this is where adoptions, child custody, disposition of wills, separation, divorce and remarriage are handled. It's a rare person who gets through life without encountering Probate Court in some form.

"And since the issues that come up in Probate Court can give rise to such anxiety, anything that the Register of the Court can do to smooth the procedures and ease the anxious hours of waiting is a vital human service."

Some of the reforms Gay claims for his term as administrative head of Norfolk Probate Court include:

- Reducing waiting period for many decrees, documents and citations from as much as three weeks to same-day.
- Introducing microfilm to replace traditional bound copies, thus speeding up lawyers' work [the first Court to do so.]
- First court to use computers for scheduling dockets.
- Initiated regular training seminars for attorneys and their legal secretaries to make lawyers' time more efficient.
- Increased personnel on information desk during periods of heavy traffic.

Gay also authored and sponsored legislation to require a full medical history on adoptive child's parents, as well as many other administrative "streamlining" processes.

"And it may sound silly, unless you've had to wait hours in court without telephone change in your pocket, but one thing I'm proud of is putting in a public coin-and-bill changer, and a public coin-operated copy machine.

At Chamber Breakfast

7 Congressional Candidates Speak Out

By TOM HENSHAW

Seven candidates for Congress placed seven varieties of campaign style on exhibit before the South Shore Chamber of Commerce last week over a breakfast of ham and eggs.

Patrick H. McCarthy, the Randolph attorney, buried Chamber members under a welter of detail about raising surtax exemptions from 42 per cent to 48 per cent and buying LNG at $3.50 to $4.41 instead of $2.05 or even $1.45.

Brian J. Donnelly, the state rep. from Boston, cracked jokes and talked about a national energy policy and a constitutional limit on the growth of government.

Patrick F. McDonough, the Boston city councilman, explained his folksy background (from Ireland at 3, St. Joseph's School, BC, the Army, Boston cop, etc.), suggested that extremism is not to be admired and pictured himself in the image of the retiring Jim Burke.

James A. Sheets, the Quincy councillor and state rep., told how he spoke with 30,000 people during the campaign and reported that the people they elect to public office don't get down and listen to them.

Margaret R. Dinneen, the Milton attorney, pointed out (with considerable logic) that whoever is elected to Congress this year will serve 10 to 20 years, that she is best qualified through service in Washington and that her prime priority is the economy of the Northeast.

Sabina Kavanagh, Quincy beautician and real estate broker, complained of the hard life of the senior citizen (she's chairperson of the Quincy Council on Aging) and commiserated with breakfasting businessmen over the high cost of doing business.

H. Graham Lowry, the U.S. Labor Party candidate, bedazzled them with references to turning the Sahara Desert into fertile lands, and establishing a gold backed dollar as the international reserve currency, while invoking the name of the Labor Party's guru-chairman, Lyndon LaRouche.

McCarthy, piling fact upon number, said he feels "that aside from excessive government regulation, the two major problems facing business are capital formation and energy."

He said he favors a proposal to expand surtax exemptions, not so much to stimulate new hiring or new plant facilities but to "keep a lot of marginal people in the black."

He has mixed feelings about nuclear energy, he said, but he will vote for a measure due in Congress next year "to speed up license procedures for the construction of nuclear power plant facilities."

Donnelly called for establishment "by law of the sunset concept of legislation so that no longer will agencies be established that will last forever after their usefulness is gone."

That, he said, will "give the government the option either to renew an agency or get rid of things that just aren't working right, things that aren't producing."

"We spent billions of dollars on the so-called 'Great Society' programs," he said, "and after 12 years of spending there are more poor people today and statistically they are poorer."

"I try to avoid being an extremist," said McDonough, staking out a position in the middle of the road. "I don't think that the world works in the black area or the white area; that I'm right and you're wrong.

"It's an awfully important factor, as a congressman, to try to be a linkage between the people you represent and the great monolithic federal government that we have built in this country

"I think the average citizen feels somewhat alienated from this great government and a congressman should be like Jim Burke has been, one who gives the feeling of being your man in Washington."

Sheets said passage of Proposition 13 in California illustrates what he has been hearing from the people that "we haven't been listened to and so we are going to have to take measures into our own hands."

"The one thing I will pledge to you," he said, "as I have done as a city councillor and state representative, is that you will be my sounding board, you will be the individuals who go to Congress.

"Physically you will send me but you will go with me because it's your economic interests that are so vital to this district that I will carry to Congress."

Dinneen listed the district's needs as "a tax cut to encourage expansion of private manufacturing and an energy program that will allow our industries to compete with the sunbelt."

"I favor deregulation of natural gas," she said. "I think we need offshore oil development to create new jobs and a vital new industry. We need to get the federal government out of the credit market.

"A government that did these few things would greatly assist the people of this district. I will focus all my resources to pursue these goals."

Kavanagh noted that there are more than 20,000 senior citizens living in Quincy alone.

"It brings tears to my eyes when these seniors come into my real estate office looking for apartments with all the utilities for $125," she said. "Who is helping these people?

"We will all be living in high rises because we can't meet the expenses of the energy cirsis here in Massachusetts and we have to do something about it."

She said she is for "Cong. Burke's one third tax proposal, that the government pay one third on Social Security, the employer one third and also the employee."

Lowry said a commitment to nuclear energy "means that we end the nonsense about any new wealth-producing technology being some kind of a radioactive bomb that's going to blow up in your backyard."

He warned against people who think nuclear power is all right "but at the same time let's have a little solar, a little geothermal, a windmill in your backyard. That's not an energy policy."

"It's gotten to the point," he said, "where, because of the clear overwhelming support of the American population, we go ahead with a nuclear power program despite the Clamshell and the Whamshell Alliance."

David Priestley of Boston Gas, vice president of the Chamber for public affairs, was the moderator and the breakfast was held at Valle's Restaurant in South Braintree.

What you look for in a Senator is more than just a symbol.

You look for a person who can bring a sense of human values and just plain hard work to bear on not just today's problems, but tomorrow's problems as well.

Because when you elect a Senator, you've got to live with that person for six years.

Paul Guzzi is that kind of person. He's always been a winner. He's always delivered. He's always succeeded. Not by chance, not by luck. But by hard work.

Nothing really good ever comes easy.

You know that. Paul knows that.

That's the reason he'll be a great Senator.

Watchword: 'Stay Healthy'

'Thin' Raiders Host To Milton Saturday

By TOM SULLIVAN

When North Quincy's football team opens its season Saturday against Milton at 1:30 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium decked out in bright new uniforms, the watchword will be "stay healthy."

"We are very thin and key injuries could really hurt us," Coach Dave Burke said as the Raiders finished preparations for the non-league opener. "We have some fine players who have been working awfully hard, but we lack depth nearly everywhere."

For the past several seasons North was able to two-platoon with no one going both ways with a very few exceptions. However, this fall a number of boys will be forced to play both ways.

North, hoping to avenge last year's 6-0 loss to Milton, coached by former North assistant Jack Bowes, will start offensively with Dan McIntyre and John O'Leary at end, Brian McGilvray and Paul White at tackle, Mike Spinelli and John McNamara at guard, Pat McKenna at center, Kevin Cobban at quarterback, Tom Quinn and Jim Holleran at halfback and John Conley at fullback.

Others who will play on offense include end Larry Baker, tackle Tom Molloy, guard Joe Venezia, fullback Pat Carroll and halfback Leo Graham.

North is inexperienced on defense and the starters are uncertain. However, playing at end will be John Hernon, Matt Hemphill, Glen Healy, John White and Brian Eaton.

The tackles will be Molloy, Paul McNamara, and Paul White. Venezia and Glen Ross will be the noseguards and Rich Schaetzel, McGilvray and Chris Petrillo will be the linebackers.

Cornerbacks will be Brian Hewitt, John Lothrop and McIntyre. Pat Ennis, Baker and Pete Doherty will be defensive backs and Graham will be the safety.

Paul McNamara, Cobban and Quinn are the Raiders' tri-captains.

North has scrimmaged Braintree and Scituate and Burke and his aides were pleased with the performances. "We did a good job and showed improvement in the second scrimmage against Scituate," Burke said.

The Raiders are more experienced on offense than on defense and Burke was impressed with the progress being shown by the defense.

Milton had its best season in several years last fall with an 8-2 record and Bowes has several returnees and anticipates another good year. Burke hopes to improve on North's 1977 record of 5-4.

The boating course is free and will consist of 10 lectures of two hours duration on such subjects as seamanship, rules of the road, compass and chart work, aids to navigation, equipment, trailering, and handling under adverse conditions.

Men, women, and youngsters 12 and over are encouraged to take the course. It is not necessary to own a boat.

The United States Power Squadron has as its chief objective, safety afloat, and this will be the dominant theme of the course.

Only 13 But--

Michelle Millane: She's A Dynamite Kid

By TOM SULLIVAN

She is only 13 years old, but already has attracted national attention and she soon should be putting Quincy on the map in the world of track.

She is Michelle Millane, who participated in the National AAU Girls Age Group Track and Field championships in Miami, Fla., and placed second in the 12-13 division discus and third in the shot put.

"Michelle attracted a swarm of reporters, photographers and fellow athletes in the national meet," said her coach and greatest booster, Jeff Hennessey, Quincy Track Club coach.

"She really looks like a professional and where the other girls seem to lack confidence, Michelle simple exudes it. The ones with technique and poise are the ones who go places. We work specifically on technique, the strength and speed will come slowly, but eventually we hope this approach will make her the best."

The attractive 5-10, 150-pound blonde had no trouble qualifying for the nationals. The qualifying distances were 75 feet in the discus and 34 feet in the shot. She also qualified for the javelin, having thrown more than 100 feet on many occasions.

Michelle's statistics are staggering. She hardly looks heavy because she extensively weight trains and can bench press 120 pounds.

She placed first in the discus in the Region One AAU championships, which included New England, New York and New Jersey. She took fourth in the New England AAU Women's championship with a personal best of 115-10 and threw the six-pound shot 40 feet, 4½ inches at the Greater Taunton Junior Olympics for another personal best.

A week later she won the N. E. Junior Olympics discus, defeating 14 and 15-year olders. A year ago she ranked first nationally for 12 year olds in the discus with a 103-6 toss.

QTC Coach John Jacoppo said "She can become a great one."

MICHELLE shows the form which has made her one of the top young shot putters in the country. [Steve Grochowski Photo]

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Millane of 29 Wentworth Rd, Wollaston, gave her best ever in the Miami meet, doing 116-4 in the discus and 40-8 in the shot put.

"I fouled on a 43-foot plus throw, which would have put me in second place in the shot," Michelle explained. "Miami was a great experience, there was so much talent there and all the kids were so friendly."

The Quincy star went to the Nationals with the Liberty A. C., which sent several girls, all close friends of Michelle. The girl who won the discus and also the shot was Cindy Johnson of Arizona, who threw the discus 126 feet and the shot put 43-11.

"There was no way I could have beaten her, she was much stronger and faster, but I'll beat her next year if she is still around," Michelle vowed.

If Michelle has her way, she won't miss. A ninth grader this fall at Central Junior High, she puts in many hard hours a day, either throwing, weight lifting at Eastern Nazarene College or running. She is a familiar sight jogging along Quincy Shore Drive.

The young sensation first caught Hennessey's eye in May, 1975, when, at 10 years of age, she stood 5-4 and weighed 110.

"I figured she was 15 or 16 but knew she didn't run for North Quincy," said Hennessey, then a freshman at UMass Boston and a North Quincy volunteer assistant coach. "When she told me she was only 10, I flipped. She was so big and strong for her age. I timed her in a mile and she ran an unbelievable seven minutes."

It was then that Jeff persuaded her to join the Quincy Track Club.

Hennessey, who saw her great potential in the weight events, introduced her to the discus. "She had long arms and seemed just right for the event," he said. She proved him right by doing 62 feet the first time.

Her running career flourished for the next two years, but Hennessey told her she would eventually get too big to be a quality miler. She went on to set club 12-13 records of 2:37.6 in the 880 and 5:47.5 for the mile, marks yet to be broken.

In the fall of 1976 she captained the midget girls cross country team, which won its first NEAAU championship. She never improved in running but her discus went from 62 feet in 1975 to 71-10 in '76 and 103-6 in '77. Her shot put improved from 23-10 in '76 to 30-8 in '77 and 40-8 this year.

Michelle, whose hobbies include swimming, basketball and softball, speaks philosophically about the future.

"I have to keep working at what I do, otherwise, I'll just peak too soon like so many girls do," she said. "I have to keep constantly improving. There are some things I'd like to get out of track, like some European trips and maybe a college scholarship."

Michelle's parents couldn't be prouder. "All my kids have been athletes," said Mrs. Millane. "My husband has been a strong influence on the kids, always taking them out to the park to play ball. When Mark, my 15-year older, started jogging with a friend, Michelle did likewise when only nine. Michelle has always been very sincere in her training and has her brothers to look up to. Track has done her so much good. She has had a chance to travel and to meet people and develop a confidence that few girls her age have."

MICHELLE MILLANE, Quincy's rising young track star, is shown with her coach, Jeff Hennessey, who discovered her four years ago and has been training her since that time.

Michelle's future goals involve a possible trip to Stockholm, Sweden, next winter with her coach. The chances of such a trip came about through her friendship with Bodil Wahlstedt, a Swedish exchange student in Weymouth this past year, who is the 15-16 age group shotput champion in Sweden.

Michelle was intrumental in having Bodil join the Quincy Track Club and the two developed a strong friendship.

Other plans include qualifying for the Junior Olympics and Junior Nationals next summer and eventually being picked for the National Junior AAU team which will travel and compete in Europe.

"I have to place in the two top for that and I think I can do it sometime in the next four years," she said. She also looks toward high school competition when she enters the 10th grade at North Quincy High. She has already broken North Quincy's school records in all three weight events but is looking for the state record in the discus.

She would like to pursue a college career with a track scholarship. Her top choices include track powers U. of Tennessee, UCLA, USC, Washington State and Penn State.

"Jeff Hennessey has been so good to me, always there coaching and helping me out," she said. "If it weren't for him, I'd probably be playing basketball and I'd be just fair at it. I want to be the best and stay there for a while."

"Michelle finds it impossible to be second best," said Hennessey. "She has been a dynamite kid and is really what makes the Quincy Track Club work. Everyone rallies around Michelle and I'll take her as far as she wants to go."

Opens Against Weymouth N.

North X-Country Team Needs More Runners

North Quincy cross country coach Lou Tozzi, who has had amazing success as the Raiders' cross-country, winter and spring track coach, has a major problem as he preps his team for next Tuesday's opener with Weymouth North.

He hasn't enough runners.

"You need five runners to score in a meet and right now I have only four," Tozzi said. "Two of my top runners are injured and probably won't be back for a couple of weeks. I have to find some more boys somewhere."

Tozzie explained that cross-country is the only sport without a junior high school program, which hurts the high school teams considerably.

"Last year we were 6-2-1 in the Suburban League and this year the league is probably stronger than ever," he said. "Weymouth South and Brockton, as usual, will be very strong and I feel Newton and Cambridge will also have fine teams. We are now the smallest school in the league and it looks like a long season."

Lou lost his top four runners from last year, including Mike Barrett and John Saville, state meet medal winners.

Barrett's brother, John, and Billy Murphy, expected to be two of the Raiders' top men this fall, are out with injuries.

Right now the top man is senior McGuiggan, North's best half miler last spring, and the most experienced runner.

Number two is Jim Coughlin, a senior veteran who has improved by leaps and bounds, followed by Mike Ricciuti, a junior, the most pleasant surprise on the squad, and fourth is Rich Timmins, a junior transfer from Boston College High who looks good.

"We are really going to have to struggle and I just hope I can find a few more runners to round out our team," Tozzi concluded. "However, we will have no excuses, we will just do the best we can. The few boys I have are hard workers and very dedicated."

Fitzgerald Cautious

Presidents Open At Cambridge Rindge

Quincy High last year had an unbeaten sophomore football team and the success of the current varsity team under new coach Tom Fitzgerald will depend to a good extent upon last year's outstanding sophs.

Fitzgerald is cautious as he leads his team to Cambridge's Russell Field Saturday for a 1:30 p.m. Suburban League opener against new foe Cambridge Rindge and Latin.

"Everyone says we are loaded because of the tremendous sophomore team and the fact every one of those boys are back," Fitzie said.

"But, don't forget, it is a big jump from sophomore to varsity ball and these kids must prove themselves. If we can get by the first couple of games without any key injuries and these kids get some varsity experience, we could do all right. But I'm not predicting anything until we get a couple of games under our belts."

Quincy will have some experience in the offensive line with Vin "Bunky" Harte and either Paul Bandera or Glen Lydon at end, Howie Chadbourne or Russ Neitlich and Geoff Caflisch at tackle, Ron Cross and either George McCarron or Jim Peters at guard and one of four hopefuls, Bob Ciardi, Russ DiPietro, Jeff Heath or Lou Matthews at center.

Tackle Bob Burns and guard Tom Rand also will be seeing action on offense.

Dave Austin, who quarterbacked the sophs a year ago, will start at that vital spot backed up by Charlie McCall.

Ralph Pickering and Pete Griffin will be the halfbacks with Scott Richardson at fullback.

Also ready to play in the backfield will be halfbacks Tom Brennan, Fran Donovan and Billy Flynn.

"Austin was outstanding for the sophomores and I think he can do it all," Fitzgerald said. "Pickering and Griffin are excellent ball carriers and Richardson is a big, hard-running fullback. Brennan, Donovan and Flynn have also shown up well in scrimmages and I think we can move the ball."

The defensive ends are Caflisch and Bandera. Tackles are John Nichols, McCarron, Harte, Ed Quinlan, and Mike Petrillo. Inside linebackers are Pickering, Matthews, Dan Goldrick and Steve Picot and the outside linebackers are Steve Cacciatore, Steve Venturelli and Dean Prescott.

Defensive backs are McCall, Jeff Giordani, John Kavanaugh, Charlie Darcy and John Rizzi.

The Presidents are not particularly big with Nichols at 215 the biggest player. Caflisch and Bandera go about 200.

"We showed steady improvement in scrimmages against Everett, Boston Tech and Arlington," Fitzgerald said. "We moved the ball pretty well and the defense looked good."

The former North Quincy assistant who has been coaching for 27 years, has six lettermen, Pickering, Harte, Cacciatore, McCarron and Cross, but some played just enough to earn their letters.

"We have some good athletes who are working very hard, but I still feel we are inexperienced with the many juniors having to prove themselves," Fitzie went on.

Quincy was 7-3 last year in Hank Conroy's 14th and final year as coach.

This is the first year in the league for Cambridge. Cambridge High and Latin and Rindge Tech merged last year and continued to play an independent schedule with a minimum of success.

However, Coach George Greenidge has a good nucleus of veterans and hopes for better things this fall.
